POLICE HAVE DRAGNET OUT

Murder Conspiracy Develops in Connection With Strike Trouble.

New York, Oct. 6.—The police promised more arrests today in connection with an alleged plot to kill President Theodore P. Shonts, of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, and Frank Hedley, manager of the New York Railways company.

Two men, said to be striking subway guards, arrested early this morning, were held on charges of stoning an elevated train. The police declared they had evidence that these men were involved in the supposed conspiracy, but refrained from bringing such a charge against them until others were arrested.

According to detectives, one of them who posed as a striker got evidence ten days ago that plans were being laid to kill Shonts and Hedley. The two traction officials were warned and given permission to carry pistols.

The two men now under arrest were closely watched until last night when they were seen taking part in an attack upon an elevated train. The prisoners,

GHOST WILL WALK FOR TEACHERS WEDNESDAY

First Monthly Pay Roll For Instructors Will Total $26,000.

When the ghost walks for the teachers of the Fort Wayne public schools next Wednesday the school funds of the city will be nearly $26,000 less. This is the first payroll since the opening of the schools and is the largest one for one single month in the history of the city.

The teachers of the school get a pay check every four weeks, while the other employes connected with the schools of the city get paid the first of every calendar month. This is the first pay for the teachers since last June and without a doubt it will be a welcome visitor to most of them.

Payment of salary is made by check and the secretary of the superintendent of schools has been busy for several days getting the checks ready. All three members of the school board must affix their names before the check is valid. This system of having all the members of the board sign their names to pay checks is recognized by the state board of accounts as the best in use in the state.

FIREBUG'S EFFORT AT FARMER'S HOME FAILS

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 6.—The firebug who has been terrorizing property owners at Florida, a small town near here, last night made an unsuccessful attempt to burn the residence of John Roberts, a prominent farmer.

When the Roberts family returned from a political gathering at Anderson about 11 p. m., they found their house filled with smoke and oil fumes. For some reason the saturated floors and rags, which had been placed in the house, refused to burst into flames and the residence was thus saved. Within the last year four incendiary fires have been discovered in the neighborhood, but no clue to the firebug has been found.

4-YEAR-OLD TELLS HOW TO SAVE MOTHER'S LIFE.

Shelbyville, Ind., Oct. 6.—Direction how to stop a small gasoline engine given by four-year-old Pauline Yarling, probably saved the life of Mrs. Raymond Yarling, her mother, when her hair and dress caugh in the cog wheels and belts attached to the engine. Mrs. Yarling's sister, who attempted to stop the engine, did not know what to do until the child told her. Meanwhile Mrs. Yarling was being drawn rapidly into the machinery. The engine stopped just in time to prevent serious injury to Mrs. Yarling.

REQUIRED TO TAKE STATE EXAMINATION

For the first time in the history of the state of Indiana, all supervisors of penmanship of the public schools will be required to take an examination in each county of the state the last Saturday in October. Examinations from these instructors will be given every month beginning in January, 1917.

Heretofore penmanship supervisors received their diplomas upon application at the county superintendent's office. No examination was required. However, the tune is changed and they are now in the same class as all other instructors and will be compelled to pass a successful examination before they will be given a license to teach.

WILSON HEARS SELF DEBATED

Women in Sun-Bonnets Make President Theme at Malta, Ill.

Homeward Bound, President Pleased at Reception Given Him in West.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—President Wilson paid a brief visit to Chicago today, en route from Omaha, Neb., to Long Branch, N. J., where he speaks to a delegation of independents tomorrow afternoon.

An old time "home interest" debate between women over politics was heard by the president when his train stopped for a few minutes at Malta, Ill. Most of the women wore sun-bonnets.

"I like you, but I'm going to vote for Hughes," said one woman to the president.

Immediately all of the other women began a verbal inslaught on her.

Aren't you ashamed of yourself?" one woman said.

"You know Wilson is the best man," declared another.

"Well I am going to vote for Wilson," said a third.

"Ladies, ladies!" exclaimed the president. "It's very embarrassing to me to be present at this debate."

A crowd was at the station at Clinton, Iowa, to see the president early this morning, but was disappointed because he was still in bed.

A brief stop was made at West Chicago.

The president himself expressed thorough satisfaction with the reception accorded him in the middle west. During his brief stay here the president discussed politics with several western democratic leaders. Secretary Tumulty visited democratic headquarters here.

Mr. Wilson's next visit in the middle west will be on Oct. 12, when he goes to Indianapolis. He will be back in Chicago Oct. 19. Gov. Dunne told the president today he felt confident of a democratic victory in Illinois in November. He said the president was particularly strong among the women. Senator Walsh and Gov. Dunne took up with the president an invitation for him to speak to a meeting of women during his visit to Chicago, Oct. 19. Mr. Wilson said he would accept if his program can be arranged.

For half an hour before the train left for the east the president remained on the rear platform shaking hands with local politicians, including many women. Frequently the crowd cheered. Mr. Wilson kept blinking his eyes every few minutes because of the flare of photographers' flashlights.

ON HIS WAY HOMEWARD.

Clinton, Iowa, Oct. 6.—President Wilson was on his way home through the middle west today after receiving one of the greatest demonstrations of his career in Omaha yesterday and last night. He was due in Chicago at 11:40 o'clock this morning and after a brief stop was to proceed to Long Branch, N. J. He will arrive there tomorrow morning in time for an address to independent voters at Shadow Lawn. The president's campaign managers

BANK ROBBERS ARE BUSY IN TWO STATES

Streator, Ill., Oct. 6—Robbers dynamited the State bank at Rutland, near here, today, and escaped with $6,000.

Ottawa Lake, Mich., Oct. 6.—The safe in the People's Savings bank here was blown early this morning. Band officers report that $1,200 was stolen. The cracksmen escaped in an automobile. Sheriff Fred Cronenwett has a posse in pursuit.

WOMEN THREATEN TO BURN BODY OF MAN WHO KIDNAPED LITLE GIRL.

Indiana State Library

Ethel Lethig, 12-Year-Old Girl Who Was Kidnaped.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 6.—Deputy sheriffs are closely guarding the body of Adolph Dickson, shot while fighting off a posse, from women who threatened to burn him. A posse sought Dickson, charging he kidnaped and mistreated Catherine Lethig, aged 12.

Forty women engaged in a hand-to-hand conflict with sheriffs, yelling, "Burn him! burn him!" They carried cans of kerosene and boxes of matches.

The Lethig girl is still suffering from experiences she had with Dickson after he took her to Shelbyville, Ind., where he registered at a hotel as "Edward Adams and daughter."

When overtaken on a road between Shelbyville, Dickson aimed his shotgun at the posse, but before he could pull the trigger Sheriff Jacob Smith sent a bullet through his head.

TWO ARE ARRAIGNED FOR BIG MAIL FRAUD

Toledo Men Charged With Operating Furniture Swindle.

Toledo, O., Oct. 6.—Charged with using the mails to defraud, Reinhold Merschel and Ernest W. Toadvine were to be arraigned in United States district court here today. The men, it is alleged by federal officers, did business as the Union Furniture company and had an office here.

Most of their business is said to have been transacted in Texas. It is alleged that their scheme was to send agents to form clubs of 35 and get women to sign contracts which the intended victims were unable to understand. The women would pay 50 cents a week on the understanding that there would be weekly drawings. Those whose names were drawn were not to pay any longer. Their names never were drawn and they lost their money, it is said.

It will cost the government nearly $6,000 to prosecute the case. A feature of the hearing will be the presence of thirty-two negroes from Texas, brought here as witnesses.

FIRST MEETING OF QUEST CLUB TONIGHT

The first meeting of the Quest club for the fall and winter season will be held Friday night at the Hotel Anthony when F. H. Arens, of Babson's statistical organization, will be the speaker. His subject will be "The Real Causes of Prosperity and Depression."

John E. Lathrope, who is directing the city planning exhibit in Fort Wayne, will attend the banquet of the Quest club and make a talk on the city planning exhibit which is to open Saturday in the lower lobby of the court house and last for six days. Many of the commercial bodies of Fort Wayne have taken much interest in the city planning exhibit and the Quest club is one of them.

LIST OF DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS FOR TONIGHT

Two democratic meetings are scheduled for tonight. Frank R. Dulin and W. H. Reed will speak at the Aboite school house, and Hon. J. M. Robinson and Frank A. Emrick at Lafayette Center.

FIRE BUG TWICE APPLIED HIS TORCH

Second Attempt Burns the House With $2,000 Property Loss.

The gray frame house at 748 Riverside avenue had been the subject of neighborhood gossip for many months. Police had the place under surveillance at one time. It had stood deserted on the bank of the St. Joe river for a few days. Soon it was to be occupied again.

Firemen were called there at nine o'clock Thursday night to put out a fire, which started mysteriously in the basement of the big gray house. George Williams, colored, said he was sitting on his front porch, next door, when he saw the glow from the growing flame. He called firemen. The blaze was speedily extinguished before much damage was done.

The firemen had just returned to the station and were preparing to retire when a second call came from the same neighborhood. The same house was on fire again. This time the blaze was well under way. Fire leaped from three parts of the building. Firemen were able to save but little of the structure. Loss is estimated at $2,000. Louis Noble was owner of the property.

Firemen and police are working on the theory that the house was purposely fired.

BIG SHORTAGE SEEN IN INDIANA APPLES

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Indiana apple crop this year will be about 15 per cent of what it was last year, according to an estimate made by F. N. Wallace, state entomologist, based on reports he has received at his office in the state house. He says that the shortage is due to several causes. Among them were the cold rains at the time the trees were in blossom, followed by lack of pollination. Many fruit growers neglected to spray their orchards, it is said, which also had its effect in cutting down the crop.

The other enemies of a good crop appeared during the year and helped cut down the yield materially. They were what is known as the lesser apple worm, and the apple scab.

One reason given by some for not spraying this year was that last year they did so, and when the crops were picked they learned some of their neighbors, who had not sprayed their trees, had crops equally as good. This year many "took a chance." It is said

BULGARIANS GIVING WAY

CROWN PRINCE OPENS UP ON VERDUN AGAIN

Today's War News Given in Summary

While the entente forces holding the center of the Macedonian front remain inert, both flanks continue vigorously on the aggressive.

Today's reports indicate a weakening of the Bulgarian resistance to the British pressure on the eastern end of the line, beyond the Struma. Here the Bulgarians have evacuated Nevolyen, which has been occupied by the British and are reported on the retreat.

Previous offensive movements by the British east of the Struma have not been followed up vigorously. In the present operation, however, the British forces have withstood numerous Bulgarian counter attacks and the consolidation of all the ground gained is now reported.

Sofia again reports the failure of Russian and Rumanian attempts to push back Field Marshal von Mackensen's line at Dobrudja. The complete clearing of the southern bank of the Danube of the Rumanians who recently crossed the river near Bahovo also is announced.

Attacks by the British on the Somme front have gained them ground along the Pozieres-Bapaume road, according to London official statement. A further inroad was made into the German lines northeast of Eaucourt l'Abbaye.

Only artillery activity on the French section of the Somme front is reported in today's war office bulletin from Paris.

British raiders have been active in both the Lille and the Lens region. Whether these raids on the German line have more than local significance is not apparent. In operations in the Loos and Amentieres districts, included within this area of activity, gas was discharged from the British trenches.

The German crown prince has resumed active hostilities at Verdun, Paris announces. His guns have opened up a heavy fire on the Cote du Poivre, or Pepper Hill, north of the fortress, while elsewhere in the Verdun region the artillery is notably busy.

London, Oct. 6.—The British force which recently crossed to the eastern bank of the Struma river on the Macedonian front has occupied the village of Nevolyen, it was announced officially today.

The announcement follows: "On the Struma front yesterday and on the preceding night the enemy showed no activity. Our troops have now consolidated all the ground gained. The total number of prisoners captured in the recent operations now amounts to three officers and 339 men.

"This morning our artillery commenced a bombardment of Nevolyen, but after a short time the enemy was seen evacuating the town and it was occupied by us without loss."

On the Somme Front.

The British last night pushed forward their line northeast of Eaucourt l'Abbaye on the Somme front, it was announced officially today. "During the night there was considerable artillery activity on our front, south of the Ancre," the statement says. "Gas was discharged by us east of Loos and Armitieres. Three raiding parties successfully entered the enemy trenches in the Loos area and two south of Arras."

CROWN PRINCE STRIKES AGAIN.

German Commander Renews Artillery Attack on Verdun.

Paris, Oct. 6.—The war office reports great activity on the part of the artillery on the Verdun front. The Germans are shelling Poivre hill, east of the Meuse and north of Verdun. On the Somme front the artillery was active during the night.

The Bulgarians on the Struma front in Greek Macedonia are retreating before the British, the war office announced today.

ATTACKS MORE VIOLENT.

WANTS ADDRESSES OF 800 AMERICAN AIRMEN

New York, Oct. 6.—Lieut.-Col. George Squier, commanding officer of the aviation section of the signal corps of the war department, has appealed to a magazine published here in the interest of aviators to aid in obtaining the addresses of about 800 American fliers of heavier than air machines. It is understood here the purpose of the war department is to compile a record of all the aviators in this country. A list of those known to the department has been forwarded to the magazine publishers with the request that those named in the list be asked to communicate with Col. Squier. It includes the names of the best known aviators as well as those of less prominence.

GIRL MAKES ADMISSIONS

Confesses She Motored to Scene of Murder and Holdup Attempt.

MISS DE MARCO GETS THIRD DEGREE GRILL

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—Subjected to the third degree at detective headquarters for hours, Millie De Marco, the alleged 19-year-old girl chief of a band of robbers who yesterday held up the automobile of A. J. Rider, president of the New Jersey Cranberry Growers association, at Atsion, N. J., a desolate hamlet ten miles from Hammonton, wounded him, his daughter and another man and killed his brother, Henry D. Rider, of Howell, Mich., made damaging admissions at noon today, according to Captain Tate of the detective bureau.

The girl admitted that she and three men companions had motored from this city and were at Atsion, N. J., at the time of the shooting. She admitted she had heard several shots after the chauffeur of the automobile had stopped his car not far from the spot where a number of men said to have been masked held up Rider's car in an attempt to steal the pay roll of $5,000 being taken to the 300 employes at Rider's cranberry bogs.

Guiseppe Russo, an intimate friend of the De Marco girl, the police say: Frank Vessela, the chauffeur, and Frank Ladena, three other prisoners held there in connection with the crime, were similarly grilled today and admitted they had taken an early morning ride from this city and Hammonton. They also admitted they had been at the spot indicated by the De Marco girl.

The De Marco girl was seen near the home of the Riders yesterday shortly before the murderous hold-up. Rider and his daughter, Mrs. Elsie Smathers, who valiantly drove the automobile after she had been wounded, and James N. Rigby, who also occupied a seat in the Rider car at the time of the attack, are in the Jefferson hospital, this city. Their condition today was hopeful and physicians said they would recover.

None of the men under arrest was in Rider's employ as far as the police were able to learn by a hurried investigation. Mrs. Smathers, a widow of a few weeks and only 26 years old, was a heroine today in the eyes of the police and hospital physicians here. She forgot her pain, to speak lightly of her courageous act, in driving the automobile away from the bandits as they fired shot after shot in a vain effort to get the bag containing $5,000.

"She's the gamest patient we've had in years," was an admiring comment of a physician. Mrs. Smathers smiled and held her hand up deprecatingly, as if her heroism in saving the money and lives, although twice wounded, was nothing unusual. Notwithstanding her weakened condition, she drove her father's big touring car at a racing clip for more than ten miles from the scene of the shooting to Hammonton, where her father's estate is one of the show places.

In the morning he reviewed a parade in which all of the state's ninety-two counties were represented by floats. In the afternoon he is to witness the Indiana pageant and in the evening is scheduled for an address at the coliseum.

TO BEGIN BOOSTING CONVENTION HALL

The citizen's convention hall committee will hold a meeting Friday night at the Commercial club to discuss plans for getting before the voters of Fort Wayne the fact that the convention hall project is up to a vote at the general election on November 7.

This committee, which was organized about five years ago, will start a booster campaign at the meeting Friday night. By a coliseum law passed by the 1914 legislature cities were given the privilege of voting a bond issue for the erection of a convention hall, the expense to be paid from city taxes. The time in which to arouse enthusiasm over the convention hall project is short if the voters are to be thoroughly impressed with the method of obtaining the convention hall.

BANKING FUNDS NOW GOING TO LONDON

New York, Oct. 6.—Between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000 in banking funds, bankers here estimate, has been transferred from New York to London this week, and the movement is still under way.

Call money was lent in New York yesterday at as low as two per cent. Bankers contend that at this figure it is almost impossible to make customary profits on call loans. For this reason they have been putting out money on call in London for some time.

The high mark on time money in this market yesterday was only 3½ per cent and the low was 3 per cent. Local bankers say that they can get as high as 5½ per cent on time loans in Great Britain.

FRIDAY WAS A REAL INDIAN SUMMER DAY

Flying Spider Webs, a Hazy Atmosphere and Warm Sun Announce Season.

Although the past three days of this week bore slight evidences that Indian summer had arrived, Friday, was the first real Indiana summer day this year. Long, silky, aggravating spider webs floating lazily through the hazy, smoky atmosphere, heated by a radiant sun, which sent the temperature up to the eighty degree mark, convinced the observer of weather conditions that Indian summer was now playing its role on the stage of seasons.

The season this year has come a little in advance of the usual time, perhaps due to the early frosts which Fort Wayne and entire Indiana experienced a few weeks ago. The season, which has been named Indian summer, always makes its appearance after a cold snap.

The origin of the term "Indian summer," is unknown, but it is an American expression. It is used over the entire United States and it has even become so popular that England has adopted it as have several other foreign countries.

During Indian summer weather, the temperatures during the daytime will reach as high as eighty degrees and at nights the thermometer will fall as low as forty degrees.

The presence of so many spider webs in the air is explained by the fact that the little spiders who have had no opportunity to grow during the warm summer time have reached an age where they can do some spinning themselves. The slight breezes which are prevalent during this season, unfasten the webs and send them floating through the air to catch somewhere usually in a person's face.

GEN. WOOD COMMENDS TRAINING CAMP WORK

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Army officers assigned to military training camps here prepared today to return to their posts. Major Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the department of the east, will leave for his headquarters at Governor's island tonight. The last of the camps closed yesterday. Gen. Wood said he was well pleased with the result of the season and predicted that between 25,000 and 30,000 men would be under training in the Plattsburgh camp next year.

"The students have done extremely well, and obtained remarkable results," said the general. "The seriousness exhibited by the men was amazing. It is to be particularly noted that perfect order obtained. Because of the fact that nearly all the regular army was on the border, it was necessary to improvise all sorts of organizations with the regulars we had, and I want to say that the men of the coast artillery rendered most valuable service and have largely made the successful conduct of the camp possible.

"The health of the camp has been remarkably good; no deaths, and little or no sickness taking place."

Indiana Man Says Germans Are Perpetrating Big Joke on Foes.

Indianapolis, Oct. 6.—George Washington Koehne, who returned yesterday from a visit to Germany, declares that the German submarine Bremen is a myth and that all the stories which had been printed about its sailing were intended to deceive the British. Mr. Koehne went to Germany as a special representative of Albert Lieber to learn of the condition of Mr. Lieber's mother.

Mr. Koehne said that at the time the story was given out the British ships were outside the three-mile limit waiting for the boat to pass and that the Deutschland got safely back to Germany. He also stated that the Deutschland now is on its second voyage to a United States port.

"There are between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 trained soldiers now in Germany who have never been to the front," Mr. Koehne said.

"That is the extent of the reserve army the empire has."

patch to the Exchange Telegraph company, quoting the eastern correspondent of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger.

The dispatch says that near Karytrunca and Zubilno, Russian infantry have attacked German lines for the last thirty-six hours without cessation. This assault was on a front of fifty kilometers and the cannonade continued all night.

German officers, who participated in the battle on the western front are quoted as saying that the Russian bombardment was now nearly as violent as that on the Somme. The Russians are using thousands of cannon and in a few days the Germans fired 60,000 shells on a very small front.

EFFORTS FAIL, SAYS SOFIA.

Sofia, Oct. 5.—(Via London, Oct. 6.)—All efforts of the Russians and Rumanians to advance on the Dobrudja front have resulted in failure, according to an official announcement issued by the war office today. The statement adds:

"Struma front: Attempts of an enemy battalion, under cover of artillery, infantry and machine gun fire, to advance from Orljak bridge head toward Nevolyen village, failed before our fire.

"Rumanian front: There is quiet along the Danube. The enemy landing operations near Rahovo village was completely repulsed. There is not a single Rumanian soldier on our side of the river."

tion. According to the statement of the officials Shookman told them the money disappeared when he allowed friends to make overdrafts and also made bad loans of the bank's money.

Shookman was taken into police court today for arraignment on the charge of being a fugitive, but the case was continued until this afternoon. It was expected that officers from Delphi would come for him then.

Shortage $15,000 to $20,000.

A conference of state officials and officers of the bank was arranged to take place in the state house this afternoon. The amount of money involved in the case is said to be from $15,000 to $20,000.

It was yesterday afternoon that a neatly attired young man walked calmly into the office of the auditor of state and inquired for Arthur Craven, head of the state banking department.

"Mr. Craven is not in the city. What can I do for you?" replied John Crittenberger, a member of the office force.

"Well," responded the stranger, "I am Ellis E. Shookman, cashier of the Farmers' State bank at Burrows. I have come to surrender to the department. I am about $15,000 or $20,000 short in my accounts."

Crittenberger began to perspire suddenly and, wiping his brow, asked Shookman to go on with more details. The result of the conversation was that Shookman went on to police headquarters where he was charged with being a fugitive. He will be kept in Indianapolis until he can be turned over to officers from Delphi, Ind., near which the town of Burrows is situated.

Shookman's surrender was caused immediately by an examination of the bank books by W. A. Dehority of the banking department. Shookman fled from the bank early yesterday morning, while the examination was in progress, and came to Indianapolis. He said he was afraid to surrender at Delphi and came here for safety. The money he took is all gone—possibly $20,000 in all—part of it lost through bad loans, but much more spent to enable Shookman to live better than would have been possible on his salary.

Shookman is a pleasant-faced man of dark complexion and neat appearance. He presented a pathetic appearance when he came to the barred door of a cellroom at police headquarters last night to talk to a newspaper man. He was dressed in blue serge, but had taken off his coat and collar on account of the heat in the stuffy room. His voice was none too sure when he began to speak.

"I made a few bad loans at first and then everything went wrong and I got kind o' discouraged," he said. "I am married, but have no children. I could have made up most of it in a little while if I had been given a chance. None of the money was lost in speculation."

Shookman shifted his position and sighed heavily as he leaned against the bars. Then he continued:

"I began covering up the shortages about a year ago. The books were examined in October of last year and the trouble has all come up since then."

Shookman was pressed to give some idea of how the money went, but declined.

"I Don't Just Know."

"I don't just know," he said, and ended the conversation by dropping his arms from the grating and turning away into the gloom of the cell room.

The state banking department is at a loss to understand how Shookman got away with $20,000, if such is the amount. They explained that the bank is a one man affair. It has a capitalization of only $25,000 and total deposits of $50,000. As is the custom in such institutions, it was explained, the cashier had been left entirely in charge with almost full responsibility, making it easy for him to do as he wished. The bank was incorporated three years ago. Shookman has been with it since the beginning.

It was stated at the banking department that depositors in the institution probably will not lose any money because of Shookman's defalcations. Shookman was under bond and the bank carried insurance guaranteeing against such a loss. The bank was closed yesterday by the department and will remain closed until the tangled books are straightened out.

The first intimation Shookman had that his efforts to cover up the defalcations were about to be discovered came Wednesday afternoon when Mr. Dehority ran across a discrepancy in figures. The attention of the directors was called to the mixup immediately and Shookman was put under surveilance while the examination proceeded. The sum that appeared to be missing increased with such leaps as the investigation continued that Mr. Dehority finally decided to call Mr. Craven, and the examiner went to Burrows yesterday morning.

Remained All Night.

Shookman remained in the bank with Mr. Dehority all Wednesday night, apparently trying to assist in straightening out the figures. About 7:30 yesterday morning, however, he asked permission to go outside the bank to get a drink and disappeared. No one in Burrows saw him and there was considerable consternation until word was sent from Indianapolis that Shookman was locked up there.

At first the bank officials were inclined to let Shookman have a chance to make up the loss, but when they learned the large sum involved, they had a warrant issued, charging him with embezzlement. They shadowed him constantly until he eluded them yesterday morning and came to Indianapolis in an automobile, going at once to the auditor of state's office to surrender. Crittenberger advised Shookman to give himself up to the police and the two then went to headquarters, where Shookman was slated as a fugitive.

Information from Delphi last night made it appear that Shookman's downfall was due to high living and speculation.

Dr. Edward Wagner is president of the bank and M. J. McGreevy is vice president. Shookman's parents live in Allen county and are said to own considerable property.

Shookman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Shookman, residing near Hoagland. The family is prominent and highly respected, and the young man has always stood very high among his acquaintances. He took the situation at Burrow about one year ago.

were jubilant today over the reception accorded him in the middle west, particularly in Omaha.

The president held to his determination not to make a campaign tour out of his trip to Omaha. But his speeches bordered on politics because he told of his ideas of the way the nation should be conducted.

His statement that the United States is as ready to fight as any other nation but it must know what it is fighting for, aroused the most enhusiasm. He declared for a league of nations after the European war to maintain peace. The president's plans for today called for several stops en route home. He intended to appear at every station and shake hands with people but still persisted in his determination not to make rear platform speeches.

SOUTH BEND FETE PROVED BIG SUCCESS

Notable Centennial Celebration is Brought to a Close.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 6.—South Bend and St. Joseph county yesterday wound up the observance of Indiana's centennial celebration. A long industrial parade, in which every form of mercantile, manufacturing and rural activity was represented, was staged in the business streets of South Bend. Elaborately decorated floats and unique equipages were a feature.

Last night the third and last performance of the historical pageant, a living picturization of St. Joseph county history since its discovery and exploration by white men, was given.

More than 7,000 persons took part, and it is estimated 30,000 viewed the pageant during the three nights.

An interesting feature of the day was the reception to pioneers. Many out-of-town people were in attendance. The oldest persons present were Mrs. Lucinda Swaim and William Knoblock, 84 years old, both of this city. Mrs. J. J. Potcher, of Chicago, was among the visitors.

Schuyler Colfax, son of the late Vice President of the United States, was one of the speakers. An old fashioned spelling bee, such as those in which pioneers once took part, formed a part of the entertainment.

In the industrial parade the rural organizations joined with the civic and mercantile establishments with floats. The parade was more than a mile long, had seven bands and drew a big crowd.

The centennial observance brought many people to South Bend who had not been here since childhood. The activities yesterday afternoon closed three gala days.

BRITISH ARMORED TANKS ARE FAILURE

Nothing But Wrecks Soon in British Land Fleet, Says Berlin.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—The British armored motor cars which were used for the first time in the general advance on the Somme front last month, are a failure, the Overseas news agency said.

"One of the tanks built in Nodfolk, England, became hopelessly entangled in barbed wire," says the news agency.

"Another tank was disabled by one shell while advancing at a point north of Fleures. The ammunition which it contained exploded and it burned up. The other tanks were utilized in an attack at 7 a. m. on Sept. 15 on the Guillemont-Combles road. One of them was blown up with a hand grenade when it had approached to within thirty yards of the German trenches. At the last moment its occupants dispatched a carrier pigeon from this modern noah's ark. Six machine guns were captured by the Germans. The tank crawled to the southern edge of Leusee wood and was burned up.

"Only one of these land cruisers succeeded in crossing destroyed German trenches. This one was annihilated by a shell on the road to Ligny-Thilloy. The British land fleet will soon be composed of nothing but wrecks."

OREGON LABOR FAVORS BEER INITIATIVE MOVE

But It Does Not Want to Go Back to Days of the Saloon.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 6.—Organized labor did not want prohibition, though many union men voted for it. But now that we have it, we do not want to go back to saloons."

Edward J. Stack, secretary of the Oregon State Federation of Labor thus defines the state of mind of unionists toward limited prohibition in effect in the state since January 1.

The State Federation and the Portland Central Labor Council have, however, endorsed the beer initiative measure to be voted on in November, together with the Anti-Saloon League proposal of absolute prohibition.

The present law forbids manufacture of liquor in the state, though beer and whisky in limited quantities may be bought from outside Oregon.

Organized labor desires absolute prohibition or the four per cent. beer measure which would keep the state breweries running and keep the money spent for beer in Oregon, permitting the sale of beer in original packages, as now.

It is not satisfied with the present law which sends money out of the state and takes their occupation away from brewery workers, bartenders and cigarmakers, largely.

Just across the Oregon line in California wholesale liquor agencies have been established. They do a thriving business in booze sent into Oregon through the permit route. The Oregon brewers have been ousted to the benefit of the California brewers.

Wets and drys alike deem this a fault of the permit law.

In the days of the saloon there were in Portland alone 657 union bartenders. There are now 72 engaged at soft drink bars.

Of 118 brewery workers in the city, there are left 60, making near-beer.

Prohibition hit the cigarmakers a jolt, because saloons pushed locally made cigars.

"But it is on account of the working men in front of the bars," said Stack, 'that organized labor has no regrets. If legislative action was necessary to stop drunkenness, we are glad it was taken.

"Union men, however, resent the statement so often made by prohibition workers that it was on account of the workingman that a dry law was needed.

"The real reason why temperance is gaining ground is that the workingmen themselves frown on excessive drinking.

"Still there are slaves to drink in every class, and I know of many families who are now happier and more prosperous because the Saturday pay envelope comes home intact instead of liquor drained."

Despite the fact that bartenders and brewery workers lost their jobs and have either been absorbed in other industries or left the state, the total membership of organized labor in Oregon is today larger than when the state was wet.

Union men also pay their dues more regularly now.

Of 180 saloonkeepers in Portland, 88 now have soft drink places and restaurants, 22 have gone into other business in the city, 12 have saloons elsewhere, while 21 have left the state but are not in the liquor business, and 37 have retired.

How Catarrh is Contracted.

Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colds which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucus membrane, at first acute, becomes chronic and the child has chronic catarrh, a disease that is seldom cured and that may prove a life's burden. Many persons who have this loathsome disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little forethought, a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

LABOR STRONG FOR PROHIBITION THERE

Washington Leaders Say It Has Been Vast Benefit to Labor.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 6.—"Organized labor here has become an advocate of prohibition.

The majority of trade unionists, once wet or neutral, say that eight months of dryness in the largest water-wagon city in the United States has convinced them that former support of breweries was misguided.

The same verdict comes from the socialists.

Predictions that labor would suffer seriously as a result of prohibition have been disproven, it is claimed.

Unionism is today in a more flourishing condition than ever before, leaders assert.

Seattle's organized labor membership exceeds that of wet 1915, despite the loss of several hundred brewery and saloon employes.

So testifies James Duncan, secretary of the Central Labor Council.

Just how material has been this change of sentiment will be demonstrated at the November election when an initiative measure proposing the manufacture and sale of beer in the state of Washington will be voted on.

"Results during eight months of prohibition," said Secretary James Duncan of the Central Labor Council, "show how unjustified were the dire predictions of the brewery interests. Instead of 8,000 union men being thrown out of jobs in the state, as was prophesied, hardly 2,500 were affected.

Failure of these predicted woes to materialize, added to the fact that liquor interests here have openly opposed labor in the eight-hour cause and other economic and humanitarian progress, has turned many former wets among trade unionists to the dry ranks."

Organized labor, though formally neutral in the fight that resulted in the state-wide prohibition last January, gave considerable support to the liquor men in the interest of brewery workers and other fellow unionists who would be adversely affected.

The same support for the same cause has usually been enlisted by the wets from organized labor and socialists everywhere.

"But we have been learning here," remarked Duncan, "that we were doing labor vastly more harm by helping perpetuate an industry that has combatted our progress and allied itself generally with open shop interests by abolishing it at the sacrifice of a few hundred brewery employes."

"Socialists of Seattle and the state," added C. H. McGill, a well-known leader, "are today dry on general economic grounds."

The case of the longshoremen affords an interesting commentary. Always frankly wet in their sympathies, these men, now on strike, have decisively switched because "the liquor interests have consistently allied themselves with the open shop employers against the welfare of labor."

"Big improvement in local union meetings since the state went dry," is the report of the longshoremen delegate committee.

And that seems to be the general verdict of labor throughout the dry state of Washington today.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Matthew 22:31-46.

31 But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying,

32 I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

33 And when the multitude heard this, they were astonished at his doctrine.

34 But when the Pharisees had heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, they were gathered together.

35 Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying,

36 Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

37 Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

38 This is the first and great commandment.

39 And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

40 On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.

41 While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them,

42 Saying, What think ye of Christ? whose son is he? They say unto him, The son of David.

43 He saith unto them, How then doth David in spirit call him Lord, saying,

44 The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool?

45 If David then call him Lord, how is he his son?

46 And no man was able to answer him a word, neither durst any man from that day forth ask him more questions.

Indiana Freight Rates

Whether the hearing regarding railroad freight rates in Indiana which has been in progress before the state public service commission at Indianapolis for some days will have the result of bringing about a more satisfactory adjustment or not, some of the evidence as to rates and rate-making and their relation to net profits of the railroad lines has been of much interest. Shippers generally and several commercial organizations in particular have protested against proposed increases and set up the claim as well that many Indiana rates under the present arrangement are discriminatory and are working to the disadvantage of Indiana shippers.

One of the freight experts of the Big Four system, on the other hand, set up the contention, and attempted to sustain it by figures, that the intra-state freight business is a loss to the railroads, and that the only profit accruing to the railroads in the freight department was from interstate business which is carried beyond the boundaries of Indiana. About 7 per cent of the business of the railroads operating in Indiana, he explained, is intra-state business; the balance is inter-state haul. There will be no disposition to question the general proposition that the long haul is more profitable to the railroad than [illegible] short haul, because the expense of handling and transfer at terminals is no greater for the increased earnings than for the lesser revenue received for the short haul.

But the railroads manifested no little temper at the efforts of the commission to get some light on related conditions taken into account in arriving at net results. Among these was the contention that several small railroads which could not be made profitable under any circumstances had been taken over and their burdens shifted to the shoulders of the general shipper. There was the pertinent inquiry, also, if rented cars, obtained at a cost in excess of road-owned cars had not been considerable of a contributing factor in producing the deficit in freight earnings. We think there will be no disposition on the part of the commission to deny the railroads, and no refusal of the shipper to pay what ought in fairness to be paid in the matter of state freight rates, but the shipper should not be required to assume burdens not fairly his own. The more light thrown on the varied intricacies of the problem, the quicker an equitable conclusion can be reached. Neither the railroads nor the shipper should be afraid of a complete show-down in the case.

President Wilson's selection of General Goethals as chairman, with Commissioner Clarke, of the inter-state commerce commission, and Commissioner Rublee, of the federal trade commission, as the board to investigate the operation of the new eight-hour railroad law will win popular approval. It makes certain, too, from the character and grade of the men, that the inquiry will not only be thorough, but that its conclusions will command high respect.

Statement of the traction company submitted to the public service commission shows a deficit of somewhat more than $32,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, and explains that a considerable part of the loss was due to the street railway strike in Fort Wayne. When one adds to this the loss suffered by the car men and the inconvenience suffered by the general public, that historic struggle seems to have been a rather expensive affair for all concerned.

Mr. Beveridge raised his eloquent voice for Mr. Hughes for the first time in a speech in Chicago Thursday evening. Doubtless Mr. Beveridge is able to reconcile in his own mind his present allegiance to the forces he so bitterly and so furiously assailed four years ago and again two years ago, but he doesn't deign to explain to a curious public just how he has been able to do it.

Colonel Roosevelt's ideal candidate, Robert Bacon, who was unmercifully beaten for the republican nomination for United States senator in New York, has filed a statement of expenditures which shows that his foray into the arena of public opinion cost him just $9,611. And we doubt if even the colonel, in view of the harassing outcome, will contend that it was worth it.

President Wilson's opponents still fail to come forward with definite and specific details of precisely which of the numerous progressive and helpful laws placed on the statute books by the present administration they purpose repealing if they get a chance at them.

Can it be longer doubted that woman is really coming into her own? In the horse races at North Manchester a day or two ago there was one woman driver, and the records show she finished inside the money, too.

Likewise, Mr. Root is displeased with President Wilson's way of doing things. Somehow, we rather suspected something of that sort would develop before the campaign closed.

And, incidentally, kep in mind that next Monday is not only registration day, but the only registration day this year.

(Indianapolis News.)

The intrastate freight rate hearings before the public service commission should be followed closely, for they are of the utmost importance to the business interests of Indiana. They mark the beginning of what may be the final stage of a struggle which has extended over a long period of years. The hope is that some form of agreement will now be reached that will be fair to all. The petitioners are shippers from all over the state, and the freight and traffic bureau of the Indianapolis chamber of commerce. The issues are brought before the public service commission, not as a court, but as a commission.

Some time ago attention was called to the privileges obtained by Cincinnati, for instance, as against Indianapolis in competing for business in common territory. This point is now before the interstate commerce commission. The trouble with Indiana, the shippers allege, is that rates both existing and proposed, are discriminatory in comparison with tariffs in neighboring states, such as Ohio. It is this point that is brought before the public service commission. Both interstate and intrastate disputes concerned the whole fabric of freight rates in Central Association territory. According to W. C. Maxwell, an expert for the Wabash, existing rates are not adequate in proportion to the amount of capital invested in the state.

The hearings illustrate the difficulties of the railroads. There was a time when the carriers resisted all regulation; but their attitude is changed. Their complaint is that today they are under forty-nine masters, whereas, out of justice to the investors, there should be only one. The trouble is that we have not yet learned that the interstate commerce commission, sitting at a remote point, can understand the transportation problems within a state. The protesting Indiana shippers doubtless have a grievance. It is not so much a case of excessive rates as discriminatory rates, as compared with other states in competing commercial territory. It should be possible for shippers and carriers to get together and then to co-operate for the ultimate solution of the whole regulation problem.

TO MAKE THEIR OWN TASK "LIGHTER"

SAYS TANLAC ENDED 5 YEARS OF TROUBLE

"It's Surely a Wonderful Medicine," South Bend Woman Asserts.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 6.—"Tanlac is a wonderful medicine," was the tribute paid the Premier Preparation on September 5 by Mrs. Margaret Rosse, South Bend woman, of 603 East Colfax street.

"I have suffered from rheumatism for the last five years," Mrs. Rosse continued. "In fact, my entire system was in a general run down condition. I was extremely nervous and irritable. The rheumatism seemed to be in all parts of my body, but the pains were especially severe in my arms, legs and back. I could not walk without holding on to something and it was impossible for me to sleep the whole night through.

"I have taken one bottle of Tanlac now and I want to say that I can't praise it too highly. The rheumatic pains have completely left me now and I am not nervous and irritable as before. In fact my general health is excellent now. I haven't felt as good in five years.

"Tanlac has done more for me than anything else in the world and I gladly recommend it."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and the like and has proven a fine reconstructive tonic.

Tanlac is now being introduced and explained in Fort Wayne at the four Meyer drug stores—Wayne and Calhoun streets, Calhoun and Columbia, 1420 Calhoun and Broadway and Taylor streets.—Advertisement.

Not Much Good to Help

BRAVES MOUNTAIN DANGERS TO CARRY EDUCATION INTO WILDS.

Miss Maude I. Schroter

Weaverville, Trinity Co., Cal., Oct. 4.—When Trinity county voters selected Miss Maude I. Schroter superintendent of schools and placed upon her the duties of traveling hundreds of miles of rocky mountain road, bordering on steep precipices and chasms and where wild animals ramble at will, there were many who figured that it had been unwise to select a woman for such a perilous task.

But Trinity county knew Miss Schroter as developments have since shown. When Miss Schroter assumed the office and consulted a map as to her school districts she found that she would have to travel 112 miles to the Caution district alone.

There are no railroads, neither is there a stage. It was up to her to solve the problem and she did. A beautiful saddle horse was purchased, a riding habit and the superintendent started forth. Many days she has spent riding through the forests on rough mountain roads, over trails and through dells.

But let her tell of her journeys herself: I visited about half of the schools in the county and covered almost 300 miles. Eleven of our twenty-four districts I visited on horseback. I carry a few clothes with me in canvas saddle bags, making the load as light as possible for my horse.

"In going to the Caution district I cross some of Trinity's highest mountain ranges and travel alone unless I am fortunate enough to find someone traveling my way.

"In going down the Trinity river trail it is necessary to cross several swinging suspension bridges and mount bluffs hundreds of feet above the river where one prefers to look straight ahead or up rather than down at the surging mountain water."

Miss Schroter admits she carries a gun, but laughed heartily when asked of she "packed" it for protection from human beings. "No, indeed, no. If it were only human beings that inhabited this section I never would burden my horse with a weapon. It is mountain lions, wild cats and even bears which I am prepared to meet.

"No, sir, the men are too chivalrous. I have never seen a mountaineer who was not gallant and in my two years' experience I have found Trinity county men are even more so than others. Never once has anyone stopped me and it would take a ream of paper to tell of the many helping hands given me."

Duke of Connaught is Made a Chief by Tribe of Indians

DUKE of CONNAUGHT.

Banff Springs, Alta., Oct. 1.—As a mark of esteem to the Duke of Connaught, who is soon to be succeeded as governor-general of Canada by the Duke of Devonshire, the Stony tribe indians who live in this western part of Canada, have just made him a chief of their clan.

The duke's Indian name is Chief Teenchka Eeyake Conka, which means "Great Mountain Chief," and in this picture, taken at the great Banff Springs hotel, a famous resort in the Canadian rockies, he is shown in his Indian costume.

The Duke of Connaught is very popular in Canada because of his democratic ways. This summer he, with his family, which includes his immensely popular daughter, Princess Patricia, sponsor of the famous "Princess Pat" regiment, which won its spurs in the early part of the great war, stayed several weeks in Banff. They all rode horseback through the passes with the hotel crowds and dined and swam in the big sulphur pool that bubbles into the great glass tank on the hotel terrace.

SAYS BODY IS A POISON FACTORY

Urges everyone to drink glass of hot water before breakfast.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.—Advertisement.

NORTHWEST WOMEN REAL "SPORTSMEN"

Refuse to Vote Against Wilson in Time of World Stress.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 3.—Women will show more sportsmanship in politics than men!

This is the conclusion gleaned by Miss Julia S. Hurlbut and Miss Agnes F. Campbell, field secretaries of the National Woman's party, in organizing the women voters of Washington state against President Wilson.

"Many republican women, upon whom we had counted, while opposing President Wilson, will not become members of the party because they would not have opposed Hughes if the tables were turned," explained Miss Hurlbut. "They feel it wouldn't be fair to President Wilson."

By the end of September only about 800 Washington state women had enrolled in the national women's party, though thousands of others, explained the field secretaries, are helping the cause of the organization.

This is to rebuke the democratic administration for failure to advocate federal equal suffrage—to rebuke it by swinging women's political power in suffrage states to Charles Evans Hughes, who has personally declared for a federal amendment.

"The granting of suffrage to women by British Columbia," said Miss Hurlbut, "will undoubtedly have a marked effect on our own situation.

"It has at least routed the argument that it would be unwise in these crucial times to admit a great body of women to political power in the United States.

"Canada, acually at war, didn't regard it as unwise to give her women in British Columbia a voice that might be used one way or another in crises."

A large and exceedingly attractive tea was given at the home of Miss Helen Peters, in West Wayne street, this afternoon, in which she was assisted as hostess by her sister, Mrs. Neil McKay. In the receiving line, too, were Miss Alma Dreier, a coming bride of the month, and Mrs. Philip Bursley, of Ann Arbor, Mich. About two hundred and fifty invitations were issued and the rooms were well filled during the two hours of the reception. A stringed orchestra furnished music. A number of ladies in handsome gowns assisted during the time in visiting with the callers and in seeing that they were served in the dining room, where a table was laid with beautiful service and decorated with Killarney, Ophelia and Sunset roses. Mrs. J. C. Peters and Mrs. James McKay were the older ladies who presided and a number of younger matrons and young girls assisting were Mrs. William Peters, Mrs. Fred George, Mrs. Hal Rehrer, Mrs. Roger I. Fisher, Mrs. Lawrence Eberbach, Mrs. Will McKay, Miss Georgiana Bond, Miss Linda McKinnie, Miss Florence Lang, Miss Alice Knight, Miss Mary Evans, Miss Irma Poole, Miss Virginia Cary, Miss Margaret Fisher.

Miss Adele Breuer, of Washington boulevard east, entertained a club of young ladies this afternoon at her home. No special form of amusement was arranged for and though there was a little sewing done the greater part of the afternoon was spent in visiting. At 5 o'clock there was a visit to the dining room, which revealed a lovely table with many roses in the center, a bridal party of kewpies and dainty rose baskets filled with nuts for individual favors. There were pretty things to see, but the tempting menu satisfied in a far different manner and everyone enjoyed herself. While there was no pretense to elaborateness, there was no lacking in elegance or beauty in every appointment.

Kruse-Gerke.

Many friends from the city attended the wedding in St. Martin's Lutheran church in St. Joseph's township, on Thursday afternoon of Miss Emma Gerke and Mr. William Kruse which took place at 2 o'clock. Rev. F. W. Stock, pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony, which was attended by many relatives and friends. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Gerke and by Miss Corinne Bohde. The groom's attendants were Messrs. Conrad Forsh and William Gerke. There were also two little flower girls, Alma Prange and Clara Kruse. The bride and groom entered the church together. The bride wore a handsome gown of white Paris satin trimmed with lace and pearl ornaments. A veil of tulle fell from a pleated cap effect to the bottom of the gown and was held in front to the bride's hair by a string of pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of bride roses and swansonia. The bridesmaids were gowned in white with trimmings in pink and they wore wreaths of smilax in their hair and each held a bouquet of pink roses tied with bows and ends of pink tulle ribbon. The flower girls were very dainty and sweet in their frocks of pink crepe de chine and with pink tulle bows to match in their hair. The flower children held baskets of pink roses and snapdragon tied with pink tulle. After the church service the wedding party was driven to the Gerke home in Wayne Trace, where a little later an elegant wedding supper was served in courses. The house was decorated with palms, foliage and flowers and an orchestra furnished music during the entire evening. The bride and groom received many gifts and the congratulations of many friends. Next Sunday the bridal couple will start on their wedding trip to Niagara Falls and on their return home will settle down on a farm on the Leesburg road. For traveling the bride will wear a blue wool poplin suit and a black velvet hat trimmed with white plumes. Both bride and groom are well and favorably known in the country and in the city.

The bride presented a most attractive appearance in a suit of blue broadcloth, a blouse of white Georgette and a black hat with gold trimming. A corsage bouquet of roses and swansonia and shoes and gloves to match the dress were other details of a costume both good looking and in refined taste. FUNNY WILLIE SOLAR.

Diminutive Comedian a Big Laugh at the New Palace.

There isn't much to Willie Solar that his expansive smile doesn't include, but the four feet two inches of space he occupies simply radiates fun. The diminutive comedian in a group of absurd songs absurdly sung is the big laugh on the week-end bill at the New Palace. He can make more different kinds of noises at the same time and sing in more keys at once than a bagpipe.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Heisen, the two most graceful society dancers who ever whirled through the intricate steps of a fox trot, in Fort Wayne at least, are heading a company of dancers in a revue of the dancing of the moment. Toe, eccentric and even the hula hula dance are included in the repertoire.

Weir, Temple and Dacey, a singing trio, appeared as a duo because one of the men unaccountably lost his voice en route to Fort Wayne. The vocalists sing well and put their act over with a laughing good nature that is infectious. "A Case for Sherlock" is an amusing detective story in which the detective starts out all right but gets hopelessly involved before he is through. Ten words clear up the entire situation in one of the best endings ever written for a vaudeville sketch. Benny and Woods fool round with a piano and a violin performing all sorts of amusing things with them. The act has been here before and always will prove a winner. Frawley and West, the comedy gymnasts, open the bill. The clown is actually funny.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, THICK, WAVY, FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Save your hair! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after an application of Danderine. Also try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, charming, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed. —Advertisement.

AT THE MAJESTIC

"RAMONA" MILE-LONG FILM.

Those who still have doubts about the willingness of an audience to sit through 10,000 or 12,000 feet of motion picture film—a performance of three hour's duration—are having them completely dispelled, it is claimed, by the mammoth new W. H. Clune cinema operatic spectacle, "Ramona," which is to be presented here the first time at the Majestic theatre one week, starting October 16.

When "Ramona" was first presented its makers refused to be impressed by skepticism on the score of length. They insisted that if a show is a good one, there need be no fear of results. This judgment proved correct, for the enchanting story of "Ramona" was so humanly and so well told that audiences never seemed to tire of it.

It was not long ago that the doubt was expressed by many that nothing over a six-reel production would be interesting to the average theatregoer. And, it has been just such productions as "Ramona" that have changed the viewpoint of the amusement-loving public.

THE STORY OF THE FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS AND ITS GROWTH

is interestingly told in the big feature story, "The Progress of a Middle West City," by Charles B. Fitch, in the Autumn number of THE WILDWOOD MAGAZINE.

"Cities attain their cityhood in two ways: They grow or they are built." says Charles B. Fitch, a big Indiana insurance man, in one of the principal articles of the coming number. Mr. Fitch takes cities from his native state for examples of how the middle-sized cities of the central west have grown, and then tells of a city more than a century and a half old that is going through a rapid development. It is gaining in population at the rate of 1,000 persons per month. The article is a leading one and deals with the problems of a city that is being built up so rapidly through the activities of a big corporation that the city cannot expand fast enough to take care of its growth.

This article is being anxiously awaited for by hundreds of Fort Wayne people and will no doubt be the talk of the city. It is timely and is illustrated with five beautiful half-tone engravings.

"GUM RACKS FOR PUPILS? WHY NOT?" ASKS NORMAL SCHOOL HEAD.

Gum-chewing pupils of Wisconsin schools will have racks on which to stick their gum when it is not being "worked," if the suggestion of J. W. Crabtree, president of the River Fall (Wis.) normal schools, is adopted by school boards.

"Pupils have a right to chew gum," says Crabtree. "Teachers do it, but they know when and how. Why not teach these conventionalities to pupils?

"Permit the pupils to chew gum on the playgrounds and on the way to and from school. But what will the poor child do with his gum while in the recitation or assembly room? A gum rack at the entrance of the room containing a number and peg for each pupil solves the problem."

BEVERIDGE DISCOUNTS PRESENT PROSPERITY

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 6.—Former United States Senator A. J. Beveridge opening his western speaking tour in behalf of Charles E. Hughes here last night, attacked the administration's foreign policy, claimed republican credit for the so-called constructive legislation of the administration and declared the prosperity of the present was "sectional, spotted and stained."

He characterized the handling of the threatened labor strike as "juggling with expediency," and declared it had wrought deadly harm to the cause of union labor.

Senator Beveridge denied that the country has been kept out of war. "We invaded Mexico," he said, "and withdrew. But American marines were killed.

"Our territory was invaded by Mexicans, who were driven out, but again Americans were killed. We invaded that country once more and today our military forces, with siege guns, are intrenched in the heart of northern Mexico. They have fought with uniformed Mexicans and soldiers of both sides have fallen."

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who waked up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results both in regard to health and appearance.—Adv.

REVOLT IS NORMAL STATUS OF CRETE

New Outbreak Arrives on Anniversary of Annexation to Greece.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—The present revolt in Crete has occurred almost on the fourth anniversary of the announcement of the island's annexation to Greece, made by the Greek premier on October 14, 1912. Up to that time the Cretans had been in an almost constant state of revolt against Turkish and Egyptian domination for the greater part of the nineteenth and the first decade of the twentieth century. Today's war geography bulletin of the National Geographic society tells of this revolt-riven region.

"Crete and Corsica are practically tied for the distinction of fourth island of the Mediterranean, each having an area somewhat in excess of 3,300 square miles and being surpassed in size by Sicily, Sardinia and Cyprus. But while Corsica has sustained a comparatively inconspicuous role in world history, if one excepts the fact that it was the birthplace of Napoleon, Crete has played a stellar part in human events for more than 4,000 years.

"Oblong in shape, with a length of 160 miles and a width varying from 6 to 35 miles, the rugged island lies equidistant from Europe, Asia and Africa. Its northern coast is greatly indented, and while the anchorage is too shallow for modern steamers in all save one of its ports, in ancient times many of its 100 flourishing cities of which Homer spoke were regularly visited by the light-draft vessels of the Phoenicians, the Greeks, and the Egyptians.

"Crete today sustains a population of about 350,000, more than nine-tenths of whom are Christians and the remaining tenth largely Mohammedan. Much of its land is bare and stony and the forests of cypress which were once its glory have almost disappeared. Its rivers are scarcely more than mountain torrents, which rush down from snow-clad heights towering more than 8,000 feet above the sea.

"Many of the narrow valleys and a few plains are extremely fertile, however. Fruits of many varieties, especially the orange and lemon, grow luxuriantly, and the olive is one of the most valuable products of the island, the oil being used extensively in the manufacture of soap. The vines of Crete, which were noted in the middle ages, have deteriorated somewhat in modern times. Currants are profitably grown, but little grain is raised. The mineral resources of the island may eventually prove to be considerable but at present time gypsum, lime, slate and whetstone constitute the principal output, which is meager.

St. Paul in his epistle to Titus, perpetuated the indictment that 'the Cretans are always liars,' so it is not astonishing to find in the legends of the island the claim that the supreme god of the Greek world, Zeus, was a native and that he was nursed by nymphs on the slopes of the famous Mt. Ida. He was even supposed to have been buried at Iukta, near the ancient center of Minoan civilization, Knossus, or Cnossus, an account of whose astonishing culture thousands of years ago has been given in a recent bulletin of the National Geographic society.

"The Cretans were the allies of Mithradates the Great in that Parthian's negotiations with Rome, and a few years later the islanders espoused the cause of Cilician pirates, as a result of which the Roman general Metellus brought them under the yoke of the Eternal City in 66 B. C.

"When the Roman empire was divided Crete was apportioned to the western rulers and it remained under the Byzantine emperors until 823, when it was captured by piratical Saracens from Andalusia who held sway over the island for 140 years. Then it was redeemed by the Byzantines. During the fourth crusade the island was given to Boniface de Montferrat. He immediately sold it to the Venetians (1204), who ruled it for more than 400 years.

"One of the most prolonged blockades in world history was that conducted by the Turks from 1645 to 1669, when the last port of the island surrendered to Ottoman arms, against whose sway the Cretans were almost constantly in revolt until the final annexation to Greece. The islanders fought shoulder to shoulder with the Greeks in the recent Balkan imbroglios."

ELIHU ROOT ASSAILS PRESIDENT'S COURSE

New York Senator Declares America Has Declined Under Wilson.

New York, Oct. 6.—America's decline under Wilson—that was the theme under which Elihu Root, former secretary of state, in a speech before a republican mass meeting at Carnegie hall last night, arraigned the record of the present administration.

Of Mr. Wilson's policy in Mexico Mr. Root said:

"He has had his way in Mexico and he has managed it with such a degree of skill that both Villa and Carranza are our enemies; that no man in Mexico dares to call himself our friend."

Of the crisis with Germany Mr. Root declared that "if our government meant what it said when it declared it would protect its citizens it should have had the capacity to make Germany understand that it meant what it said and the Lusitania would never have been sunk."

Eight-Hour Law a "Holdup."

Mr. Root called the submission of the president to the railway unions in the recent controversy a "holdup, pure and simple."

"The legislation," he said, "was passed in submission to a threat. The brotherhoods' 400,000 in number had in their hands the power to injure the community by stopping transportation and the government of the United States submitted to them.

"If the attitude of our government under the compulsion of the railroad botherhoods is to be the attitude of the American people we hold our lives at the mercy of the public blackmailer. The organization of civil society which regulates the rights and duties of its members toward each other upon the basis of ascertained justice will have failed as it has failed in Mexico."

The Spirit of America.

Of the democratic policy of "peace at any price," Mr. Root said:

"The most precious possession of the American people is not in our cities and palaces, our railroads and factories, our rich mines and fertile farms, for we have all these and lose our own soul. The supreme necessity of our life is the spirit that bore up our fathers in their poverty and struggles; the spirit that inspired them in the great empty spaces of the new world with the conception of a self-governing republic, bound together by the universal devotion of her sons, instinct with the high and unhesitating courage of liberty, honored for justice, leading the world toward the better things of freedom.

"The spirit is not gone. It has been sleeping. It has been overlaid by wealth and prosperity and ease."

VISIT IMPROVEMENT SCENE.

Persons Interested in St. Joe Dam Proposition Look Over Ground.

Interested in the proposed improvement of the St. Joe dam William Breuer, Fred Barthold, John E. Lathrope and W. H. Myers, the last two director and assistant respectively of the city planning exhibit, Thursday, visited the various points to be affected by the proposed river dam improvement.

The first stop was at a point north of the city where a lake with boating and bathing facilities will be built according to the plans. Fairview, Horseshoe Bend and Germania park were also visited. The trip was concluded with an inspection of the site for the river dam improvement.

At a meeting held at the Commercial club Thursday night it was decided to hold another meeting next Wednesday night. Edward Miller was added to the list of committeemen.

LENGTH OF CONTRACT IS ONLY DIFFERENCE

New York Deadlock Over Milk Situation Not Yet Broken.

New York, Oct. 6.—A difference only as to the length of the contracts to be given by the New York distributors to the farmers existed today when the state opened its investigation of the deadlock which has kept this city on a short supply of milk for several days. One of the big distributors had offered to pay the farmers the increase of one cent a quart which they demanded but had refused to make this contract for six months, as the dairymen's league insisted. Other leading distributors had not agreed to this concession but some of the smaller dealers had complied with the demands of the league.

Continuance of the deadlock today resulted in a still more serious situation in respect to the milk supply. Morning deliveries were still further diminished and many thousands were unable to procure milk at all.

To prevent a recurrence of yesterday's scenes on the upper east side when hundreds of women stormed milk depots, extra details of police were on duty today. The women again swarmed to the depots, soon exhausting the supplies, but there was no disorder.

Says Gerard Brings Plea to Wilson to Urge Peace

New York, Oct. 6.—The New York Evening Post today publishes a story saying that it has been learned from a trustworthy source that Ambassador James W. Gerard, now on his way back from Germany, will lay before President Wilson a request that the president use his good offices in suing for peace with the allies.

"Germany has definitely decided to apply to President Wilson" the article reads, "to use his good offices in suing for peace with the allies. This was learned today from sources in a position to have absolutely trustworthy information on these matters.

"It is understood that Ambassador James W. Gerard, who is on his way over here, will lay the kaiser's request before President Wilson within a week. * * * It is a fact, however, positively it may have been denied officially, that the possibility of President Wilson acting as mediator has been discussed by German officials with Ambassador Gerard. It is therefore by no means surprising that the reports now take definite shape in connection with Mr. Gerard's trip to this country."

Mr. Gerard is on board the steamer Frederick VIII, due in New York about next Tuesday.

NOT TRUE, SAYS EMBASSY.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Officials of the German embassy today met the New York newspaper's story that Gerard was coming with Emperor William's request to the president to urge peace with the emphatic statement that they knew beyond doubt that it was not true.

SHURTLEFF SPEAKER AT NOONDAY LUNCHEON

Noted Boston Landscape Artist Gives Some Views on Swinney Park.

Arthur Shurtleff, of Boston, a widely known landscape artist of the country and adviser to the Boston Art commission, spoke at a luncheon given by Lee J. Ninde, president of the Wildwood Builders' company, Friday noon, at the Commercial club, on the development of the Country club boulevard. He took up the arrangement of Swinney park, asserting there was a lack of circulation in the park and showed how the park came to an abrupt end amid car lines and railways. The meeting was thrown open to informal discussion on the boulevard question. Mayor Hosey, members of the park board, board of works and the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange were in attendance. Mr. Shurtleff made a hurried trip over the territory proposed in the Country club boulevard development Friday morning in company of Mr. Ninde.

John E. Lathrope, director of Fort Wayne's city planning exhibit, preceded Mr. Shurtleff in a short address, setting forth the aims of the exhibit and its value to the city, not for the present, but for future years. Mr. Shurtleff complimented highly the exhibit before he started his talk. The exhibit was shown in Boston, where Mr. Shurtleff had the pleasure of seeing it.

Mr. Lathrop Speaks.

John E. Lathrop spoke in part as follows:

"There was a day when the world was instructed by some that the proper dictum was 'Art for Art's Sake.' There must be no element of 'preaching,' so those art critics said. No book which obviously was to bring to pass reforms, they told us, could be written in accepted art forms. No picture could be of standard artistic value which sought to do more than hold up to us a mirror of nature.

"He who promulgated the absurd slogan of 'Art for the People's Sake,' or 'Art that the World May be Better,' or 'Art that Some Good May be Done to Our Common Man,' was out of keeping with the true tenets of art.

"Yet the great artists who had written their names high on the scroll of fame, whose pictures and books and statues and oratorios the world cherishes —who spread their marvelous works on cathedral walls, filled the galleries, loaded the shelves of the libraries and stole into men's hearts with their divine melodies—did labor with their souls aflame in zeal for mankind, and wrought that their efforts might bring sweetness and gladness and correction of evils to the world.

"Those who gave us that art dictum erred. They did no honor to their own cult. They would have dragged down from its lofty heights that which had been lifted to an elevation by true exponents of artistic effort.

"Humanity finally learned that art was not something to be isolated—kept in cloisters, or away from the multitude; that it could be brought into the daily life of the common man. So we entered that which at first some referred to as 'the era of commercialized art.' This was sneered at. It was said that these were not true artists.

"Yet that movement progressed until it took concrete form in many separate respects—music made democratic, other forms of art brought into the homes of the poor. Ultimately we learned that the riches of all art could as well as not be given to all of the people. The most democratic of all art, landscape architecture, is the culmination of the popularizing of the movement. Beauty is given to all—the rich, the poor, the middle class. Hereby a community could express itself in high forms, and in a reflex manner these forms would react on the common mind.

"That which our guest of honor represents — landscape architecture — is therefore something which combines the modern business idea with the ideals of the civic worker. It is a work of social advance and when done by and for real estate sub-dividers, it is the going concern, paying its way, at the same time contributing immensely to the spiritual betterment of a people."

WILL RAISE TRACKS OVER SHERMAN STREET

Plans Are Here for Subway Under New York Central Lines.

Plans for raising the New York Central tracks over Sherman street were laid before Mayor Hosey, Engineer Randall and members of the board of works by E. M. Currier, of Cleveland, engineer of the New York Central railroad, Friday morning.

Building of the Sherman street subway will cost $26,600, according to the plans. The city of Fort Wayne will pay $6,000 of that amount and the railroad $20,600. The railroad company has no objections to the amount and is anxious to have work started as soon as posible, Currier said.

Sherman street connects with Pape avenue and High streets. At present the street is not used across the New York Central tracks because of the steep grade at the crossing. The subway will open the street up and give a direct avenue clear across the city.

City officials ask that slight changes be made in the first plans, which Currier introduced, Friday. The blueprints will be returned to the central offices of the railroad company and some alterations made. It is hoped to have the new plans ratified by both parties within thirty days.

RUSSIAN CASUALTIES IN EAST VERY HEAVY

Losses at Least 1,250,000 Officers and Men in Past Year.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—Casualties among the Russian armies during this year's offensive on the eastern front, according to cautious calculations, says the Overseas News Agency, have been at least 1,250,000 officers and men.

According to conservative Danish calculations, the news agency adds, Russia during the first two years of the war lost considerably more than 6,000,000 men. Wounded men who returned to the front are not included in this estimate. Continuing, the Overseas News Agency says:

"The prophesy of David Lloyd George, the British secretary of war, that 'Russia will fight until death' is now about to be realized literally. The Russian losses in Galicia recently reached large figures, which even this populous country cannot bear.

"Russian artillery fires indiscriminately among the troops in order to push them forward and shoots down troops which are retreating. In the battle of Korytnyza, which was victorious for the Germans, Russian columns were driven forward by a curtain of fire and whips. Entire Russian waves of men fell under the German artillery and machine gun fire. Dead bodies formed in mountains. After the losses sustained by the Russian emperor's guards on the Stokhod river and in the sanguinary engagements at Pustomyty and Korytnyza nothing remained of the emperor's guards."

GERMAN CHANCELLOR'S STAND YET UNSHAKEN

Campaign for Resumption of Subsea Activity Does Not Gain.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—Efforts to compose the differences between Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and his opponents in the reichstag, which have been in progress since adjournment was taken after the chancellor's speech, apparently have accomplished little. The chancellor's position, however, appears to be unshaken and such information as is obtainable indicates that the campaign for resumption of submarine activity on the old basis has met with no success. After several days of confidential conferences of the chancellor and members of his cabinet, with a committee from the reichstag, discussion of the submarine issue and other problems of foreign policies was resumed today before the ways and means committee.

Notwithstanding the confidential nature of the proceedings in both committees, the following may be taken as a fairly accurate statement of the present situation. The conferences thus far, notwithstanding considerable good will on both sides, have not brought the opposing elements much nearer together. They have shown the chancellor to be in full accord with Field Marshal von Hindenburg, chief of staff, and with the navy department. Both the military and naval representatives have supported the contentions of the chancellor against the inauguration of an unrestrained submarine campaign with the full weight of their expert authority. Dr. Karl Helffrich, vice chancellor, backed the chancellor in a powerful speech on the economic aspects of the question.

M'CORMICK IS SUED IN $50,000 ACTION

Truth Society Head After National Chairman of Democrats.

New York, Oct. 6.—Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the democratic national committee, announced late yesterday that he had been served with a summons in a suit for $50,000, brought against him by Jeremiah A. O'Leary, president of the "American Truth Society." Mr. McCormick said he had not been apprised, however, of the charges upon which the suit was based.

Mr. O'Leary, in a statement issued soon afterward, declared that his purpose in instituting the action was "to find out first whether hyphenism, so-called, is libelous; and, second, whether it is inconsistent with Americanism."

Mr. O'Leary said he resented a statement, attributed to Mr. McCormick, criticising him for sending an "insulting message" to President Wilson. In that message Mr. O'Leary criticised the president for "not enforcing American rights against Great Britain," and informed Mr. Wilson that he would not vote for the re-election of the president. Mr. Wilson replied that he would "feel deeply mortified to have you (Mr. O'Leary) or anybody like you vote for me," adding: "Since you have access to many disloyal Americans and I have not, I will ask you to convey this message to them."

In the statement attributed to Mr. McCormick, appearing October 4, and upon which Mr. O'Leary said he based his suit for libel, the chairman of the democratic national committee was quoted as having commented up on the presence of Charles E. Hughes at the Union League club reception Tuesday night, concluding with the statement that there could be no doubt about Mr. Hughes' position because of his silence on the message sent to the president by Mr. O'Leary.

COUZENS OFFERS BONUS FOR GOOD POLICE WORK

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 6.—James Couzens, Detroit's multi-millionaire police commissioner, today announced the establishment of a bonus system for members of the Detroit police force. The bonus, provided personally by Mr. Couzens, will amount to about $10,000 annually.

It is believed to be the first of its kind established in the United States. Mr. Couzens receives $5,000 from the city for being in charge of the police department. He said today that his entire salary will form part of the bonus which he intends to personally distribute.

This bonus will be paid out at regular intervals probably every three months, Mr. Couzens said. A record of the efficiency of each member of the department will be kept and distribution of the bonus will be based to a great extent upon this record. It was stated by Mr. Couzens that the bonus might enable some policemen to earn more than some of their captains.

HOME RULE IS SAFE IF IRELAND REMAINS SANE

John Redmond is Heard in Notable Address to His Constituents.

Waterford, Ireland, Oct. 6.—In a notable address to his constituents here this afternoon John Redmond, the Irish nationalist leader in parliament, declared that despite the recent rebellion, "with all its inevitable aftermath of brutalities, stupidities and inflamed passions, home rule for Ireland is safe if Ireland remains sane."

Mr. Redmond also declared that conscription could never be forced upon Ireland and added: "I cannot bring myself to that belief that the government will be insane enough to challenge a conflict with Ireland on this subject. Conscription for Ireland, far from helping the army and the war, would be the most fatal thing that could happen. It would be resisted in every village in Ireland. Its attempted enforcement would be a scandal which would ring around the world. It would produce no additional men."

Continuing, the parliamentary leader said: "The mere threat is paralyzing recruiting, which, mark you, is not dead as some people say.

"This demand for conscription is not a genuine military command. It is a base political device put forward by men who want to injure and discredit Ireland's political future."

CHOSE FORT WAYNE AS NEXT MEETING PLACE

Northwestern Branch of Foreign Mission Society to Meet Here.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 6.—Fort Wayne, Ind., was chosen for the 1917 meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church. The convention in session here completed its work today.

The meeting which adjourned at Kalamazoo, Mich., Friday, and which comes to Fort Wayne next year, is the northwestern branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church and represents four states, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana. There will be twelve hundred delegates and the meeting promises to be one of the largest ever held in this city.

Some time ago officials of the northwestern branch wrote here asking if Fort Wayne was desirous of entertaining the convention next year. A meeting of the five local auxiliaries was immediately called and those in attendance were enthusiastic, realizing, however, that to properly entertain so many visitors it would be necessary for societies of the other denominations to co-operate. As a result another meeting was called, which was attended by a majority of the societies of the other churches. They agreed to assist in the entertainment. Later at a meeting of the district superintendent, the ministers of the five Methodist churches in Fort Wayne and representatives from each of the auxiliaries it was decided to extend an official invitation at the same time explaining that, although there was no convention hall here and no auditorium large enough to adequately take care of such a large gathering, Fort Wayne would be pleased to entertain the convention if the delegates cared to come under these circumstances. About twelve delegates from Fort Wayne were in attendance at the meeting in Kalamazoo.

A meeting of the Foreign Missionary society of the Twelfth district will be held next Thursday and Friday at Angola.

DID NOT WANT TO BE LATE GETTING HOME

Clarence Pickering Used Ford Cars to Keep Grandma From Scolding.

Clarence Pickering, 18, lives with his grandma at 1802 Hale avenue. Grandma is stayed in her ways and always insists that Clarence be home at 9 o'clock. Sometimes he almost forgot when down town with the boys. On such occasions he just borrowed somebody's Ford car and rode home in a hurry.

The lad admitted to Detective Sergeant Charles Spillner and later in police court that he had taken three machines to affect his Cinderella like return when he had been amid the glare of Calhoun street as the clock struck nine.

Police had found the automobiles in the Rolling mill district after a night of searching, when the cars were reported missing from in front of theaters. Spillner started working on the theory that some boy in the west end was taking the cars for joy rides. He questioned several youths and when he confronted the Pickering boy the lad confessed his guilt.

Pickering has been employed at the Wayne Knitting mills. He has never been in trouble before and declared that he had no evil intentions in borrowing the machines. He was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to thirty days at the state farm.

Put on Style.

George Boone, 17, Swinney Park avenue, and Alexander Betley, 18, 720 Poplar street, thought they would "put on some style" when they attended the carnival on North Clinton street, two weeks ago. They appropriated an automobile, which they found standing in front of the Majestic theater.

The boys drove to the carnival grounds and left the machine standing while they "just looked around." Then they drove the car to the west end of town and left it standing in the street. Police found the machine the next morning.

The automobile belonged to John Landenberger, vice president of the American Road Machine company. He had police to make a thorough investigation. The two youths were taken to the police station, Thursday, where they confessed having taken the car.

Judge Kerr will dispose of the case, Saturday morning. The boys, who have entered pleas of guilty to charges of unlawful possession of a motor vehicle, are held under $200 bond.

Had Accosted Small Girl.

William Borden, 65, of Bryan, O., was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 30 days at the state farm on a loitering charge. It was proven that he tried to induce an eleven year old girl to go to the show with him and that he made unseeming gestures before her.

Borden readily paid the fine but will have to serve the jail sentence.

Other Police Court Cases.

Charges of public intoxication and their attending judgments were: Joseph Satemeyer, $5; William Collins, $1; Sam Harwing, $1; William Kirkham and Charles Parker, released.

Case against Earl Voss, machinist, charging disorderly conduct, was continued indefinitely.

On charges of train climbing, John LaFever was fined $5; William Lackard, $1; Mike Miller and John Smith were released. Oliver Litler and John White, charged with loitering, were let go.

WILSON DAY WILL BE OBSERVED ON OCT. 28

The democratic national committee has designated Saturday, October 28, as Wilson day. This day will be observed by all the people of the United States as a day upon which they will pay their respects to the president of the United States and show their appreciation of the great public service that he has rendered his country.

On that day the president is to send a message to his countrymen which is to be read in every county, city, town and hamlet in the land. This message is to be a sort of proclamation of the new freedom, and is to be read with all the solemnity of the occasion by some prominent person appointed by the local committee.

GRAND PIANOS

Something You Ought to Know About Quality and Price

We are not conducting a special sale at present on Grand Pianos, but we can sell you a small Grand Piano, full size Keyboard, for

A Grand Piano at that price, however, ceases to be an artistic Instrument in appearance. It's the Tone, Action, all the musical values, and character of the Instrument that make it the real Grand Piano.

Makers like Steinway & Sons, A. B. Chase, Kranich & Bach, Krakauer, Sohmer, embody all the Essentials necessary to make a Grand Piano worthy of the Name "Grand." Those Makes are the best the World affords, and anyone having a desire to own a Grand should consider that it is impossible to buy a first-class Grand at a less price than you are obliged to pay for a strictly first-class upright.

Jacobs Music House are Sole Agents for the above named instruments, and a visit to this store will bear out the truth of this statement.

BIG AUDIENCE HEARS GOODRICH AT MAJESTIC

Republican Candidate for Governor Confines Address to State Issues.

Declaring that the expense of running the state government under democratic rule had been far in excess of what the republicans had spent and criticising the democrats for failing to solve the tax question, James P. Goodrich, republican candidate for governor, spoke before a large audience Thursday night at the Majestic theater, closing his Allen county tour which had included speeches at Huntertown, Harlan, Monroeville, Grabill and the Electric works.

B. Paul Mossman presided at the meeting held at the theater. He introduced Mr. Goodrich, not as a "spellbinder," but as a sound business man who would give the state an honest, economic administration.

Mr. Goodrich denied that the state tax rate had been reduced and said that benevolent institutions of Indiana were inefficient as to management. The speaker said commissions had been created carrying large salaries during the democratic rule adding greatly to the expenditures of the state government. Mr. Goodrich declared the present tax rate was increasing the burden on realty and personal property and that it was driving capital into hiding.

Showed Constructive Program.

The candidate pointed to the constructive program which the republicans were offering. "We submit a constitutional amendment prohibiting the increase of an official's salary while in office," declared the speaker. "A man is not going to put forth special exertion to bring about an increase in his successor's salary. This provision will take care of that question. We submit a constitutional amendment giving the governor power to veto an appropriation and providing for the budget system. We say that we will make scientific examination of the business of the state, removing officials who are inefficient."

"It is the universal judgment of every thinking person that Ralston's administration has been a failure," said the candidate. In concluding Mr. Goodrich said that every promise made by the republicans since 1896 has been written into the law of the land.

AT MILAN CENTER.

James M. Robinson, Former Congressman, Addresses Democratic Meeting.

"They said years ago that the democrats, in power, would pay the rebel debt and this argument was used for many years," declared James M. Robinson, former congressman, speaking Thursday night before a democratic meeting at Milan Center. "They also said that the party would put the colored men back into slavery, a statement no longer believed as thousands of colored men are now supporting the democratic ticket. And most all of those now living in Indiana vote for their firm and steadfast friend, Thomas Taggart.

"The republicans also said that the democrats would stop pensions, but it turned out that democrats were the best friends the soldiers had," asserted the speaker.

Other speakers at the meeting included Frank R. Dulin and William Fruechtenicht, attorneys.

AT SCIPIO CENTER SCHOOL.

A democratic rally was held at Scipio Center school Thursday night when Judge John H. Aiken, Louis Dunten, attorney, and Elder Porter were the speakers. Charles Hohnauer presided. The Maysville drum corps headed an auto parade. The young democrats of Scipio Center, it was decided, should affiliate with the Maysville organization. The two places will join in the formation of a Young Men's Democratic league.

TRIBUTE TO WILSON.

Frank A. Emrick Is Speaker at Democratic Meeting at Zulu.

At a democratic meeting held at Zulu Thursday night, Frank A. Emrick, prosecuting attorney; David C. Stout, county clerk, and Robert Shirley were the speakers.

Mr. Emrick paid a tribute to President Wilson and used for his speech the recent visit of the president to Fort Wayne. "I will never forget," said Mr. Emrick, "the spectacle that I saw the other day when President Wilson, who was in Fort Wayne, greeted the crowds. As he leaned over to shake hands I saw extended the hands of youth and old age, the hands of the laborer begrimed with toil and soot, the gloved hands of the ladies and wrinkled hands of the mothers raised as if in benediction to him who had kept their sons from the ravages of war. I said to myself, 'surely the hearts of the people must be with Woodrow Wilson in this campaign.'"

AT CENTER SCHOOL.

Issues of Campaign Discussed at Democratic Meeting.

There was a democratic meeting at Center school Thursday night at which Howard Benninghoff, R. Earl Peters and Avery M. Groves were the speakers. It was one of the largest meetings of its kind held in Jackson township for some time. Congressman Cline, who was billed to speak, could not attend the meeting. He was taken ill two days ago and was forced to return to his home.

A young men's democratic league was formed at the conclusion of the meeting. Grover Grabner was elected president; Bert Jones, secretary, and Bert Lothamer, treasurer. The president will appint his lieutenants and report to democratic headquarters.

The accomplishments of the democratic administration were reviewed by Mr. Benninghoff and he commented on the manner in which the country had been kept out of war by the president.

Speaking in place of Congressman Cline, Mr. Peters said that there were three great principles in which the democrats believed, they being peace with honor, preparedness with militarism and prosperity without favoritism.

BURGLAR WANTED INSURANCE MONEY

Home of Omar Zimmerman Robbed of Jewelry and Small Change.

Omar Zimmerman, 4002 South Calhoun street, made his round of collections Thursday, as usual, but he stored the fruits of his weekly harvest in the bank Thursday afternoon. The burglar who entered Zimmerman's home through the rear door Thursday evening found but $4 in pennies and dimes in the little box where the insurance money is sometimes kept.

Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman were at the show when Mr. Burglar paid their home a visit between 7 and 10 o'clock and the man had things to his liking. He ransacked the house. A gold watch belonging to Mrs. Zimmerman and valued at $25 and a gold bracelet were taken.

Entrance to the home was gained through the rear door where the thief had removed the glass by use of a wide jimmey. The box in which Zimmerman keeps his insurance fees at times was removed from a dresser drawer and its contents of small change taken. The insurance dues were evidently sought by the thief.

FIREMAN COULDN'T BURN THE WRAPPERS

Instead He Returned Them to Rub-No-More Company for Premiums.

Run on the resources of the premium department of the Rub-No-More Soap company was stopped, Thursday afternoon, when Detective Sergeant Pappert called at a little home at 332 Nussbaum street. There he found the woman who had just about succeeded in cornering all the prize stock of the soap company.

Police were called on the case because the Rub-No-More company managers realized that they were giving out silver table sets, lace curtains, rings and lockets faster than it would be possible for people of one neighborhood to collect soap wrappers, which are redeemed by the company. "Mrs. Gray, 326 Liberty street," was getting most of the valuable gifts.

At least a testimonial as to why she used so much of the soap was in order from the woman, one of the managers of the company thought, and he called on "Mrs. Gray." There was no such person and no such number on Liberty street he found.

Detective Sergeant Pappert questioned workmen at the soap factory. He found that Charles Fry, fireman at the plant, was given the redeemed coupons to destroy. Fry hesitated when asked what he had been doing with the soap wrappers. A visit to his home on Nussbaum street revealed an array of the silver premiums and the lace curtains and even the locket.

Mrs. Fry gave the articles over to police and they were restored to the factory. There will be no prosecution by the company as Fry has a family of five children to support.

75 Years Old When He Swam 36 Miles

CAPT. JACK WILLIAMS, oldest swimming coach afloat. He is 81 years old, and still actively engaged in promoting water sport. Capt. Jack calls himself "God of the Sea," and claims to be as old and as capable as Neptune.

In his day Williams was one of the greatest swimmers that ever bent a springboard. In 1882 he won the world's championship at Montreal, Canada, against a field of picked swimmers from the great nations of the earth. When he was 75 years old he swam from Alton, Ohio, to St. Louis, Mo., a distance of 36 miles, in six hours and 45 minutes.

Capt. Jack also claims to be the first man ever to swim San Francisco bay. He did this in 1890, when he was 55 years old, against a strong rip tide. Williams' one best bet now is swimming with his hands and feet tied.

"My greatest ambition," says Capt. Jack, "is to develop a world's champion open water swimmer. That's what brought me to Catalina Island. The greatest swimmers in the world come here every year, as do the greatest potential swimmers. I hope to pick a sturdy American from amongst these men some day who will beat both Langer and Kahanamoku."

Brownsville, Tex., Oct. 6.—Reports that Mexican bandits had appeared again in the lower Rio Grande valley caused a general tightening last night and today of the armed forces protecting this section. While no disturbance had been reported early today, the unusual precautions were not relaxed and strong guards are being maintained along the railroad from this city to Parlingen.

Army headquarters at Fort Brown is without confirmation of a rumor that an American soldier had been killed by bandits at Bareda.

SOME SYSTEM TO THIS CAMPAIGN HANDSHAKE

Wilson and Hughes Have Different Formulas for Doing It.

What is the difference in the systems of hand-shaking of Wilson and Hughes?

There is a system, both men say, and there is a difference, others claim. Fort Wayne ought to know this because hundreds of her citizens have shaken the hands of both President Wilson and Candidate Hughes within the past two weeks.

"Wilson had the firmer handshake," said one of the city police officers, who had the pleasure of greeting both men during their stops here.

For ten minutes President Wilson leaned far out over the rail of the rear platform of his car, Wednesday, and greeted his enthusiastic followers by a warm handshake. He took the hand of 300 people during his brief stay in Fort Wayne, it is estimated.

It was a cosmos of extended hands which reached up towards the president as he walked out upon the rear platform of his car when the train stopped Wednesday afternoon. Just behind the first tier of citizens eager to touch the hands of our nation's leader were waving hats, fluttering handkerchiefs and myriads of small flags rotating above the heads of those who shouted, "We are for you, Woodrow." As the president reached out to take the chubby hand of a schoolboy, whose childish ambition no doubt was being realized when he touched the person of the president, and whose father had proudly lifted the lad up to where he could touch the rear platform, there was wave upon wave of renewed applause.

It was the signal for nearly ten minutes of almost constant handshaking between Fort Wayne and the president.

Greeted All Alike.

President Wilson grasped with equal fervor the horny and massive hands of laboring men, the firm palm of artisans and clerks, the more delicate fingers of women and the small, plump hands of children.

At times he jerked his hand and snapped his fingers to denote that somebody had used most of his strength in expressing his earnest belief in the president. But Wilson always smiled. And the crowd cheered time and again. He did not tire or lose his warmth.

He had shaken hands from that platform at twenty-eight stations during the day before he reached Fort Wayne. He is averaging 10,000 handshakes a day on his western trip, which he considers a "vacation."

Hughes Some Handshaker.

Hughes, the republican candidate for president, made handshaking the most impressive feature of his visit to Fort Wayne. He made a mild record also while clasping hands here, although he hurried to the retirement of his private car as soon as possible after his remarks from the plank platform at the Pennsylvania station.

"Hughes shook hands like he meant it, alright," one man who gained the attention of the candidate said.

"Wilson acted as though he was not afraid to reach out after my hand," an enthusiastic laborer said after the train had gone Wednesday.

"Hughes' hand felt like a cake of soap," one man who greeted the republican candidate said.

"I could not notice any difference between shaking hands with Wilson and with anybody else," one woman admitted Wednesday.

But there is a difference because Wilson has made a science of handshaking. He has made a study of the exercise with the same thoroughness he has met all his problems, for he realizes that handshaking is a problem which if neglected would mean uncontrollable weariness.

Wilson's Handshake Rule.

Here is the rule Wilson gave out to the reporter who interviewed him on that topic:

"Stand in an easy position, with feet slightly apart, to maintain balance under all conditions

"Allow the arm, from the shoulder to the elbow, to rest along the body, thereby conserving strength.

"Bend the arm upward at the elbow, with the fingers separated slightly, so they cannot be seized.

"Grasp the other fellow's hand first, clasping it firmly but not too hard, at the same time moving the arm outward at the shoulder, gently leading the caller along.

"Avoid saying anything except such pleasantries as "Glad to meet you" and "How do you do?" to limit the possibility of return remarks which might invite the caller to stop and talk, thereby delaying the line."

Hughes' System.

Hughes declined to talk on the subject, but a journalist has written the following definite impressions gained from months of observing the tactics of the former judge:

"There is a carefully calculated method in Mr. Hughes' finger-gripping exercises. He always arranges to have the crowds come from the left toward the right, so the swing of his arm as he grips the hand brings the object of the handshake in front of him, and before he knows it, past him.

"The nominee always grips the other man's hand—for then he is master of the situation and when he releases the grip the owner of the hand has nothing to do but move on.

"He carries his gospel of efficiency even into the atmosphere of receptions, believing that a carelessly accomplished handshake is a lost handshake, which can never be recovered."

All Handshaking Alike.

The handshaking carried out on campaigning tours is no different from that of public receptions or the ballroom. The object in each case is personal contact. The handshake by a presidential candidate is generally considered by students of politics to be a vote secured.

The only difference between ordinary reception handshaking and the campaign brand is the number of hands shaken and the various kinds of grips. There are always hand crushers in the crowd. Men proud of their ability to grab fingers and jamb them together until the bones crackle. The inexperienced man who meets these "squashers" generally casts an anxious glance downward to see if any fingers have fallen off.

The percentage of these "strong men" is just enough to make candidates fear for the preservation of the extremity of their right arm if not protected by a system. Public men say they can generally tell when a "crusher" is coming by the look in his eye. They are always on the lookout for him. And the nugget of their preparedness is—"Always grab the other fellow's hand first."

Most persons do not realize it, or, if they do, say nothing about it, but almost invariably the public man who is greeted does the handshaking. The experienced fingers clasp the hand that is inexperienced.

There are other features of the scientific formula, which is followed by such public men as President Wilson, Mr. Hughes, Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Mr. Bryan, Champ Clark and others. One is to array those who are to be received in a long line and keep that line MOVING.

The handshaker almost always can regulate the speed of the line. Usually he facilitates its forward march with a gentle pull on every hand that comes his way. At the same time the grip is relinquished and the person whose hand has been shaken hurries on without time to think it over.

Keep the Line Moving.

Mr. Wilson, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft under favorable conditions are able to shake hands with from forty-five to sixty persons a minute. On such occasions the line moves at an easy walking gait with no hitches. The person whose hand is shaken goes right along without stopping. He never had a chance to say more than "How d' do?" or maybe only "How——" It's one of the rules of long distance handshakers never to engage in conversation with those who are passing. If a personal friend is in line he can be seen later. But there must be no delay in the general battle front.

Mr. Roosevelt is recognized as one of the most accomplished handshakers in the country. He invariably grins as the line passes, compelling the person being received to look into his face, and not at his hand. This facilitates the handshaking, as the individual pays minimum attention to the clasp. Mr. Roosevelt, the last year he was in the white house, shook hands with nine thousand persons in three hours at a New Year's reception.

Mr. Wilson also is a skilled handshaker. He is wiry and quick to keep a line moving rapidly even under unfavorable conditions. To shake hands with 1,500 persons before starting to work in the white house is a mere incident for Mr. Wilson. Not long ago at Columbus, O., he shook hands with upward of 6,000 persons in two hours.

Mr. Hughes on his campaign trips is shaking hands with several thousand persons a day in addition to making speeches.

BUYS $5,000 WORTH OF NEW MACHINERY

Five thousand dollars was expended by the Fort Wayne school board Friday morning for new machinery for the machine shop of the vocational school. The contract for the new equipment was closed at a special meeting of the board Friday morning with a representative of the Vonnegut Machine company of Indianapolis.

The new machinery is all modern and will be shipped to this city as soon as the order can be filled. The equipment will be installed at the Kerr Murray plant, where the machine shop of the vocational school is conducted.

The enrollment in all the classes of the vocational school is large and with the new equipment for the machine shop on its way should mean a larger enrollment in this department.

CITY SCHOOLS OBSERVE INDIANA POET'S DAY

Indiana's greatest poet, James Whitcomb Riley, was remembered in all the public schools of the city, Friday. This is the day set aside by the schools of the state at which time honor and tribute is paid to the poet of Hoosierdom. It is known as James Whitcomb Riley's day. In a few of the schools of the city, programs were rendered in the afternoon, while many of the teachers read the life of the Indian poet to the scholars and recited many of his interesting and pleasing poems to the children. The day was observed in the public schools throughout the entire state.

PRICES ON HOGS AND GRAINS UNCHANGED

Friday Was Dull Day on Fort Wayne Markets—Receipts Light.

There was nothing "doing" in the hog and grain markets Friday, the two markets which have created the greatest commotion in trade centers for the past two weeks. While hog prices took an awful drop, wheat prices kept rising. Friday, however, both were moving over level territory. Indications are, however, that they will both soon resume their former courses. Wheat prices promise to hit the highest spot ever while hogs are going the other way.

Friday was an exceptionally dull day on all the local markets and receipts were very light. Only a few loads of grain appeared on the wholesale street market and elevator men report but light receipts. Flour prices took their advance as predicted today.

Farmers throughout the county are busy husking their corn. A large amount of the corn is being husked from the stalks as it stands in the field. The corn fodder will be very scare and what there is of it is poor. Reports from farmers, however, bear out the statement that the corn crop will be good.

Egg prices remain the same but are very unrestful and it is possible that in a few days they will slip up a few more notches.

THE MARKETS.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Bearish reports from Argentina had a depressing effect on the wheat marke here today. It was said that Argentine weather conditions had become unsettled and that showers were expected, whereas heretofore no sign had been reported of a break up of the drought. Opening prices, which ranged from 1c decline to ½c advance, with December at $1.59¼ to $1.60 and May at $1.58¾ to $1.60, were followed by a material setback all around, but then something of a rally.

The close was heavy, 2⅛c to 5⅜c net lower, with December at $1.57⅝ and May at $1.57⅛@1.57⅜.

Corn eased off with wheat. Central Illinois reports indicated a big early movement of the new crop. After opening ⅜c down to ¼c up, the market underwent considerable of a sag and then made a good recovery.

The close was weak at 5⅛c to 1⅜c under yesterday's finish.

Improved expor tcall gave some firmness to ats

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 6.—Several gains, including several new maximums, were scored in the diversified dealings of today's early trading, Central Leather rising over four points to 83¾ and Beet Sugar a point to par. American Zinc was another strong issue, gaining, 3½ points, with one or more for Butte and Superior, Studebaker, Westinghouse, Railway Steel Springs and Linseed preferred. The feature of the railway list which inclined towards irregularity, was Denver and Rio Grande preferred at a gain of 2½ points on unusually large offerings. Leading rails and other standard issues were at moderate recessions from yesterday's final prices.

The market's remarkable breadth may be judged from the fact that over 250 distinct issues changed hands in the first half hour, establishing a record for many years. Among other notably strong features of the forenoon were Hide and Leather preferred, Sloss-Sheffield Steel the Chemical and Fretilizer shares and a large assortment of unclassified stocks. For a brief time rails gave promise of asserting their recent prominence and strength but the movement in that quarter underwent speedy reversal.

United States Steel also denoted renewed pressure. Further irregularity prevailed at noon. Bonds were strong.

DREAMS COME TRUE THROUGH BABY BONDS

Many a young man starts his career with many high aspirations, which are only ruined by spendthrift habits, eventually leading to a hand-to-mouth existence. However, if extravagant habits are checked by a determination to save a fixed sum each week or month and the savings thus effected invested in some sound security such as Baby Bonds, the original goal becomes not only possible but probable.

Baby Bonds come in $10 denominations, are secured by first mortgages on local real estate and bear six per cent. interest. There are also some $500 bonds with the same rate of interest and having the same security. For further information see the Wildwood Sales company, Shoaff building.

PRESIDENT VISITS CITY SECOND TIME

Chief Executive and Mrs. Wilson Pass Through Ft. Wayne at 3:50 O'clock.

President Wilson made Fort Wayne a second visit Friday afternoon at 3:50 o'clock. He is returning to Shadow Lawn, the summer white house, from Omaha, Neb., where he spoke Thursday evening.

The president, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, made the return trip in a special train running over the Pennsylvania lines as second section of the Broadway limited, ..o. 28. The train was scheduled to stop here for five minutes.

The president is following the same rule on the return trip as he did on his way to Omaha. He is making no political speeches on the road. On the trip to Omaha Mr. and Mrs. Wilson rode in a special car attached to a regular train as far as Chicago. The entire return trip, however, is being made in a special train.

NOTED SUFFRAGIST IS OUT FOR WILSON

ELIZABETH GLENDOWER EVANS.

Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans, of Boston, member of the Massachusetts Commission which was the first in the United States to investigate women's wages, and which recommended a Minimum Wage Law, has declared herself as strongly in favor of the re-election of Woodrow Wilson. Mrs. Evans says he has "made good."

"And those who have a contract with the people for social justice," she declares, "should be the ones above all others to vote him a continued lease of office."

Mrs. Evans, Suffragist, believes that universal Woman Suffrage will be attained more rapidly by the passage of a Federal Amendment than by the so-called "State method." "Of course," says Mrs. Evans, "if the claims that Mr. Hughes' election would secure the passage of the Susan B. Anthony Amendment through Congress could be substantiated, this would weigh heavily with most suffragists. But such a claim is to distort facts; it carries with it no promise of performance.

"The Progressives should see that the Democratic party under President Wilson's masterly leadership has proved a real instrument of the popular will."

WATER SUPPLY SYSTEMS OF AMERICAN CITIES

Decline in Typhoid Death Rate Follows Improvement in Water Supply.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—A report under the title "General Statistics of Cities, 1915," recently issued by the census bureau, brings out in a striking manner the progress made by many American cities during a little more than a decade in respect to the improvement of their water supply. Of the 204 cities having more than 30,000 inhabitants in the fiscal year 1914-15, 155, or 76 per cent, owned their water supply systems. Seventy-three of these cities were operating purification plants in that year, and of this number 61 had either built or improved and enlarged their plants since 1903.

During this same period there has been throughout the country a remarkable decrease in the death rate due to typhoid fever. Although this decrease has taken place in both urban and rural localities, it is noteworthy that in most of the large cities which have recently built or improved and enlarged their purification plants the decline has been greater—in some cases very much greater—than the average decline elsewhere. For example, in Cleveland the typhoid death rate fell from 111 per 100,000 population in 1903 to 8.1 in 1914; in Philadelphia, from 72.3 to 7.6; in Pittsburg, from 132.7 to 15; in Cincinnati, from 42.2 to 6.2; in Chicago, from 32.5 to 6.6; in St. Louis, from 52.6 to 12; in Washington, D. C., from 48.5 to 11.9; in Minneapolis, from 41.1 to 12.5, and in New York city, from 17.1 to 6.3.

The history of the purification of water for public use dates from 1829, when some filter beds were used in connection with the water supply of London, England; but the discovery that slow sand filteration not only removed inorganic matter, turbidity, color, taste, odor, etc.—acting merely as a strainer—but also removed nearly all the bacteria, was not made until about sixty years later.

The first purification plant constructed in the United States was put in operation in Washington, D. C., in 1853. This was of the "sedimentation" type, which depends upon the force of gravity to carry down and deposit the clay and silt. Similar plants were installed in Louisville, Ky., in 1879; Council Bluffs, Iowa, in 1883; Dallas, Tex., in 1889, and Omaha, Neb., and Oshkosh, Wis., in 1890.

In the Omaha plant sedimentation was combined with coagulation, the latter process consisting in the introduction into the water of some chemical, usually sulphate of alumina, through the action of which the impurities are carried to the bottom. The first plant employing mechanical filteration was installed at Oshkosh, Wis., in 1890. This process, like that of slow sand filtration, depends upon freeing the water from impurities by straining it through sand, but the straining is accelerated by the use of agitating or stirring machinery. From 1892 to 1899, inclusive, purification plants, each involving one or more of these four processes—slow sand filteration, sedimentation, coagulation and mechanical filtration—were installed in ten other cities of more than 30,000 inhabitants.

Chemical Sterilization.

In 1900 a plant for the purification of water by chemical sterilization was built at Mobile, Ala. This process consists in the addition to the water of various chemicals which either kill the bacteria or make it possible to remove them by subsidence or filtration. From 1905 to 1914, inclusive, chemical sterilization plants were built in forty other cities of over 30,000, and at the present time more than half of the municipally owned water supply systems having purification plants are using this method, either exclusively or in combination with one or more of the other processes.

Of the 73 cities employing purification systems, sixty obtain their water supply, wholly or in part, from rivers and other streams, twelve from lakes and one [illegible] Neb., from wells.

Cost of Water Supply Plants.

The growing solicitude for the purity and adequacy of the water supply is further indicated by the very considerable increase which has taken place during recent years in the amount invested in municipal water supply plants. The total capital invested in these plants in 1903-4, in the 105 cities of over 30,000 which owned, either wholly or in part and operated their water systems, and for which data are available, was, in round numbers, $513,000,000, representing a per capita investment of approximately $29. In the fiscal year 1914-15 the number of such cities owning their plants had increased to 155, the total investment to $1,071,000,000, and the per capita investment to approximately $38. The increase in the per capita investment during the eleven years thus amounted to 31 per cent.

While it is, of course, quite true that an adequate supply of pure water can be provided for one city at a far less per capita cost than for another, by reason of differences in the construction problems involved or in the nature of the sources from which the water is obtained, the fact of prime significance brought out by the report is that an efficient system is now regarded by most cities as an economic necessity and hence is acquired, regardless of the cost.

MAY SOON ABOLISH THE EXPERT COACH

Highly Paid Director of College Athletics is Doomed.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 6.—The movement to abolish the system of athletic coaching by highly paid experts took definite form here today with the publication of the report of the special committee in charge of Yale athletics. This report signed by Robert M. Corwin, as chairman of the committee, asserts that "unless Yale can, from her own resources, graduate and under graduate, develop her teams without such artificial stimulants so that she can reasonably compete with her rivals, it would be best to eliminate inter-collegiate athletics altogether under the dawn of an era of reasonableness in such things."

The committee declares that the budget for Yale football coaching for one year alone is considerable and this money is expended in the employment of a small number of men for only a few weeks, while the expenses of the coaching of the crew are proportionately large.

"The intensity of this rivalry, if unchecked, may so increase as to make inter-collegiate athletics an unprofitable scramble for the raising of huge sums of money for the payment of the disproportionate salaries demanded by expert coaches," add the committee. "It may be urged that Yale cannot forego such advantages unless he rivals follow her example, but present practices must, it would seem, lead to still greater lengths of extravagance and absurdity."

MANY INNOCENT ONES INVOLVED IN CRIME

Warrants Out in $10,000 Swindling Operation at Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 6.—Warrants issued by the state's attorney's office are out today for the alleged perpetrators of a swindle charged to the so-called blackmail syndicate wherein $10,000 was obtained. Samuel P. Parmly, a capitalist, a title and trust company, two lawyers and a real estate dealer, are involved in the transaction, though innocent of its purport.

Agents are looking for a man who claimed to be James Chipman or James D. Kirkland, an inventor of an "electric fly screen," and his wife. According to the state's attorney's office this woman appeared at the office of the attorney and asked him to dispose of a trust deed for $10,000 which she said her husband, the inventor, had received from Parmly for his patent rights to the "electric fly screen," which she claimed would electrocute flies. She said Mrs. Parmly had befriended her husband, who was in financial straits.

In the course of negotiations it is charged "Doc" Donahue, an alleged member of the blackmail syndicate, impersonated Mr. Parmly with the result that the money was paid over by the real estate dealer to the couple and they disappeared. The title and trust company is said to have guaranteed the trust deed supposed to have been made by Mrs. Parmly, accepting the document as genuine. Mr. Parmly denied that he had issued such a deed.

WORKS BOARD PASSES ON NINE SIDEWALKS

Two Proposed Improvements Are Defeated by Remonstrance.

Bids will be let for building nine cement sidewalks, the board of public works decided Thursday night. The walks, to be made of cement, are to be located as follows: On the east side of Jackson street, from Lavina street to the Chipman addition; on the south side of Walnut street, from Fairfield avenue to Oakley street; on the east side of South Wayne avenue, from Organ avenue to Branning street; on the east side of Beaver avenue, from Federal avenue to Rudisill avenue; on the north side of Greenlawn avenue, from Koch street to Hench street; on both sides of Leith street, from Calhoun street to Hoagland avenue; on the south side of Grace street, from Fox avenue to Broadway; on both sides of Grant avenue, from Washington street to Maumee avenue; on the west side of Lantz avenue, from Tennessee avenue to Delaware avenue.

Hancock avenue will not be graded from Maumee avenue to McDonald street, because a remonstrance against the grading was presented to the board, signed by the majority of the property owners along the avenue. All action on building cement sidewalks on both sides of Jones street, from Rockhill street to Nelson street, was rescinded for the same reason.

Assessment rolls were confirmed for walks on the west side of Harrison street, from Main street to Pearl street, and on both sides of Harrison street, from First street to the alley north. Remonstrance against paving the alley south of Creighton avenue, from Fox avenue to Miner street, was overruled.

Plat for the Wiebke addition, in South Fort Wayne, near Rudisill boulevard, was adopted. Petition for an arch light at the intersection of Washington and Walter streets was placed on file.

NEW YORK WOMEN FIGHT POLICE IN CAR STRIKE

Crowd of 300, Spurred on by "Mother" Jones, Stages Lively Riot.

New York, Oct. 6.—Spurred on by the exhortations of "Mother" Jones, labor agitator, 300 wives and women relatives of striking street car men battled with the police late yesterday afternoon in the most serious riot since the walkout on the traction lines began a month ago. Nightsticks were swung right and left by the police and many of the women were bruised. Scores of the rioters carried babies in their arms.

A crowd of strikers, who had congregated around the uptown hall where the meeting addressed by "Mother" Jones was held, entered the fray on the side of the women and was driving back the few patrolmen on the scene when an automobile load of blue-coated reinforcements arrived. The reserves plunged into the midst of the struggling mob and wielded their clubs without mercy. When the rioters finally fled they left nine prisoners—six women and three men—in the hands of the police.

The trouble began when the women poured out of the hall where "Mother" Jones had exhorted them to "get the 'scabs' off the cars."

"You are too sentimental," she had cried, "staying at home thinking of dress and trinkets when you ought to be out raising hell."

Trooping into the street, the women hooted and jeered at crosstown cars in Eighty-sixth street. Suddenly a chunk of asphalt was hurled through the window of a car halted by a large automobile truck. This seemed the signal for a general attack on the car, and in less than a minute every window was shattered. A patrolman who was on strike duty escorted the forty or fifty passengers into the street and then charged alone into the crowd of jeering women. He was helpless, however, until assistance arrived.

READY TO FIGHT, BUT CAUSE MUST BE JUST

President is Given Tremendous Ovation by Crowds at Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 6.—President Wilson discussed the European war, peace and American business in three speeches here yesterday.

He declared America is as ready to fight as any nation in the world, but that its cause must be just.

After the war, he said, this nation must join a league of nations to preserve the peace of the world.

Seldom before has the president received such an uproar of cheering as greeted him from the crowds of people packing the Omaha auditorium last night. The applause was ear-splitting. He rose several times and bowed, smiling broadly. Calls of "three cheers for our next president," were heard.

The majority of the crowd were men, but many women were present. A great crowd packed the streets outside. For several minutes there were such calls as "Who kept us out of war?—Wilson." "Who prevented the strike?—Wilson." "Who saved the nation?—Wilson."

Governor Morehead, of Nebraska, introduced the president. Every mention of Mr. Wilson's name evoked applause.

"It would be very difficult to do justice to an occasion of this kind," began the president. He spoke of the importance of the west, mentioning Nebraska particularly, and praised the people who came from Europe to seek freedom. "The doors of the United States are open to America. We must be ready to defend them."

The United States, he said, were built to be kept open, not to be closed. He paid tribute to the western pioneers.

"It is very important," he said, "that the statesmen of other nations should understand America. We have held off from the conflagration in Europe because we wanted to play a different part."

The causes of the European war, the president said, are not plainly known.

"But Europe should understand us," he said. "We are holding off because when we use the force of this nation we want to know what we are using it for.

"There is as much fight in America as in any nation in the world.

"We want always to hold the force of America to fight for the rights of mankind, not for the rights of property. But in fighting for these things we should know what the conditions are. We must have absolute Allegiance to America. We must be ready to defend the rights of humanity as we can. The rights of humanity are the essence of freedom.

"We want all the world to know that we are ready to use all force to maintain peace among mankind. The starting of wars can never again be the private concern of any one nation. We must use all force, moral and physical, to uphold a league of nations, to uphold the peace of the world."

The president was cheered during the day by big crowds. The size of the crowds and the enthusiasm shown far exceeded anything he has experienced since his inauguration.

Attracted here for the celebration of Nebraska's fiftieth anniversary, thousands of people from nearby cities and states packed Omaha's streets and shouted frantically every time Mr. Wilson appeared. It was an impressive demonstration which greatly pleased the president and his political advisers.

MOORE'S Combination Range

No Parts to Change

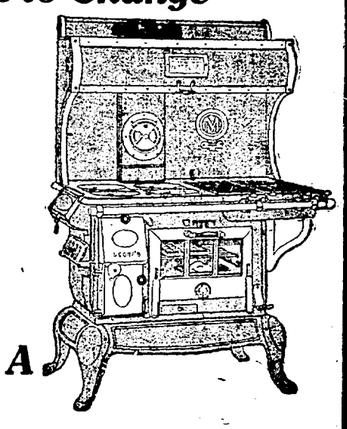
To Last a Life Time



The Benefits of A Coal or Gas

Combination Range like this are apparent these cool mornings. You don't feel like starting the furnace just yet, but the kitchen is too cold to work in. You need a fire of some kind. All right. A few sticks of wood or a shovel of coal will take the chill off in a jiffy. Then when the house gets warm yau can switch over to gas. In fact, you can follow this program all winter. Not until you get a Moore's Combination Range in your home will you realize how easy it is to have.

A Cool Kitchen When You Want It-- A Warm Kitchen When You Need It

A Moore's Combination Cast Range takes up only half the room that two stoves would require. (Where will you find a kitchen these days large enough for two stoves?) And it means only half the work to keep it clean. In this age of modern efficiency a Moore's Combination Range is a necessity. Don't overlook the fact that the cost is very little greater for this TWO-IN-ONE Stove than the cost of a Gas Range or Coal Range. Then it's so easy to own one.

TEACH CHILDREN TO PLAY, SAY EXPERTS

They Point Way to Rid the Nation of the Boy Bandit.

(By Honor Fanning.)

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 4.—Teach the youngsters to play "pum pum pull-away" and we will have fewer boy bandits and sickly children in our big cities!

This is the message the International Recreation congress will give parents and teachers of the nation when the congress meets here this week.

"Children have forgotten the old-fashioned, vigorous, body-building games of "pum pum pull-away" and "I spy," which kept youngsters of twenty-five years ago lively and sturdy—kept them out of the dark alleys and away from crap games, kept them bright-eyed and healthy," says Charles F. Weller, of Chicago, a pioneer in the playground movement and associate secretary of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

"The child who has forgotten how to play, and has no place to try to play, is the child that falls victim to disease and crime."

The "back to play" movement is only ten years old, but the playground association has established supervised playgrounds in 432 cities.

Last year more than $4,000,000 was spent for playgrounds. More than 1,000 new playgrounds were opened in the last two years. In many cities and small towns there are playgrounds without formal supervision.

El Paso, Texas, appropriated $10,000 city funds for playgrounds; Athens, Ohio, has a five-acre playground; in Memphis, Minneapolis—in every section of the country teachers, club women and mayors are helping young America regain his lost heritage—the playground.

Games that were played in the pastures and big back yards before the modern flat and tenement robbed children of their playgrounds will be discussed at the congress.

"Not every child of that day was an 'angel child,'" says a playground enthusiast, "but at least there were no 'boy bandits,' no 'baby dope fiends,' fewer delinquent girls and fewer children dying of tuberculosis."

"We are not only helping children to learn what the big cities have taught them to forget, but we are appealing to grown-ups to use their leisure time in some way that goes to the construction of character; we want them to be active and happy, not idle and miserable; to use time rather than waste leisure." says Secretary Weller.

Alonzo Ingalls, of Denmark, Me., is seventy-seven years old, but he had never seen the ocean or a trolley car until he paid a visit to Old Orchard and Saco a few days ago.

Until his recent retirement, Dr. Loomis Pomeroy Haskell, a native of Bangor, Me., age ninety, was the oldest practicing dentist in the United States, having been in practice seventy years.

CHILDREN WITNESSES IN CASE OF FATHER CHARGED WITH KILLING MOTHER.

Mrs. McDaniels, who was murdered; the three McDaniels children—upper right, Odell, 14; lower left, Helen, 10; lower right, Marion, 6.

The grand jury of Buchanan county, Missouri, investigating the case of Oscar McDaniels, county prosecutor, charged with the murder of his wife, has summoned McDaniels' three children as witnesses.

It is said the children were in the McDaniels home at St. Joseph, Mo., the night their father claims he found his wife bruised and dying. Testimony given by the children, if it should help convict their father and result in his sentence to death, will make them orphans.

McDaniels, for several months, aided county officials trying to solve the murder. He said he received threatening letters from men he, as prosecutor, had sent to jail. The authorities charge now McDaniels may have written the letters himself to throw off suspicion.

McDaniels says he will defend his own case and prove his innocence. He asked for a speedy trial as he is a candidate for re-election in November.

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was sumitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Dreier & Meyer Drug Co.'s Sells It.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

PAUL BEFORE FELIX.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Herein I also exercise myself to have a conscience void of offense toward God and men always.—Acts 24:16.

This is a court scene, and it might be well with certain classes to introduce the lesson by describing such a gathering. The lesson occurred five days after the last lesson, and twelve days after Paul reached Jerusalem, bearing the collection for the poor. The place, Caesarea, was the Roman capital of Judea.

I. The Prisoner's Examination (vv. 1-9). In addition to the Roman governor, Felix, attired in his gorgeous official regalia, on a platform nearby, were the high priest of the Jews, in his highly colored and jeweled robes, the lawyer, Tertullus, in his Roman toga, and the elders of the Sanhedrin who had come down from Jerusalem to be witnesses against Paul. Of Tertullus it was said that, by his persuasive tongue, he could make white seem black, and could therefore more easily make it appear that Paul was "a danger to the Roman power, and not merely a turbulent and renegade Jew." The judge, Felix, was an exceptionally bad governor, who two years later was recalled by Nero to Rome. The inference of verse two is that Paul was an inciter of rebellion and robberies, but the exact charges were three-fold: (See vv. 5-6) (a) that Paul was a mover of insurrection; (b) that he was a ringleader of a sect of Nazarenes who were causing trouble in the province: and (c) that he had profaned the Jewish temple at Jerusalem. The charge of insurrection would be especially obnoxious to Felix who had just been praised for keeping peace in his dominion. That of being a leader of heresy was not serious, for the Romans had no desire to interfere between one Jewish sect and another, but it led to the last one, viz., profaning the temple. The Romans had legalized the Jewish ritual, and for Paul to profane the holy place would be a serious outrage. The weakness of Tertullus' case was that he produced no evidence to support his charges. The accusers were there, but they had no witnesses.

II. The Prisoner's Defense (vv. 10-21). Paul cheerfully made his defense, for he knew the Jews and their customs and that Felix had married a Jewess (v. 24). We might consider this defense first negatively and then positively. On the negative side, Paul answers each charge seriatim. In the first place there had not been time for him to cause an insurrection (v. 11). Going back over these days: (1) his arrival in Jerusalem (21:15); (2) his appearance before James (21:18); (3, 4, 5 and 6), the days of his vow (Ch. 21:26, 27); (7) his arrest; (8) his appearance before the Sanhedrin; (9) the conspiracy and his deliverance; (10, 11, 12 and 13) in Caesarea (See Ch. 24:1). Paul's statement showed that the whole story of his experience was fresh in the memories of both friends and foes. It was the Jews who did the stirring up. Paul answers the second charge by acknowledging (vv. 14-16) that he belonged to the Christian way of salvation, but denied that this was heresy. Paul was a true Jew and a good Pharisee, for (1) he worshiped the same God (v. 14); (2) he believed in the Jewish law and prophets. From them he knew he could prove that Jesus was the Messiah. (3) He agreed with the Pharisees (v. 15) in hope toward God, a resurrection from the dead and immortal life. Paul's life was "void of offense" toward God in heart and worship, and toward men as shown in good deeds. It was for this that he exercised himself. Literally, he worked upon the raw material, disciplining and training it. Paul answers the third charge by a simple denial that it had actually taken place, and calls for witnesses. Positively, Paul explains that he had followed the God of his fathers, that he believed in fulfilled prophecy—literally the resurrection of Jesus from the dead—that he came to Jerusalem with alms for the poor, and, as before the council, he stands upon his integrity.

III. The Judge's Delay (vv. 22-27). Felix had a "more perfect knowledge of that way." We believe he had secured this knowledge from Philip, the evangelist, and from Cornelius, the Roman centurion, both of whom lived in Caesarea. By deferring his decision, Felix avoided an outrageous injustice to Paul, and at the same time gave serious offense to the troublesome Jews who knew of his evil conduct. From verse twenty-three we see that Paul was given liberty, literally such indulgence in freedom as would be consistent with his safety. Luke, the physician, and Philip, the evangelist, visited him here, bringing food, books and letters. After a time Felix and his wife, Drusilla, sent for Paul to talk with him "concerning the faith in Christ." Drusilla was a daughter of Herod Agrippa I (vv. 12-23), and a sister of Herod II (See Ch. 26). She was a beautiful woman, much younger than Felix who was possibly about sixty years of age. She and her only child perished in the eruption of Vesuvius.

OLD FOLKS NEED "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER, BOWELS

Salts, calomel, pills act on bowels like pepper acts in nostrils.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that's can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.—Advertisement.

Lima, O., Oct. 6.—Charles Daniels, who narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of a mob of Lima citizens, last night was found guilty of having committed a criminal assault on Mrs. Vivian Baber, white, wife of John Baber, Shawnee township. The jury returned its verdict convicting Daniels on the first count of the indictment at 8:50 o'clock after being out but three hours. Three other charges, assault with criminal intent, assault and battery, and plain assault, were dismissed. Daniels accepted the verdict with a show of indifference. He was remanded to jail for three days, when sentence will be imposed unless his attorney files motion for a new trial. Maximum punishment for the crime is three to twenty years imprisonment.

TRADE WITH ICELAND? SMALL CHANCE IS SEEN

Arrival of Icelandic Vessel in New York Raises No Hopes.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—"While considerable interest was manifested in the arrival of an Icelandic vessel in the harbor of New York recently the importance of the event was sentimental rather than commercial," says a bulletin issued by the National Geographic society. "A hearty welcome was extended to the islanders whose home is on the fringe of the Artic circle, but the cordiality of their reception was due to the fact that their vessel was one of the few to arrive in this country from that land since the days of Leif and Lucky, and not to any high expectations of trade possibilities, for Iceland with its more than 40,000 square miles and a scant population of scarcely more than two persons to the mile, sends most of her meager exports, valued at $4,000,000 a year, to Denmark, and also buys most of her $3,750,000 imports from that mother country.

"The fact that Iceland is so seldom visited by tourists and is almost a 'terra incognito' to American traders has caused a false impression to obtain in this country concerning its sombre but on the whole highly intelligent people. Indeed, it has been estimated that in proportion to its population more books and papers are printed and read in this partly frozen island than in any country of continental Europe.

"When the Scandinavian sea rovers discovered Iceland about the middle of the ninth century they found a small colony of Irish Culdees in possession. During the succeeding century and a half there was a strong wave of immigration to the bleak island, and in addition to the Norse nobles and the vikings there came Queen Aud, widow of Olaf, the White king of Dublin, and numerous followers. Trade with the island underwent many cycles in succeeding centuries, being confined first to Norway, then with the smuggling merchants of Bristol, England, and later the Hanseatic towns of Germany. Finally, Denmark established a government monopoly which was in force until 1786, when all Danish subjects were permitted to enjoy trade relations. The island was opened to all nationalities in 1854, and twenty years later, when the Danes granted local government to the Icelanders, commercial life received a strong impetus.

"The chief industries of Iceland are cattle breeding and fishing, the latter activity having had a remarkable growth in the last few years. Herring which constituted the sole cargo of the ship which arrived in New York recently, is one of the principal products of the neighboring seas, but cod and train-oil and the salmon fisheries are also considerable. Other exports are live sheep, salt meat, eider down, wool, and hides. Imports include salt, cereals, metal ware, coal and various manufactured articles. Owing to the long winters, which are extremely severe, the islanders find ample time to devote to spinning, weaving and knitting at home and the tweed which they make is the chief material used for clothing. Tourists, however, find oilskins invaluable as the climate is extraordinary damp in the southern half of the island, where the capital and principal city, Reykjavik, is situated (population about 12,000).

COUNT OKUMA

Count Okuma, Japan's greatest statesman and peace advocate, has resigned as prime minister to make way for a man of bolder foreign policy. Okuma has been criticized by Japanese subjects because of his mild attitude toward China.

ONCE WERE LUXURIES, NOW ARE FORGOTTEN

Germans Not Starving, But Doing Without Much They Once Enjoyed.

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—One thing after another has disappeared so gradually from German markets since the war began that the very existence of certain luxuries and some things that were once considered necessities, has been forgotten. It was the experience of a correspondent of the Associated Press, who had been in Berlin since the war began, and for many years before, to find, upon his arrival in Stockholm, the butcher shop and grocery windows filled with food-stuffs he had seen scarcely a suggestion of in Germany for many months, and the restaurant bills of fare also served as pleasant reminders of ante-bellum days when the German restaurants, as much as those of any country, were prepared to supply a great variety of foods.

Germany is not starving, and there is no fear there that it will, but the people are doing without far more things than they realize, having become so gradually accustomed to the loss or curtailment of certain edibles. Bacon—which the correspondent had not seen in Germany for months—is plentiful here, of course; butter, lard and olive oil, seen in the grocery shops, offered a really irresistible appeal to one who had scarcely known them for so long. There were different cuts of pork; the correspondent had had a small portion of pork twice in three months. He found many kinds of bread, while the only kinds he recently knew were rye mixed with potatoes and wheat mixed with rye. There was real coffee, which one cannot obtain even in the best hotels or millionaires' homes in Germany.

The taste of French-fried potatoes was almost a new thing, for no German household has enough fat to permit indulgence in this luxury. With baskets of bread on the tables in hotels and restaurants, and no bread card required as a condition precedent to partaking, it seemed almost irregular and even wasteful. An order for macaroni brought a quantity greater than a household of two persons can obtain in Berlin for a whole week. A single order of cold meats contained more than the amount allowed per capita in Germany for a week.

What, then, it may be asked, are the Germans eating? The answer is: Bread, potatoes and other vegetables, one half-pound of meat weekly when it can be obtained, and fish, canned, fresh and smoked. The disappearance of the legumes—lentils, peas and beans—has been especially felt by the poorer people. A few beans and peas are occasionally to be had, but only a negligible quantity. Lentils, of which the Germans were very fond, disappeared in the first week of the war.

On this food, if it can be obtained, one cannot starve, but the poorer people, who either get nothing but potatoes and bread, or who do not know how to make the most of what they do get, complain of the monotony of the fare and that they are continually hungry. A number of women of this class, some weeks ago, made a small demonstration in front of the city hall of one of the municipalities of Greater Berlin, declaring that they were hungry. "You shall not be allowed to starve (verhungern.)" said the mayor, "but you will have to be hungry (hungern.)"

This is undoubtedly the spirit animating all but an insignificant number of the Germans. They are satisfied that they will not starve, and they are willing to make the sacrifice for the Fatherland implied in the mayor's words. And they are the better able to make this sacrifice because, as has been illustrated, they do not realize just how great it is.

THIN OR WRINKLED

Just one jar of Am-o-nized cocoa, the new beautifier, will prove that you can remove your wrinkles and fill out hollows in face or neck. Rubbed into the skin before retiring, it does its work while you sleep—nourishing the tissues back to health. Don't be thin—Don't be wrinkled! A 75c jar of Am-o-nized cocoa which you can get from any druggist will bring you a delightful surprise and make you look young, plump and attractive. Over one hundred thousand jars are now being sold daily. Everyone is praising it. Made by a special process it is the one thing that will remove wrinkles—fill out hollows in face or neck and bring real, natural color to the cheeks. Sold and recommended by first class druggists everywhere. —Advertisement. 9-29-10-6

More Gloom Than Glamour in Life of Noted Movie Star, Says Miss Hansen

BY GERTRUDE M. PRICE.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 1.—"Public opinion to the contrary notwithstanding, there's lots more gloom than glamour in the life of a moving picture star."

In so fashion does lovely Juanita Hansen puncture the popular conception of the rosy-hued job of the fairy-favored "movies-ess."

She'll be remembered in the star part of the "Secret of the Submarine," for which she thinks she did about every "stunt" any human could be called upon to perform.

Let's enumerate some of the little inconveniences which go along with the position that thousands of girls are hoping and praying to be able to annex.

To begin with, there are no regular hours for the girl in the pictures. She may get a 4 a. m. call and be "on the job" until midnight. Or she may get a noon call and get back to the studio at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

A movie girl can't make social engagements unless she includes the proviso "if I'm not working," because routine is an unknown quantity in filmmaking. There's no special beginning or quitting time.

The girl who aspires to play star roles is supposed to have every accomplishment at her finger-tips or "toe-tips," as the case may be. If she can't swim today and there's a part for her to play tomorrow in which swimming is required, she is expected to be in swimming trim by that date.

"One of the most exasperating features of star work of any moving picture player's work," said Miss Hansen, "is the wardrobe. Men are the darlingest creatures living. But somehow or other they grew up without capturing one bit of consideration, it seems.

"Now, for instance, a girl will return about 7 o'clock from a hard day's outdoor scene-taking with a mind set upon a quiet, restful evening and a general recuperation for the next day's duties. She hasn't any more than closed the dressing room door behind her than a message comes from her director, which reads something like this: 'Be ready for early call tomorrow morning. Good part. For wardrobe suggest just neat little suit latest style, one indoor frock and an evening dress. Leave the studio at 8 a. m.'

It's Got to Be Done.

"Of course, all the stores are closed and where in the world do you suppose one is going to get all these clothes? Well, anyway, they must be had. So it's no uncommon thing to see 'Miss Star' and some of her friends sitting up a good share of the night 'rigging up' her next day's wardorbe."

Miss Hansen is noted for her dare-devil stuff.

"It's not the easiest thing in the world," she explained, "to be whisked to an out-of-the-way location for a precipice scene, for instance, take the fall two or three times and then find the machine is out of commission and you must walk to the next location or waste several hours of good sunshine. Probably there is a hurry call on this play and you can't even wait for a bite of lunch. At the end of the day you go back to the studio with visions of a long rest and a late rising hour the next day. But at the doorway you read your name on the bulletin board, beside an early morning call.

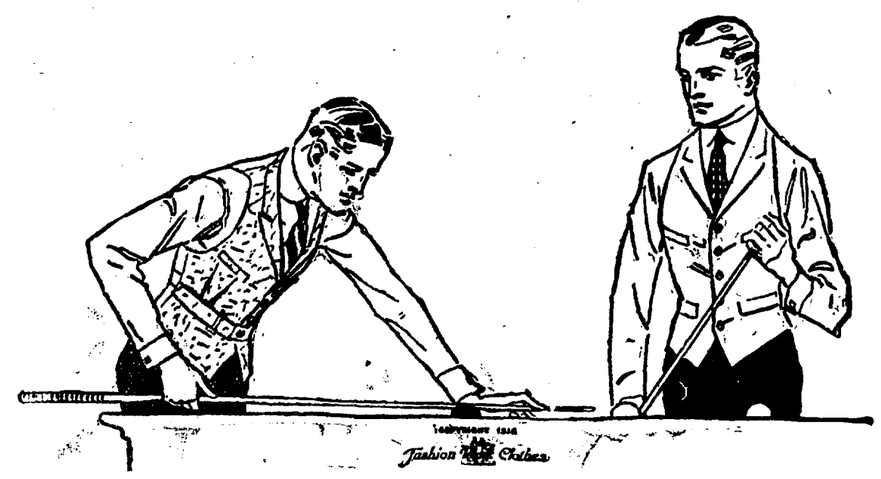
Serials Are Awful.

"One of the greatest hardships I know happens to some folks who are playing serials. For instance, at the beginning of the picture the star is quite thin and ethereal-looking and looks her part. But roughing it and outdoor life cause her to put on weight; despite her troubles. And the first thing she knows, she's getting fat and out of charactre. Nothing for her to do but DIET! Now wouldn't that shock you? As if she didn't have enough trouble without having to curtail her simple menu.

"I think every girl gets enough real pleasure out of her work to make up for the vicissitudes. She can forget almost anything when her pay check comes around. But, sometimes, after having experienced a week or a month of hardships and real danger, she wakes up to the fact that she has been working with a 'bum' company. Collecting her salary is then a little job all its own. But thank goodness such a state of affairs is the exception rather than the rule.

"Still I want to tell you it's a strenuous job to be a movie star!"

Young Chaps "Bank" on These Clothes



THIS DRESS-UP WEEK is going to see a lot of young blood get in the game of fine clothes. STYLE, QUALITY and PRICE are the three elements with which the game is played.

BROOKLYN GIVEN BIG SEND-OFF BY ROOTERS

New York, Oct. 6.—Brooklyn gave the National league pennant winners a rousing sendoff today for the opening game of the world's series to be played in Boston tomorrow. Thousands of enthusiasts gathered at Ebbetts field long before the hour of departure of the players. In the crowd were many city officials, business men and the Brooklyn boosters, who go to Boston with the club to cheer the players to victory—or to condole them in defeat. A band led the big parade from Ebbetts field to the subway station and a multitude of fans lined up behind. Many offices and stores displayed flags, and the pennant winners were cheered by long lines of well wishers. The players leave the Grand Central station at 1 o'clock.

"We have more applications for tickets for the Brooklyn games than we can fill," said President Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn club." Applications have been pouring in from all parts of the country and as far south as Cuba."

While the players are in Boston fighting for the first two games of the series, carpenters will be busy extending the seating accommodations at the Brooklyn field. Nearly 1,500 extra box seats will be constructed for the first home game and new circus seats to accommodate 1,500 more will be erected in the left field. These will bring the capacity of the ground to about 27,000.

Members of the commission left for action this morning to meet this afternoon to clear up any doubtful questions regarding the rules for the games.

Hammond Team Plays Friars Next Sunday

The crushing defeat which the powerful Friar eleven handed the Dayton team last Sunday will not be duplicated this coming Sabbath when the Summit city aggregation clashes with the famous Hammond team, a band of pigskin chasers headed by Blocker, the great Purdue tackle, and choice of Walter Ekersall for a like position on the All-Western team. The strength of the Hammonders can be readily understood when it is known that their line averages 185 pounds, while their backfield tips the beam at 179. Minchfield and Finn, two other Purdue men, and Galvin, former halfback at Wisconsin, are a trio of classy performers who promise to throw a figurative monkey wrench into the Friar machinery.

Both teams started the season in an auspicious manner, the Friars walloping the Dayton outfit 101 to 0, while Hammond administered a bitter pill to the strong Rockford, Ill., eleven by defeating them 27 to 0.

The Friars will put in a final practice session Saturday when some new plays will be tried and the old ones reconstructed in such a way that they will be effectual against Hammond. Heinie Berger will be in the lineup Sunday, and with Dorias and Pliska will put on a little Notre Dame stuff that will be worth seeing.

Seats in the rooters' section and the Purdue alumni section are selling fast. The Purdue men will appear in a body to watch the old varsity men rip 'em up. Much interest is being taken in this game in the way of rooting and since the Hammond crowd is bringing some rooters, a live time is expected.

ALEX GROWS FAT IN ROLE OF IRON MAN.

Grover Alexander thrives on hard work! He has taken part in fifty games this season and has gained fourteen pounds. Alex came north last spring weighing 176 pounds. As the season advanced, however, the Big Ace took on flesh and he now tips the beam at 190 pounds.

Alexander does not consider it an imposition to be asked to pitch out of his turn. A man close to the Quaker marvel said yesterday:

"Alexander is one of the greatest men in baseball today. If the team begins to wabble and Moran wants a game badly he'll say to Alex: 'I guess you'd better work today, Grover,' and all Alex ever says is 'All right, Pat; any time you say.'

"He's a great man to have on a ball club. He never has broken a training rule and is moderate in his living."

LEADS ATTACK AGAINST FRIARS

FINN, QUARTERBACK.

The player seen above is Finn, quarterback on last year's Purdue varsity, and holding the same position on the Clabby A. A. eleven of Hammond this year. Finn is built after the short and stocky model, which construction, however, does not hinder him in living up to his reputation of being a gridiron speed demon.

BACK TO THE CENTRAL CIRCUIT NEXT SEASON

Fort Wayne Being Considered as League Prospect for 1917 Season.

Evidence that the Central league would like to take Fort Wayne into the fold again is beginning to turn up. Plans for next season are being made in the Central earlier than ever before, and there is little doubt that the league officials who have been visiting this city have been here to arrange to get Fort Wayne back on the circuit.

This city is ripe for a league team now, and one year's layoff showed the fans how they could miss it. There should be very little trouble getting a team lined up here for next year, and the question of support would be practically settled. The manner in which the fans turned out for semi-pro and shop league games this season should be an ample guarantee of support, it is contended.

WITH DODGER CHAMPS.

They call the Brooklyns the "Dodgers" because they shy at the trolleys, or, to make it more simple for the masses, Nell, because they shun the "jitney jockeys."

Tapping the wire on a Brooklyn fan—"Why, Bill, that bold Daubert at foist is a poil. Lookit 'im nip them wings from thoid; no chin music about it, Bud, he's a pink poil"

Casey Stengel is an unconscious comedian. Hold your seats! Don't cheer! He's not in vodeville. He's right fielder for the Flatbush Dodgers in the land of rubber plants.

The guy who published that song "There's plenty of room at the top," is dead wrong. Ask Gran'pap Robinson. He knows!

"Wheat Rises." A headline that caught our glims. If it's the Wheat we're thing about, Zach Wheat, left fielder of the Dodgers, the only way you can get a rise out of him is to serve him a piece of pit without the cheese.

Jake Daubert, first baseman of the Trolley Boys, is the curbstone tie salesman of the N. L. He can chime more chin gods about nothing than a dozen men in a penny stake pinochle game.

WILL RUTH WIN NICHE IN HALL OF FAME?

(By Harold Johnson.)

Next? Who's in line for a place in the sun and a pedestal in baseball's hall of fame. Who will be the hero of the 1916 world's series?

Another week will bring the answer. I look for Babe Ruth, the burly southpaw of the Boston Red Sox, to grab the laurel wreath and to be the worker of slab miracles who will keep for his comrades the title of monarchs of all they survey on the baseball diamond.

It's a freaky thing—this series hero honor role. You never can tell who will annex the crown. Reviewing the hectic encounters of the past it would appear that the laurel is reserved for the lowly.

John Franklin Baker, now famed as a home run swatter, was generally regarded as the "weak sister" in the Athletics' fighting front until he developed his uncanny habit of "railing" 'em over the walls.

Fickle fame overlooked Hank Gowdy until in the titular combatting of 1914 the gaunt Ohioan ran amuck and set a series batting average, yet recorded, of .545 in four games. George Rohe, a very commonplace substitute infielder, was the big star of the White Sox triumph over the Cubs in 1906. He never amounted to much as a player before or after the classic.

Bullet Joe Bush and Babe Adams were just kid hurlers on their teams, yet their efforts proved vital factors in determining the championship of the world. Fred Clarke called on Adams in three games in the 1909 series with Detroit and three times the young right-hander hurled winners. Connie Mack summoned Bush from the bench in 1913 and the kid baffled the Giants in a brilliant exhibition, though it was his first year in the big show.

Boston managers never rated Olaf Henriksen equal to the task of playing regularly in the outfield, but the pudgy little Dane copped a hero's wreath in 1912 when he unbuckled a timely pinch hit that practically won the title for the Red Sox, who also featured Joe Wood as the man of the hour.

Christy Mathewson turned the master strokes of the world series back in 1905, when he blanked the Athletics three times in succession and, almost unaided, won the world pennant for McGraw's machine. Big Bill Dineen, now umpire in the American league, was the hero of 1903 while pitching for Boston.

Frank Chance, Orval Overall, Mordecai Brown and Harry Steinfeldt, of the Cubs, were the minute men of 1907 and 1908. Jack Coombs beat the Cubs three times in 1910 and the Athletics romped to the world title. Joe Wood was the hero of 1912. Eddie Collins and Frank Baker in 1913, and Duffy Lewis and Harry Hooper in 1915.

"DUTCH" LEONARD'S THREE AMBITIONS

Remarkable Achievements of a Twenty-four-Year-Old Baseball Star.

No other pitcher in the game is more absolutely unhittable than "Dutch" Leonard, of the Red Sox, when he is feeling right. He may not be the most dependable, but he is certainly the most brilliant performer of the renowned Red Sox pitching staff, says the Baseball Magazine.

On the 29th of August Leonard was batted out of the box by the St. Louis Browns. On the 30th he shut them out without a hit. The player often forgets the vicissitudes of today in the expected triumphs of tomorrow, but if there is a swifter, more decisive transition from failure to success than to be driven from the box one day and to pitch a no-hit game the next we have never heard of it.

When "Dutch" Leonard entered the major leagues he had three ambitions. It is true he scarcely hoped to realize them, but he believed in aiming high. And he did aim high. The greatest pitcher in the world might be proud to claim any one of the trophies which Leonard set himself to attain. Now at the age of 24 he has gained them all. His three ambitions are realized, and what he will set himself to win henceforth, we can't even guess.

What were these three ambitions? First, to win a world's series game. Last fall Grover Alexander entered the series as the greatest pitcher of the year. He humbled the Red Sox in their first encounter. He met them again in the third game, a contest whose importance it would be hard to overestimate. And Leonard had his wish. He won a world's series game, not a fluky contest, but against the master pitcher of the year, and by as brilliant a piece of twirling skill as has ever been witnessed. Three hits the Phillies scored, one of them should have been classed as an error by Speaker, and uncertain support marred the first three innings, but as Leonard fairly gripped the game the Phillies had never a chance. The last eighteen men retired in order without the semblance of a hit, and finally the mighty Alexander bowed quite as much to superior pitching as to superior offensive attack and yielded the palm of victory to his invincible opponent. Leonard had his wish, a world's series victory, by as masterly a performance as the game has seen.

Another of Leonard's three secret ambitions was to prove the most effective pitcher of a season. And he did. Incidentally though, he established a record which should stand for years and may never be lowered. In 1914 he allowed but twenty-five earned runs in thirty-five games pitched. Some of these games, of course, were not for a full nine innings, but his grand average for the season was 1.01 earned runs per game.

This is the most nearly perfect average on record. The nearest it has ever been paralleled was by Walter Johnson in 1914 with a grand average of 1.09. There may be pitchers who twirl in but a few contests who could show such effectiveness, but no pitcher who has taken part in a representative number of games has ever approached that mark save Johnson only, and he did not equal it.

The third ambition of "Dutch" Leonard was to pitch a no-hit game; and, smarting by the rough treatment of the day before, he gained that third and last of his ambitions on Aug. 30.

What manner of pitcher is this who can break into a league of stars and annex three such records at the age of 24? Walter Johnson has toiled for years to pitch a no-hit game and so has Alexander, but though they came close to the mark they never could quite reach it. And to go through a season allowing an average of almost exactly one run per game is really almost too good a pitching feat to be true.

Leonard is a dark complexioned, stockily built athlete, some 5 feet 11 inches in weighing 180 pounds. He looks more like a football player than a baseball pitcher, and he is indeed an all around athlete. Twenty-four is young even in baseball. He should have at least ten years ahead, and what may not a pitcher accomplish in ten years who has already done so much at 24?

BROOKLYN CLOSES THE SEASON WITH WIN

Robins Use Substitutes and Bat Out Victory Over the Giants.

Brooklyn, Oct. 6.—The champion Brooklyns wound up the National league season here yesterday by defeating New York 7 to 5. Manager Robinson gave his regulars a workout in the game, but had his recruits filling nearly every position when it ended. Appleton, who has worked little all season, pitched fine ball throughout, although he was touched for five singles, a triple and a home run in the seventh and eighth. Tesreau and Anderson were hit hard, the latter pitching only part of the seventh. Smith finished the game and did well. The new champions leave on a special train for Boston today at 1 o'clock. They will be accompanied by several hundred fans to be known as the "Royal Brooklyn Rooters." Score: R.H.E.

RIVALS IN CLOSE RACE REQUIRE FIVE HEATS

Mabel Trask Cops From St. Frisco After Feature Event Goes Five Heats.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6.—Mabel Trask and St. Frisco continued their duel in the twenty-eighth renewal of the Transylvania stake at the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders association meeting here yesterday, Mabel Trask winning in decisive manner, though forced to allow two heats to St. Frisco. In the second heat Mabel Trask was pocketed all around the track and could pull out only in the last sixteenth, finishing third. St Frisco, in the second heat, equaled the stake record of 2:03½, made by Etowah in 1914. All events furnished hard contests, two of them going to five heats, another to four, and the last race, the 2:09 trot, being left unfinished, with Brisac and M. L. J. dividing the first two heats. M'GRAW WILL PILOT GIANTS NEXT SEASON

Has Started Plans for Next Year With President and Has Hopes.

New York, Oct. 6—John J. McGraw will continue to manage the New York National league baseball club next year, despite any reports to the contrary, says John B. Foster, secretary of the club.

"McGraw already has gone over the plans for next year with President Hempstead," said Mr. Foster, "and has high hopes of leading the New York club to a pennant. His contract with the New York club has another year to run and it is not fair to him or the club to have rumors spread that he will not be with New York next year."

Despite the roasting he gave them in the game with Brooklyn Tuesday, the players of the New York club are seeking McGraw to present to him a collection of Shakespeare's works which they had purchased before he left us. There will be no ...

FORECASTS SUCCESS FOR THE PRESIDENT

Only Independent Member of Congress Sees Wilson as Sure Victor.

BY GILSON GARDNER.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 6.—That Wilson will carry California and enough other states to be elected is the opinion of Representative William Kent, known as the one independent member of the house of representatives. Kent has voluntarily declined to run for another term; so he has no personal stake in the coming elections.

"I found the California congressman at his home in Kentfield, across the bay from San Francisco, much absorbed in giving several hundred thousand acres of his red-wood forest land to the city for a public park. This gift follows that of the famous Muir woods.

"I have not been taking an active part in the campaign," he explained "but I have made diligent inquiries of those in a position to know, and I am convinced Wilson is gaining ground every day, and if Hughes will go on doing and saying what he has been doing and saying, President Wilson's election will be a foregone conclusion.

"Of California there is no doubt. It will go for Wilson and Johnson.

"A lot of things besides Hughes' speeches are helping Wilson. First, he has labor almost solidly with him. There are more laboring men than bank presidents, and when it is made clear where their interests really lie, the consequences will be notable.

"Second comes the so-called progressive vote, the independent vote of the country. It comes pretty near to swinging the balance of power between the two old parties. The progressives realize that Wilson already has done more to carry out the social justice program than they could expect Hughes to do in eight consecutive years—yes, or aeons. They see that Wilson believes in that kind of thing, while Hughes does not.

"More surprising is the large number of former republicans getting behind a democratic president who has made good.

"Finally a third big element in the campaign is the peace sentiment. Whether one agrees with it or not, there is no blinking the fact the peace feeling is very strong. In the suffrage states a great many women commend the president to the utmost for keeping the country out of war!"

"How about the visit of Justice Hughes to this state?" I asked.

"A terrible frost; everybody conceded that."

"How about the Johnson progressives?"

"I believe most of them at heart are for Wilson. There is no Hughes enthusiasm in the Johnson camp. Whatever lip service may be rendered Hughes, the votes will be lacking at the ballot box."

Discussing general issues, Kent said:

"The tariff is deservedly dead. A nonpartisan commission, in continuous session, and required to report both to the president and congress, will furnish a basis for treating tariff symptoms as they reappear.

"War conditions have upset the hard and fast theory of a tariff for protection or a tariff for revenue.

"Retention of the duty on sugar was plainly a war measure for the purpose of putting the country on a more self-sustaining basis in case it should be disturbed. The same action by the democrats in the case of dyestuffs shows the president and his party will not allow a worn-out formula to stand in the way of the country's business welfare."

As to the Mexican situation, Kent prefers to trust Wilson's experience and intentions rather than to turn the thing over to Hughes, who is known to be under the influence of certain selfish interests seeking a war of conquest and possibly annexation.

Among the notable achievements of Wilson, Kent named the Alaska railroad, the promise of the president to veto the Shields water power bill, the federal reserve act and the department of agriculture's campaign against foot and mouth disease. Kent concluded:

"To me it will be a sad commentary on our form of government and on the capacity of our people if they fail to recognize the steady strong surge of progress shown in the past four years, and are turned by a foolish party appeal from the evident interest of the country, which will be the best served by the return of President Wilson to office."

INTEREST IN WORLD'S SERIES AT FEVER HEAT

Attendance at First Game Will Be Largest in History of Baseball.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 6.—Activities attendant upon the opening here tomorrow of the world series between the Brooklyn champions of the National league and the Boston American league title holders and present world champions, multiplied today. The Red Sox players at Braves field for further and sharper practice, took part in a conference which Manager Carrigan had ordered last night. It was called early for the purpose of apparently working out signals and strategy to be tested in a practice game this afternoon. The Brooklyn team made no effort to hasten its movement onto the scene of the seies curtain raising, and did not plan to arrive here until late in the day. Through its series here with the Boston Nationals the team had gained a good working knowledge of conditions at Braves field, which Mnaager Robinson thought sufficient preparation for the test. The weather man contributed his part to the arrangements with assurance of fine weather tomorrow. While it was warm today, there was a promise of slightly lower temperatures for the game and with no early indications of rain. The attendance at the first game will be the largest in the history of baseball, according to President J. J. Lanin, of the Boston Americans. After working through the night again to facilitate distribution of tickets [illegible] the [illegible] to [illegible] of the [illegible] cated in many ways, was greater by far than last year, when a record crowd of 42,300 saw the first game played in this city.

The heikht of this interest was shown by early morning crowds at Fenway park, small in number, but eager to obtain preference in the purchase of grandstand seats. The new system by which successful applicants were forced to fall in with a policy of "first come, first served," at the ticket lines instead of having certain tickets held to their order, caused some confusion yesterday and was responsible for the early lines today. Prospective speculators were under surveillance of police officers and plain clothes men who had orders to arrest any persons trading in tickets.

The time for exercising purchase privileges on reservations expires at 6 o'clock tonight, after which uncalled for tickets will be put together and prepared for a rush line sale tomorrow morning. This will be the only opportunity for persons not successful applicants by mail to obtain such seats except by private transactions at increased prices.

As far as could be learned today disposition of tickets for the game here has as yet developed no incident requiring the attention of the national commission. Members of this board arranged a meeting here late today at which plans for the series as already made were to be approved. The umpires who will act during the series discussed the application of certain rules of each league to the game generally today with discussion as to which shall obtain on each grounds.

Winona Aggies Have Brilliant Prospects

The pigskin chasers of the Winona college of agriculture are fast rounding into shape to meet the huksies of Ohio northern at Ada next Saturday.

Many new plays have been added to the already large list and under the watchful eye of Coach Stroupe the men are getting them down to perfection.

The team which will line up against Ohio northern will be practically the same as that which represented the aggies last Saturday at Earlham when the latter was held to a 6-6 tie, the only probable exceptions being Laist, who suffered a sprained ankle in the Earlham game, and Johnson, who will be out on account of a bad knee.

The men are all in perfect condition and Coach Stroupe is confident that the team will speak for itself against Ohio northern. The aggies have the strongest schedule this year they have ever faced but with such men as Capt. Koops, Mason, Garrett, Brant, Kellogg and Bieler, prospects for the most successful season in the history of the school are exceptionally bright.

With such teams as Rose Poly, Kalamazoo normal, Ohio northern and others on the schedule the Aggies will have their hands full to the end of the season but with the spirit which is prevalent in and around the college as well as on the gridiron there is the greatest confidence that the team will finish a brilliant season.

New York, Oct. 6.—The police promised more arrests today in connection with an alleged plot to kill President Theodore P. Shonts, of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, and Frank Hedley, manager of the New York Railways company.

Two men, said to be striking subway guards, arrested early this morning, were held on charges of stoning an elevated train. The police declared they had evidence that these men were involved in the supposed conspiracy, but refrained from bringing such a charge against them until others were arrested.

According to detectives, one of them who posed as a striker got evidence ten days ago that plans were being laid to kill Shonts and Hedley. The two traction officials were warned and given permission to carry pistols.

The two men now under arrest were closely watched until last night when they were seen taking part in an attack upon an elevated train. The prisoners.

GHOST WILL WALK FOR TEACHERS WEDNESDAY

First Monthly Pay Roll For Instructors Will Total $26,000.

When the ghost walks for the teachers of the Fort Wayne public schools next Wednesday the school funds of the city will be nearly $26,000 less. This is the first payroll since the opening of the schools and is the largest one for one single month in the history of the city.

The teachers of the school get a pay check every four weeks, while the other employes connected with the schools of the city get paid the first of every calendar month. This is the first pay for the teachers since last June and without a doubt it will be a welcome visitor to most of them.

Payment of salary is made by check and the secretary of the superintendent of schools has been busy for several days getting the checks ready. All three members of the school board must affix their names before the check is valid. This system of having all the members of the board sign their names to pay checks is recognized by the state board of accounts as the best in use in the state.

FIREBUG'S EFFORT AT FARMER'S HOME FAILS

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 6.—The firebug who has been terrorizing property owners at Florida, a small town near here, last night made an unsuccessful attempt to burn the residence of John Roberts, a prominent farmer.

When the Roberts family returned from a political gathering at Anderson about 11 p. m., they found their house filled with smoke and oil fumes. For some reason the saturated floors and rags, which had been placed in the house, refused to burst into flames and the residence was thus saved. Within the last year four incendiary fires have been discovered in the neighborhood, but no clue to the firebug has been found.

4-YEAR-OLD TELLS HOW TO SAVE MOTHER'S LIFE.

Shelbyville, Ind., Oct. 6.—Direction how to stop a small gasoline engine given by four-year-old Pauline Yarling, probably saved the life of Mrs. Raymond Yarling, her mother, when her hair and dress caugh in the cog wheels and belts attached to the engine. Mrs. Yarling's sister, who attempted to stop the engine, did not know what to do until the child told her. Meanwhile Mrs. Yarling was being drawn rapidly into the machinery. The engine stopped just in time to prevent serious injury to Mrs. Yarling.

REQUIRED TO TAKE STATE EXAMINATION

For the first time in the history of the state of Indiana, all supervisors of penmanship of the public schools will be required to take an examination in each county of the state the last Saturday in October. Examinations from these instructors will be given every month beginning in January, 1917.

Heretofore penmanship supervisors received their diplomas upon application at the county superintendent's office. No examination was required. However, the tune is changed and they are now in the same class as all other instructors and will be compelled to pass a successful examination before they will be given a license to teach.

WILSON HEARS SELF DEBATED

Women in Sun-Bonnets Make President Theme at Malta, Ill.

Homeward Bound, President Pleased at Reception Given Him in West.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—President Wilson paid a brief visit to Chicago today, en route from Omaha, Neb., to Long Branch, N. J., where he speaks to a delegation of independents tomorrow afternoon.

An old time "home interest" debate between women over politics was heard by the president when his train stopped for a few minutes at Malta, Ill. Most of the women wore sun-bonnets.

"I like you, but I'm going to vote for Hughes," said one woman to the president.

Immediately all of the other women began a verbal inslaught on her.

Aren't you ashamed of yourself?" one woman said.

"You know Wilson is the best man," declared another.

"Well I am going to vote for Wilson," said a third.

"Ladies, ladies!" exclaimed the president. "It's very embarrassing to me to be present at this debate."

A crowd was at the station at Clinton, Iowa, to see the president early this morning, but was disappointed because he was still in bed.

A brief stop was made at West Chicago.

The president himself expressed thorough satisfaction with the reception accorded him in the middle west. During his brief stay here the president discussed politics with several western democratic leaders. Secretary Tumulty visited democratic headquarters here

Mr. Wilson's next visit in the middle west will be on Oct. 12, when he goes to Indianapolis. He will be back in Chicago Oct. 19. Gov. Dunne told the president today he felt confident of a democratic victory in Illinois in November. He said the president was particularly strong among the women. Senator Walsh and Gov. Dunne took up with the president an invitation for him to speak to a meeting of women during his visit to Chicago, Oct. 19. Mr. Wilson said he would accept if his program can be arranged.

ON HIS WAY HOMEWARD.

Clinton, Iowa, Oct. 6.—President Wilson was on his way home through the middle west today after receiving one of the greatest demonstrations of his career in Omaha yesterday and last night. He was due in Chicago at 11:40 o'clock this morning and after a brief stop was to proceed to Long Branch, N. J. He will arrive there tomorrow morning in time for an address to independent voters at Shadow Lawn. The president's campaign managers

BANK ROBBERS ARE BUSY IN TWO STATES

Streator, Ill., Oct. 6—Robbers dynamited the State bank at Rutland, near here, today, and escaped with $6,000.

Ottawa Lake, Mich., Oct. 6.—The safe in the People's Savings bank here was blown early this morning. Band officers report that $1,200 was stolen. The cracksmen escaped in an automobile. Sheriff Fred Cronenwett has a posse in pursuit.

WOMEN THREATEN TO BURN BODY OF MAN WHO KIDNAPED LITLE GIRL.

Ethel Lethig, 12-Year-Old Girl Who Was Kidnaped.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 6.—Deputy sheriffs are closely guarding the body of Adolph Dickson, shot while fighting off a posse, from women who threatened to burn him. A posse sought Dickson, charging he kidnaped and mistreated Catherine Lethig, aged 12.

Forty women engaged in a hand-to-hand conflict with sheriffs, yelling, "Burn him! burn him!" They carried cans of kerosene and boxes of matches.

The Lethig girl is still suffering from experiences she had with Dickson after he took her to Shelbyville, Ind., where he registered at a hotel as "Edward Adams and daughter."

Toledo Men Charged With Operating Furniture Swindle.

Toledo, O., Oct. 6.—Charged with using the mails to defraud, Reinhold Merschel and Ernest W. Toadvine were to be arraigned in United States district court here today. The men, it is alleged by federal officers, did business as the Union Furniture company and had an office here.

Most of their business is said to have been transacted in Texas. It is alleged that their scheme was to send agents to form clubs of 35 and get women to sign contracts which the intended victims were unable to understand. The women would pay 50 cents a week on the understanding that there would be weekly drawings. Those whose names were drawn were not to pay any longer. Their names never were drawn and they lost their money, it is said.

It will cost the government nearly $6,000 to prosecute the case. A feature of the hearing will be the presence of thirty-two negroes from Texas, brought here as witnesses.

FIRST MEETING OF QUEST CLUB TONIGHT

The first meeting of the Quest club for the fall and winter season will be held Friday night at the Hotel Anthony when F. H. Arens, of Babson's statistical organization, will be the speaker. His subject will be "The Real Causes of Prosperity and Depression."

John E. Lathrope, who is directing the city planning exhibit in Fort Wayne, will attend the banquet of the Quest club and make a talk on the city planning exhibit which is to open Saturday in the lower lobby of the court house and last for six days. Many of the commercial bodies of Fort Wayne have taken much interest in the city planning exhibit and the Quest club is one of them.

LIST OF DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS FOR TONIGHT

Two democratic meetings are scheduled for tonight. Frank R. Dulin and W. H. Reed will speak at the Aboite school house, and Hon. J. M. Robinson and Frank A. Emrick at Lafayette Center.

FIRE BUG TWICE APPLIED HIS TORCH

Second Attempt Burns the House With $2,000 Property Loss.

The gray frame house at 748 Riverside avenue had been the subject of neighborhood gossip for many months. Police had the place under surveillance at one time. It had stood deserted on the bank of the St. Joe river for a few days. Soon it was to be occupied again.

Firemen were called there at nine o'clock Thursday night to put out a fire, which started mysteriously in the basement of the big gray house. George Williams, colored, said he was sitting on his front porch, next door, when he saw the glow from the growing flame. He called firemen. The blaze was speedily extinguished before much damage was done.

The firemen had just returned to the station and were preparing to retire when a second call came from the same neighborhood. The same house was on fire again. This time the blaze was well under way. Fire leaped from three parts of the building. Firemen were able to save but little of the structure. Loss is estimated at $2,000. Louis Noble was owner of the property.

Firemen and police are working on the theory that the house was purposely fired.

BIG SHORTAGE SEEN IN INDIANA APPLES

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Indiana apple crop this year will be about 15 per cent of what it was last year, according to an estimate made by F. N. Wallace, state entomologist, based on reports he has received at his office in the state house. He says that the shortage is due to several causes. Among them were the cold rains at the time the trees were in blossom, followed by lack of pollination. Many fruit growers neglected to spray their orchards, it is said, which also had its effect in cutting down the crop.

The other enemies of a good crop appeared during the year and helped cut down the yield materially. They were what is known as the lesser apple worm, and the apple scab.

One reason given by some for not spraying this year was that last year they did so, and when the crops were picked they learned some of their neighbors, who had not sprayed their trees, had crops equally as good. This year many "took a chance," it is said.

While the entente forces holding the center of the Macedonian front remain inert, both flanks continue vigorously on the aggressive.

Today's reports indicate a weakening of the Bulgarian resistance to the British pressure on the eastern end of the line, beyond the Struma. Here the Bulgarians have evacuated Nevolyen, which has been occupied by the British and are reported on the retreat.

Previous offensive movements by the British east of the Struma have not been followed up vigorously. In the present operation, however, the British forces have withstood numerous Bulgarian counter attacks and the consolidation of all the ground gained is now reported.

Sofia again reports the failure of Russian and Rumanian attempts to push back Field Marshal von Mackensen's line at Dobrudja. The complete clearing of the southern bank of the Danube of the Rumanians who recently crossed the river near Bahovo also is announced.

Attacks by the British on the Somme front have gained them ground along the Pozieres-Bapaume road, according to London official statement. A further inroad was made into the German lines northeast of Eaucourt l'Abbaye.

Only artillery activity on the French section of the Somme front is reported in today's war office bulletin from Paris.

British raiders have been active in both the Lille and the Lens region. Whether these raids on the German line have more than local significance is not apparent. In operations in the Loos and Amentieres districts, included within this area of activity, gas was discharged from the British trenches.

The German crown prince has resumed active hostilities at Verdun; Paris announces. His guns have opened up a heavy fire on the Cote du Poivre, or Pepper Hill, north of the fortress, while elsewhere in the Verdun region the artillery is notably busy.

London, Oct. 6.—The British force which recently crossed to the eastern bank of the Struma river on the Macedonian front has occupied the village of Nevolyen, it was announced officially today.

The announcement follows: "On the Struma front yesterday and on the preceding night the enemy showed no activity. Our troops have now consolidated all the ground gained. The total number of prisoners captured in the recent operations now amounts to three officers and 339 men.

"This morning our artillery commenced a bombardment of Nevolyen, but after a short time the enemy was seen evacuating the town and it was occupied by us without loss."

On the Somme Front.

The British last night pushed forward their line northeast of Eaucourt l'Abbaye on the Somme front, it was announced officially today. "During the night there was considerable artillery activity on our front, south of the Ancre," the statement says. "Gas was discharged by us east of Loos and Armitieres. Three raiding parties successfully entered the enemy trenches in the Loos area and two south of Arras."

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—Subjected to the third degree at detective headquarters for hours, Millie De Marco, the alleged 19-year-old girl chief of a band of robbers who yesterday held up the automobile of A. J. Rider, president of the New Jersey Cranberry Growers association, at Atsion, N. J., a desolate hamlet ten miles from Hammonton, wounded him, his daughter and another man and killed his brother, Henry D. Rider, of Howell, Mich., made damaging admissions at noon today, according to Captain Tate of the detective bureau.

The girl admitted that she and three men companions had motored from this city and were at Atsion, N. J., at the time of the shooting. She admitted she had heard several shots after the chauffeur of the automobile had stopped his car not far from the spot where a number of men said to have been masked held up Rider's car in an attempt to steal the pay roll of $5,000 being taken to the 300 employes at Rider's cranberry bogs.

Guiseppe Russo, an intimate friend of the De Marco girl, the police say; Frank Vessela, the chauffeur, and Frank Ladona, three other prisoners held there in connection with the crime, were similarly grilled today and admitted they had taken an early morning ride from this city and Hammonton. They also admitted they had been at the spot indicated by the De Marco girl.

The De Marco girl was seen near the home of the Riders yesterday shortly before the murderous hold-up. Rider and his daughter, Mrs. Elsie Smathers, who valiantly drove the automobile after she had been wounded, and James N. Rigby, who also occupied a seat in the Rider car at the time of the attack, are in the Jefferson hospital, this city. Their condition today was hopeful and physicians said they would recover.

None of the men under arrest was in Rider's employ as far as the police were able to learn by a hurried investigation. Mrs. Smathers, a widow of a few weeks and only 26 years old, was a heroine today in the eyes of the police and hospital physicians here. She forgot her pain, to speak lightly of her courageous act, in driving the automobile away from the bandits as they fired shot after shot in a vain effort to get the bag containing $5,000.

"She's the gamest patient we've had in years," was an admiring comment of a physician. Mrs. Smathers smiled and held her hand up deprecatingly, as if her heroism in saving the money and lives, although twice wounded, was nothing unusual. Notwithstanding her weakened condition, she drove her father's big touring car at a racing clip for more than ten miles from the scene of the shooting to Hammonton, where her father's estate is one of the show places.

TO BEGIN BOOSTING CONVENTION HALL

The citizen's convention hall committee will hold a meeting Friday night at the Commercial club to discuss plans for getting before the voters of Fort Wayne the fact that the convention hall project is up to a vote at the general election on November 7.

This committee, which was organized about five years ago, will start a booster campaign at the meeting Friday night. By a coliseum law passed by the 1914 legislature cities were given the privilege of voting a bond issue for the erection of a convention hall, the expense to be paid from city taxes. The time in which to arouse enthusiasm over the convention hall project is short if the voters are to be thoroughly impressed with the method of obtaining the convention hall.

BANKING FUNDS NOW GOING TO LONDON

New York, Oct. 6.—Between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000 in banking funds, bankers here estimate, has been transferred from New York to London this week, and the movement is still under way.

Call money was lent in New York yesterday at as low as two per cent. Bankers contend that at this figure it is almost impossible to make customary profits on call loans. For this reason they have been putting out money on call in London for some time.

The high mark on time money in this market yesterday was only 3½ per cent and the low was 3 per cent. Local bankers say that they can get as high as 5½ per cent on time loans in Great Britain.

FRIDAY WAS A REAL INDIAN SUMMER DAY

Flying Spider Webs, a Hazy Atmosphere and Warm Sun Announce Season.

Although the past three days of this week bore slight evidences that Indian summer had arrived, Friday, was the first real Indiana summer day this year. Long, silky, aggravating spider webs floating lazily through the hazy, smoky atmosphere, heated by a radiant sun, which sent the temperature up to the eighty degree mark, convinced the observer of weather conditions that Indian summer was now playing its role on the stage of seasons.

The season this year has come a little in advance of the usual time, perhaps due to the early frosts which Fort Wayne and entire Indiana experienced a few weeks ago. The season, which has been named Indian summer, always makes its appearance after a cold snap.

The origin of the term "Indian summer," is unknown, but it is an American expression. It is used over the entire United States and it has even become so popular that England has adopted it as have several other foreign countries.

During Indian summer weather, the temperatures during the daytime will reach as high as eighty degrees and at nights the thermometer will fall as low as forty degrees.

The presence of so many spider webs in the air is explained by the fact that the little spiders who have had no opportunity to grow during the warm summer time have reached an age where they can do some spinning themselves. The slight breezes which are prevalent during this season, unfasten the webs and send them floating through the air to catch somewhere usually in a person's face.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Army officers assigned to military training camps here prepared today to return to their posts. Major Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the department of the east, will leave for his headquarters at Governor's island tonight. The last of the camps closed yesterday. Gen. Wood said he was well pleased with the result of the season and predicted that between 25,000 and 30,000 men would be under training in the Plattsburgh camp next year.

"The students have done extremely well, and obtained remarkable results," said the general. "The seriousness exhibited by the men was amazing. It is to be particularly noted that perfect order obtained. Because of the fact that nearly all the regular army was on the border, it was necessary to improvise all sorts of organizations with the regulars we had, and I want to say that the men of the coast artillery rendered most valuable service and have largely made the successful conduct of the camp possible.

Indiana Man Says Germans Are Perpetrating Big Joke on Foes.

Indianapolis, Oct. 6.—George Washington Koehne, who returned yesterday from a visit to Germany, declares that the German submarine Bremen is a myth and that all the stories which had been printed about its sailing were intended to deceive the British. Mr. Koehne went to Germany as a special representative of Albert Lieber to learn of the condition of Mr. Lieber's mother.

Mr. Koehne said that at the time the story was given out the British ships were outside the three-mile limit waiting for the boat to pass and that the Deutschland got safely back to Germany. He also stated that the Deutschland now is on its second voyage to a United States port.

"There are between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 trained soldiers now in Germany who have never been to the front," Mr. Koehne said.

"That is the extent of the reserve army the empire has."

"Furthermore," he added, "no man under the age of 18 or over 45 years has yet been to the front, except in a few cases where young boys volunteered."

The dispatch says that near Karytrunea and Zubiino, Russian infantry have attacked German lines for the last thirty-six hours without cessation. This assault was on a front of fifty kilometers and the cannonade continued all night.

German officers, who participated in the battle on the western front are quoted as saying that the Russian bombardment was now nearly as violent as that on the Somme. The Russians are using thousands of cannon and in a few days the Germans fired 60,000 shells on a very small front.

tion. According to the statement of the officials Shookman told them the money disappeared when he allowed friends to make overdrafts and also made bad loans of the bank's money.

Shookman was taken into police court today for arraignment on the charge of being a fugitive, but the case was continued until this afternoon. It was expected that officers from Delphi would come for him then.

Shortage $15,000 to $20,000.

A conference of state officials and officers of the bank was arranged to take place in the state house this afternoon. The amount of money involved in the case is said to be from $15,000 to $20,000.

It was yesterday afternoon that a neatly attired young man walked calmly into the office of the auditor of state and inquired for Arthur Craven, head of the state banking department.

"Mr. Craven is not in the city. What can I do for you?" replied John Crittenberger, a member of the office force.

"Well," responded the stranger, "I am Ellis E. Shookman, cashier of the Farmers' State bank at Burrows. I have come to surrender to the department. I am about $15,000 or $20,000 short in my accounts."

Crittenberger began to perspire suddenly and, wiping his brow, asked Shookman to go on with more details. The result of the conversation was that Shookman went on to police headquarters where he was charged with being a fugitive. He will be kept in Indianapolis until he can be turned over to officers from Delphi, Ind., near which the town of Burrows is situated.

Shookman's surrender was caused immediately by an examination of the bank books by W. A. Dehority of the banking department. Shookman fled from the bank early yesterday morning, while the examination was in progress, and came to Indianapolis. He said he was afraid to surrender at Delphi and came here for safety. The money he took is all gone—possibly $20,000 in all—part of it lost through bad loans, but much more spent to enable Shookman to live better than would have been possible on his salary.

Shookman is a pleasant-faced man of dark complexion and neat appearance. He presented a pathetic appearance when he came to the barred door of a cellroom at police headquarters last night to talk to a newspaper man. He was dressed in blue serge, but had taken off his coat and collar on account of the heat in the stuffy room. His voice was none too sure when he began to speak.

"I made a few bad loans at first and then everything went wrong and I got kind o' discouraged," he said. "I am married, but have no children. I could have made up most of it in a little while if I had been given a chance. None of the money was lost in speculation."

Shookman shifted his position and sighed heavily as he leaned against the bars. Then he continued:

"I began covering up the shortages about a year ago. The books were examined in October of last year and the trouble has all come up since then."

"I Don't Just Know."

"I don't just know," he said, and ended the conversation by dropping his arms from the grating and turning away into the gloom of the cell room.

The state banking department is at a loss to understand how Shookman got away with $20,000, if such is the amount. They explained that the bank is a one man affair. It has a capitalization of only $25,000 and total deposits of $50,000. As is the custom in such institutions, it was explained, the cashier had been left entirely in charge with almost full responsibility, making it easy for him to do as he wished. The bank was incorporated three years ago. Shookman has been with it since the beginning.

It was stated at the banking department that depositors in the institution probably will not lose any money because of Shookman's defalcations. Shookman was under bond and the bank carried insurance guaranteeing against such a loss. The bank was closed yesterday by the department and will remain closed until the tangled books are straightened out.

The first intimation Shookman had that his efforts to cover up the defalcations were about to be discovered came Wednesday afternoon when Mr. Dehority ran across a discrepancy in figures. The attention of the directors was called to the mixup immediately and Shookman was put under surveilance while the examination proceeded. The sum that appeared to be missing increased with such leaps as the investigation continued that Mr. Dehority finally decided to call Mr. Craven, and the examiner went to Burrows yesterday morning.

Remained All Night.

Shookman remained in the bank with Mr. Dehority all Wednesday night, apparently trying to assist in straightening out the figures. About 7:30 yesterday morning, however, he asked permission to go outside the bank to get a drink and disappeared. No one in Burrows saw him and there was considerable consternation until word was sent from Indianapolis that Shookman was locked up there.

At first the bank officials were inclined to let Shookman have a chance to make up the loss, but when they learned the large sum involved, they had a warrant issued, charging him with embezzlement. They shadowed him constantly until he eluded them yesterday morning and came to Indianapolis in an automobile, going at once to the auditor of state's office to surrender. Crittenberger advised Shookman to give himself up to the police and the two then went to headquarters, where Shookman was slated as a fugitive.

Information from Delphi last night made it appear that Shookman's downfall was due to high living and speculation.

Dr. Edward Wagner is president of the bank and M. J. McGreevy is vice president. Shookman's parents live in Allen county and are said to own considerable property.

Shookman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Shookman, residing near Hoagland. The family is prominent and highly respected, and the young man has always stood very high among his acquaintances. He took the situation at Burrow about one year ago.

were jubilant today over the reception accorded him in the middle west, particularly in Omaha.

The president held to his determination not to make a campaign tour out of his trip to Omaha. But his speeches bordered on politics because he told of his ideas of the way the nation should be conducted.

His statement that the United States is as ready to fight as any other nation but it must know what it is fighting for, aroused the most enthusiasm. He declared for a league of nations after the European war to maintain peace. The president's plans for today called for several stops en route home. He intended to appear at every station and shake hands with people but still persisted in his determination not to make rear platform speeches.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 6.—South Bend and St. Joseph county yesterday wound up the observance of Indiana's centennial celebration. A long industrial parade, in which every form of mercantile, manufacturing and rural activity was represented, was staged in the business streets of South Bend. Elaborately decorated floats and unique equipages were a feature.

Last night the third and last performance of the historical pageant, a living picturization of St. Joseph county history since its discovery and exploration by white men, was given.

More than 7,000 persons took part, and it is estimated 30,000 viewed the pageant during the three nights.

An interesting feature of the day was the reception to pioneers. Many out-of-town people were in attendance. The oldest persons present were Mrs. Lucinda Swaim and William Knoblock, 84 years old, both of this city. Mrs. J. J. Potcher, of Chicago, was among the visitors.

Schuyler Colfax, son of the late Vice President of the United States, was one of the speakers. An old fashioned spelling bee, such as those in which pioneers once took part, formed a part of the entertainment.

In the industrial parade the rural organizations joined with the civic and mercantile establishments with floats. The parade was more than a mile long, had seven bands and drew a big crowd.

The centennial observance brought many people to South Bend who had not been here since childhood. The activities yesterday afternoon closed three gala days.

BRITISH ARMORED TANKS ARE FAILURE

Nothing But Wrecks Soon in British Land Fleet, Says Berlin.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—The British armored motor cars which were used for the first time in the general advance on the Somme front last month, are a failure, the Overseas news agency said.

"One of the tanks built in Nodfolk, England, became hopelessly entangled in barbed wire," says the news agency.

"Another tank was disabled by one shell while advancing at a point north of Fleures. The ammunition which it contained exploded and it burned up. The other tanks were utilized in an attack at 7 a. m. on Sept. 15 on the Guillemont-Combles road. One of them was blown up with a hand grenade when it had approached to within thirty yards of the German trenches. At the last moment its occupants dispatched a carrier pigeon from this modern noah's ark. Six machine guns were captured by the Germans. The tank crawled to the southern edge of Leusee wood and was burned up.

"Only one of these land cruisers succeeded in crossing destroyed German trenches. This one was annihilated by a shell on the road to Ligny-Thilloy. The British land fleet will soon be composed of nothing but wrecks."

But It Does Not Want to Go Back to Days of the Saloon.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 6.—Organized labor did not want prohibition, though many union men voted for it. But now that we have it, we do not want to go back to saloons."

Edward J. Stack, secretary of the Oregon State Federation of Labor thus defines the state of mind of unionists toward limited prohibition in effect in the state since January 1.

The State Federation and the Portland Central Labor Council have, however, endorsed the beer initiative measure to be voted on in November, together with the Anti-Saloon League proposal of absolute prohibition.

The present law forbids manufacture of liquor in the state, though beer and whisky in limited quantities may be bought from outside Oregon.

Organized labor desires absolute prohibition or the four per cent. beer measure which would keep the state breweries running and keep the money spent for beer in Oregon, permitting the sale of beer in original packages, as now.

It is not satisfied with the present law which sends money out of the state and takes their occupation away from brewery workers, bartenders and cigarmakers, largely.

Just across the Oregon line in California wholesale liquor agencies have been established. They do a thriving business in booze sent into Oregon through the permit route. The Oregon brewers have been ousted to the benefit of the California brewers.

Wets and drys alike deem this a fault of the permit law.

In the days of the saloon there were in Portland alone 657 union bartenders. There are now 72 engaged at soft drink bars.

Fourteen union cigarmakers are left out of a former 192.

Prohibition hit the cigarmakers a jolt, because saloons pushed locally made cigars.

"But it is on account of the working men in front of the bars," said Stack, "that organized labor has no regrets. If legislative action was necessary to stop drunkenness, we are glad it was taken.

"Union men, however, resent the statement so often made by prohibition workers that it was on account of the workingman that a dry law was needed.

"The real reason why temperance is gaining ground is that the workingmen themselves frown on excessive drinking.

"Still there are slaves to drink in every class, and I know of many families who are now happier and more prosperous because the Saturday pay envelope comes home intact instead of liquor drained."

Despite the fact that bartenders and brewery workers lost their jobs and have either been absorbed in other industries or left the state, the total membership of organized labor in Oregon is today larger than when the state was wet.

Union men also pay their dues more regularly now.

Of 180 saloonkeepers in Portland, 88 now have soft drink places and restaurants, 22 have gone into other business in the city, 12 have saloons elsewhere, while 21 have left the state but are not in the liquor business, and 37 have retired.

How Catarrh is Contracted.

Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colds which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucus membrane, at first acute, becomes chronic and the child has chronic catarrh, a disease that is seldom cured and that may prove a life's burden. Many persons who have this loathsome disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little forethought, a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

LABOR STRONG FOR PROHIBITION THERE

Washington Leaders Say It Has Been Vast Benefit to Labor.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 6.—"Organized labor here has become an advocate of prohibition.

The majority of trade unionists, once wet or neutral, say that eight months of dryness in the largest water-wagon city in the United States has convinced them that former support of breweries was misguided.

The same verdict comes from the socialists.

Predictions that labor would suffer seriously as a result of prohibition have been disproven, it is claimed.

Unionism is today in a more flourishing condition than ever before, leaders assert.

Seattle's organized labor membership exceeds that of wet 1915, despite the loss of several hundred brewery and saloon employes.

So testifies James Duncan, secretary of the Central Labor Council.

Just how material has been this change of sentiment will be demonstrated at the November election when an initiative measure proposing the manufacture and sale of beer in the state of Washington will be voted on.

"Results during eight months of prohibition," said Secretary James Duncan of the Central Labor Council, "show how unjustified were the dire predictions of the brewery interests. Instead of 5,000 union men being thrown out of jobs in the state, as was prophesied, hardly 2,500 were affected.

Failure of these predicted woes to materialize, added to the fact that liquor interests here have openly opposed labor in the eight hour cause and other economic and humanitarian progress, has turned many former wets among trade unionists to the dry ranks."

Organized labor, though formally neutral in the fight that resulted in the state-wide prohibition last January, gave considerable support to the liquor men in the interest of brewery workers and other fellow unionists who would be adversely affected.

The same support for the same cause has usually been enlisted by the wets from organized labor and socialists everywhere.

"But we have been learning here," remarked Duncan, "that we were doing labor vastly more harm by helping perpetuate an industry that has combatted our progress and allied itself generally with open shop interests by abolishing it at the sacrifice of a few hundred brewery employes."

"Socialists of Seattle and the state," added C. H. McGill, a well-known leader, "are today dry on general economic grounds."

The case of the longshoremen affords an interesting commentary. Always frankly wet in their sympathies, these men, now on strike, have decisively switched because "the liquor interests have consistently allied themselves with the open shop employers against the welfare of labor."

"Big improvement in local union meetings since the state went dry," is the report of the longshoremen delegate committee.

And that seems to be the general verdict of labor throughout the dry state of Washington today.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Matthew 22:31-46.

31 But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying,

32 I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

33 And when the multitude heard this, they were astonished at his doctrine.

34 But when the Pharisees had heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, they were gathered together.

35 Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying,

36 Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

37 Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

38 This is the first and great commandment.

39 And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

40 On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.

41 While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them;

42 Saying, What think ye of Christ? whose son is he? They say unto him, The son of David.

43 He saith unto them, How then doth David in spirit call him Lord, saying,

44 The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool?

45 If David then call him Lord, how is he his son?

46 And no man was able to answer him a word, neither durst any man from that day forth ask him more questions.

Indiana Freight Rates

Whether the hearing regarding railroad freight rates in Indiana which has been in progress before the state public service commission at Indianapolis for some days will have the result of bringing about a more satisfactory adjustment or not, some of the evidence as to rates and rate-making and their relation to net profits of the railroad lines has been of much interest. Shippers generally and several commercial organizations in particular have protested against proposed increases and set up the claim as well that many Indiana rates under the present arrangement are discriminatory and are working to the disadvantage of Indiana shippers.

One of the freight experts of the Big Four system, on the other hand, set up the contention, and attempted to sustain it by figures, that the intra-state freight business is a loss to the railroads, and that the only profit accruing to the railroads in the freight department was from interstate business which is carried beyond the boundaries of Indiana. About 7 per cent of the business of the railroads operating in Indiana, he explained, is intra-state business; the balance is inter-state haul. There will be no disposition to question the general proposition that the long haul is more profitable to the railroad than is the short haul, because the expense of handling and transfer at terminals is no greater for the increased earnings than for the lesser revenue received for the short haul.

But the railroads manifested no little temper at the efforts of the commission to get some light on related conditions taken into account in arriving at net results. Among these was the contention that several small railroads which could not be made profitable under any circumstances had been taken over and their burdens shifted to the shoulders of the general shipper. There was the pertinent inquiry, also, if rented cars, obtained at a cost in excess of road-owned cars had not been considerable of a contributing factor in producing the deficit in freight earnings. We think there will be no disposition on the part of the commission to deny the railroads, and no refusal of the shipper to pay what ought in fairness to be paid in the matter of state freight rates, but the shipper should not be required to assume burdens not fairly his own. The more light thrown on the varied intricacies of the problem, the quicker an equitable conclusion can be reached. Neither the railroads nor the shipper should be afraid of a complete show-down in the case.

President Wilson's selection of General Goethals as chairman, with Commissioner Clarke, of the inter-state commerce commission, and Commissioner Rublee, of the federal trade commission, as the board to investigate the operation of the new eight-hour railroad law will win popular approval. It makes certain, too, from the character and grade of the men, that the inquiry will not only be thorough, but that its conclusions will command high respect.

Statement of the traction company submitted to the public service commission shows a deficit of somewhat more than $32,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, and explains that a considerable part of the loss was due to the street railway strike in Fort Wayne. When one adds to this the loss suffered by the car men and the inconvenience suffered by the general public, that historic struggle seems to have been a rather expensive affair for all concerned.

Mr. Beveridge raised his eloquent voice for Mr. Hughes for the first time in a speech in Chicago Thursday evening. Doubtless Mr. Beveridge is able to reconcile in his own mind his present allegiance to the forces he so bitterly and so furiously assailed four years ago and again two years ago, but he doesn't deign to explain to a curious public just how he has been able to do it.

Colonel Roosevelt's ideal candidate, Robert Bacon, who was unmercifully beaten for the republican nomination for United States senator in New York, has filed a statement of expenditures which shows that his foray into the arena of public opinion cost him just $9,611. And we doubt if even the colonel, in view of the harassing outcome, will contend that it was worth it.

President Wilson's opponents still fail to come forward with definite and specific details of precisely which of the numerous progressive and helpful laws placed on the statute books by the present administration they purpose repealing if they get a chance at them.

Can it be longer doubted that woman is really coming into her own? In the horse races at North Manchester a day or two ago there was one woman driver, and the records show she finished inside the money, too.

Likewise, Mr. Root is displeased with President Wilson's way of doing things. Somehow, we rather suspected something of that sort would develop before the campaign closed.

And, incidentally, kep in mind that next Monday is not only registration day, but the only registration day this year.

(Indianapolis News.)

The intrastate freight rate hearings before the public service commission should be followed closely, for they are of the utmost importance to the business interests of Indiana. They mark the beginning of what may be the final stage of a struggle which has extended over a long period of years. The hope is that some form of agreement will now be reached that will be fair to all. The petitioners are shippers from all over the state, and the freight and traffic bureau of the Indianapolis chamber of commerce. The issues are brought before the public service commission, not as a court, but as a commission.

Some time ago attention was called to the privileges obtained by Cincinnati, for instance, as against Indianapolis in competing for business in common territory. This point is now before the interstate commerce commission. The trouble with Indiana, the shippers allege, is that rates both existing and proposed, are discriminatory in comparison with tariffs in neighboring states, such as Ohio. It is this point that is brought before the public service commission. Both interstate and intrastate disputes concerned the whole fabric of freight rates in Central Association territory. According to W. C. Maxwell, an expert for the Wabash, existing rates are not adequate in proportion to the amount of capital invested in the state.

The hearings illustrate the difficulties of the railroads. There was a time when the carriers resisted all regulation; but their attitude is changed. Their complaint is that today they are under forty-nine masters, whereas, out of justice to the investors, there should be only one. The trouble is that we have not yet learned that the interstate commerce commission, sitting at a remote point, can understand the transportation problems within a state. The protesting Indiana shippers doubtless have a grievance. It is not so much a case of excessive rates as discriminatory rates, as compared with other states in competing commercial territory. It should be possible for shippers and carriers to get together and then to co-operate for the ultimate solution of the whole regulation problem.

WOMAN GETS PRISON SENTENCE.

Pleads Guilty to Performing Illegal Operations at Elkhart.

Elkhart, Ind., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Alice Horton, 68, pleaded guilty to performing illegal operations yesterday and was fined $100 and sentenced to serve from three t ofourteen years in the woman's prison at Indianapolis. She was indicted last spring after the death of Evelyn Gilbert. Last Friday she was indicted on a second charge following a complaint in which Mrs. Goldup Randolph was named.

TO MAKE THEIR OWN TASK "LIGHTER"

SAYS TANLAC ENDED 5 YEARS OF TROUBLE

"It's Surely a Wonderful Medicine," South Bend Woman Asserts.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 6.—"Tanlac is a wonderful medicine," was the tribute paid the Premier Preparation on September 5 by Mrs. Margaret Rosse, South Bend woman, of 603 East Colfax street.

"I have suffered from rheumatism for the last five years," Mrs. Rosse continued. "In fact, my entire system was in a general run down condition. I was extremely nervous and irritable. The rheumatism seemed to be in all parts of my body, but the pains were especially severe in my arms, legs and back. I could not walk without holding on to something and it was impossible for me to sleep the whole night through.

"I have taken one bottle of Tanlac now and I want to say that I can't praise it too highly. The rheumatic pains have completely left me now and I am not nervous and irritable as before. In fact my general health is excellent now. I haven't felt as good in five years.

"Tanlac has done more for me than anything else in the world and I gladly recommend it."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism, nervousness, sleeplessness, lose of appetite and the like and has proven a fine reconstructive tonic.

Tanlac is now being introduced and explained in Fort Wayne at the four Meyer drug stores—Wayne and Calhoun streets, Calhoun and Columbia, 1420 Calhoun and Broadway and Taylor streets.—Advertisement.

Miss Maude I. Schroter

Weaverville, Trinity Co., Cal., Oct. 4.—When Trinity county voters selected Miss Maude I. Schroter superintendent of schools and placed upon her the duties of traveling hundreds of miles of rocky mountain road, bordering on steep precipices and chasms and where wild animals ramble at will, there were many who figured that it had been unwise to select a woman for such a perilous task.

But Trinity county knew Miss Schroter as developments have since shown. When Miss Schroter assumed the office and consulted a map as to her school districts she found that she would have to travel 112 miles to the Caution district alone.

There are no railroads, neither is there a stage. It was up to her to solve the problem and she did. A beautiful saddle horse was purchased, a riding habit and the superintendent started forth. Many days she has spent riding through the forests on rough mountain roads, over trails and through dells.

But let her tell of her journeys herself: I visited about half of the schools in the county and covered almost 300 miles. Eleven of our twenty-four districts I visited on horseback. I carry a few clothes with me in canvas saddle bags, making the load as light as possible for my horse.

"In going to the Caution district I cross some of Trinity's highest mountain ranges and travel alone unless I am fortunate enough to find someone traveling my way.

"In going down the Trinity river trail it is necessary to cross several swinging suspension bridges and mount bluffs hundreds of feet above the river where one prefers to look straight ahead or up rather than down at the surging mountain water."

Miss Schroter admits she carries a gun, but laughed heartily when asked of she "packed" it for protection from human beings. "No, indeed, no. If it were only human beings that inhabited this section I never would burden my horse with a weapon. It is mountain lions, wild cats and even bears which I am prepared to meet.

"No, sir, the men are too chivalrous. I have never seen a mountaineer who was not gallant and in my two years' experience I have found Trinity county men are even more so than others. Never once has anyone stopped me and it would take a ream of paper to tell of the many helping hands given me."

Banff Springs, Alta., Oct. 1.—As a mark of esteem to the Duke of Connaught, who is soon to be succeeded as governor-general of Canada by the Duke of Devonshire, the Stony tribe Indians who live in this western part of Canada, have just made him a chief of their clan.

The duke's Indian name is Chief Teechka Eeyake Conka, which means "Great Mountain Chief," and in this picture, taken at the great Banff Springs hotel, a famous resort in the Canadian rockies, he is shown in his indian costume.

Urges everyone to drink glass of hot water before breakfast.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.—Advertisement.

NORTHWEST WOMEN REAL "SPORTSMEN"

Refuse to Vote Against Wilson in Time of World Stress.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 3.—Women will show more sportsmanship in politics than men!

This is the conclusion gleaned by Miss Julia S. Hurlbut and Miss Agnes F. Campbell, field secretaries of the National Woman's party, in organizing the women voters of Washington state against President Wilson.

"Many republican women, upon whom we had counted, while opposing President Wilson, will not become members of the party because they would not have opposed Hughes if the tables were turned," explained Miss Hurlbut. "They feel it wouldn't be fair to President Wilson."

By the end of September only about 800 Washington state women had enrolled in the national women's party, though thousands of others, explained the field secretaries, are helping the cause of the organization.

This is to rebuke the democratic administration for failure to advocate federal equal suffrage- to rebuke it by swinging women's political power in suffrage states to Charles Evans Hughes, who has personally declared for a federal amendment.

"The granting of suffrage to women by British Columbia," said Miss Hurlbut, "will undoubtedly have a marked effect on our own situation.

"It has at least routed the argument that it would be unwise in these crucial times to admit a great body of women to political power in the United States.

"Canada, acually at war, didn't regard it as unwise to give her women in British Columbia a voice that might be used one way or another in crises."

A large and exceedingly attractive tea was given at the home of Miss Helen Peters, in West Wayne street, this afternoon, in which she was assisted as hostess by her sister, Mrs. Neil McKay. In the receiving line, too, were Miss Alma Dreier, a coming bride of the month, and Mrs. Philip Bursley, of Ann Arbor, Mich. About two hundred and fifty invitations were issued and the rooms were well filled during the two hours of the reception. A stringed orchestra furnished music. A number of ladies in handsome gowns assisted during the time in visiting with the callers and in seeing that they were served in the dining room, where a table was laid with beautiful service and decorated with Killarney, Ophelia and Sunset roses. Mrs. J. C. Peters and Mrs. James McKay were the older ladies who presided and a number of younger matrons and young girls assisting were Mrs. William Peters, Mrs. Fred George, Mrs. Hal Rehrer, Mrs. Roger I. Fisher, Mrs. Lawrence Eberbach, Mrs. Will McKay. Miss Adele Breuer, of Washington boulevard east, entertained a club of young ladies this afternoon at her home. No special form of amusement was arranged for and though there was a little sewing done the greater part of the afternoon was spent in visiting. At 5 o'clock there was a visit to the dining room, which revealed a lovely table with many roses in the center, a bridal party of kewpies and dainty rose baskets filled with nuts for individual favors. There were pretty things to see, but the tempting menu satisfied in a far different manner and everyone enjoyed herself. While there was no pretense to elaborateness, there was no lacking in elegance or beauty in every appointment.

Kruse-Gerke.

Many friends from the city attended the wedding in St. Martin's Lutheran church in St. Joseph's township, on Thursday afternoon of Miss Emma Gerke and Mr. William Kruse which took place at 2 o'clock. Rev. F. W. Stock, pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony, which was attended by many relatives and friends. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Gerke and by Miss Corinne Bohde. The groom's attendants were Messrs. Conrad Forsh and William Gerke. There were also two little flower girls, Alma Prange and Clara Kruse. The bride and groom entered the church together. The bride wore a handsome gown of white Paris satin trimmed with lace and pearl ornaments. A veil of tulle fell from a pleated cap effect to the bottom of the gown and was held in front to the bride's hair by a string of pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of bride roses and swansonia. The bridesmaids were gowned in white with trimmings in pink and they wore wreaths of smilax in their hair and each held a bouquet of pink roses tied with bows and ends of pink tulle ribbon. The flower girls were very dainty and sweet in their frocks of pink crepe de chine and with pink tulle bows to match in their hair. The flower children held baskets of pink roses and snapdragon tied with pink tulle. After the church service the wedding party was driven to the Gerke home in Wayne Trace, where a little later an elegant wedding supper was served in courses. The house was decorated with palms, foliage and flowers and an orchestra furnished music during the entire evening. The bride and groom received many gifts and the congratulations of many friends. Next Sunday the bridal couple will start on their wedding trip to Niagara Falls and on their return home will settle down on a farm on the Leesburg road. For traveling the bride will wear a blue wool poplin suit and a black velvet hat trimmed with white plumes. Both bride and groom are well and favorably known in the country and in the city.

AT THE PALACE

Diminutive Comedian a Big Laugh at the New Palace.

There isn't much to Willie Solar that his expansive smile doesn't include, but the four feet two inches of space he occupies simply radiates fun. The diminutive comedian in a group of absurd songs absurdly sung is the big laugh on the week-end bill at the New Palace. He can make more different kinds of noises at the same time and sing in more keys at once than a bagpipe.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Heisen, the two most graceful society dancers who ever whirled through the intricate steps of a fox trot, in Fort Wayne at least, are heading a company of dancers in a revue of the dancing of the moment. Toe, eccentric and even the hula hula dance are included in the repertoire.

Weir, Temple and Dacey, a singing trio, appeared as a duo because one of the men unaccountably lost his voice en route to Fort Wayne. The vocalists sing well and put their act over with a laughing good nature that is infectious. "A Case for Sherlock" is an amusing detective story in which the detective starts out all right but gets hopelessly involved before he is through. Ten words clear up the entire situation in one of the best endings ever written for a vaudeville sketch. Benny and Woods fool round with a piano and a violin performing all sorts of amusing things with them. The act has been here before and always will prove a winner. Frawley and West, the comedy gymnasts, open the bill. The clown is actually funny.

"RAMONA" MILE-LONG FILM.

Those who still have doubts about the willingness of an audience to sit through 10,000 or 12,000 feet of motion picture film—a performance of three hour's duration—are having them completely dispelled, it is claimed, by the mammoth new W. H. Cline cinema operatic spectacle, "Ramona," which is to be presented here the first time at the Majestic theatre one week, starting October 16.

When "Ramona" was first presented its makers refused to be impressed by skepticism on the score of length. They insisted that if a show is a good one, there need be no fear of results. This judgment proved correct, for the enchanting story of "Ramona" was so humanly and so well told that audiences never seemed to tire of it.

It was not long ago that the doubt was expressed by many that nothing over a six-reel production would be interesting to the average theatregoer. And, it has been just such productions as "Ramona" that have changed the viewpoint of the amusement-loving public.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, THICK, WAVY, FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Save your hair! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after an application of Danderine. Also try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, charming, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed. —Advertisement.

THE STORY OF THE FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS AND ITS GROWTH

is interestingly told in the big feature story, "The Progress of a Middle West City," by Charles B. Fitch, in the Autumn number of THE WILDWOOD MAGAZINE.

"Cities attain their cityhood in two ways: They grow or they are built," says Charles B. Fitch, a big Indiana insurance man, in one of the principal articles of the coming number. Mr. Fitch takes cities from his native state for examples of how the middle-sized cities of the central west have grown, and then tells of a city more than a century and a half old that is going through a rapid development. It is gaining in population at the rate of 1,000 persons per month. The article is a leading one and deals with the problems of a city that is being built up so rapidly through the activities of a big corporation that the city cannot expand fast enough to take care of its growth.

This article is being anxiously awaited for by hundreds of Fort Wayne people and will no doubt be the talk of the city. It is timely and is illustrated with five beautiful half-tone engravings.

"GUM RACKS FOR PUPILS? WHY NOT?" ASKS NORMAL SCHOOL HEAD.

Gum-chewing pupils of Wisconsin schools will have racks on which to stick their gum when it is not being "worked" if the suggestion of J. W. Crabtree, president of the River Fall (Wis.) normal schools, is adopted by school boards.

"Pupils have a right to chew gum," says Crabtree. "Teachers do it, but they know when and how. Why not teach these conventionalities to pupils?

"Permit the pupils to chew gum on the playgrounds and on the way to and from school. But what will the poor child do with his gum while in the recitation or assembly room? A gum rack at the entrance of the room containing a number and peg for each pupil solves the problem."

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 6.—Former United States Senator A. J. Beveridge opening his western speaking tour in behalf of Charles E. Hughes here last night, attacked the administration's foreign policy, claimed republican credit for the so-called constructive legislation of the administration and declared the prosperity of the present was "sectional, spotted and stained."

He characterized the handling of the threatened labor strike as "juggling with expediency," and declared it had wrought deadly harm to the cause of union labor.

Senator Beveridge denied that the country has been kept out of war. "We invaded Mexico," he said, "and withdrew. But American marines were killed.

"Our territory was invaded by Mexicans, who were driven out, but again Americans were killed. We invaded that country once more and today our military forces, with siege guns, are intrenched in the heart of northern Mexico. They have fought with uniformed Mexicans and soldiers of both sides have fallen."

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who waked up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearances.—Advertisement.

New Outbreak Arrives on Anniversary of Annexation to Greece.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—The present revolt in Crete has occurred almost on the fourth anniversary of the announcement of the island's annexation to Greece, made by the Greek premier on October 14, 1912. Up to that time the Cretans had been in an almost constant state of revolt against Turkish and Egyptian domination for the greater part of the nineteenth and the first decade of the twentieth century. Today's war geography bulletin of the National Geographic society tells of this revolt-riven region.

"Crete and Corsica are practically tied for the distinction of fourth island of the Mediterranean, each having an area somewhat in excess of 3,300 square miles and being surpassed in size by Sicily, Sardinia and Cyprus. But while Corsica has sustained a comparatively inconspicuous role in world history, if one excepts the fact that it was the birthplace of Napoleon, Crete has played a stellar part in human events for more than 4,000 years.

"Oblong in shape, with a length of 160 miles and a width varying from 6 to 35 miles, the rugged island lies equidistant from Europe, Asia and Africa. Its northern coast is greatly indented, and while the anchorage is too shallow for modern steamers in all save one of its ports, in ancient times many of its 100 flourishing cities of which Homer spoke were regularly visited by the light-draft vessels of the Phoenicians, the Greeks, and the Egyptians.

"Crete today sustains a population of about 350,000, more than nine-tenths of whom are Christians and the remaining tenth largely Mohammedan. Much of its land is bare and stony and the forests of cypress which were once its glory have almost disappeared. Its rivers are scarcely more than mountain torrents, which rush down from snow-clad heights towering more than 8,000 feet above the sea.

"Many of the narrow valleys and a few plains are extremely fertile, however. Fruits of many varieties, especially the orange and lemon, grow luxuriantly, and the olive is one of the most valuable products of the island, the oil being used extensively in the manufacture of soap. The vines of Crete, which were noted in the middle ages, have deteriorated somewhat in modern times. Currants are profitably grown, but little grain is raised. The mineral resources of the island may eventually prove to be considerable but at present time gypsum, lime, slate and whetstone constitute the principal output, which is meager.

St. Paul in his epistle to Titus, perpetuated the indictment that 'the Cretans are always liars,' so it is not astonishing to find in the legends of the island the claim that the supreme god of the Greek world, Zeus, was a native and that he was nursed by nymphs on the slopes of the famous Mt. Ida. He was even supposed to have been buried at Iukta, near the ancient center of Minoan civilization, Knossus, or Cnossus, an account of whose astonishing culture thousands of years ago has been given in a recent bulletin of the National Geographic society.

"The Cretans were the allies of Mithradates the Great in that Parthian's negotiations with Rome, and a few years later the islanders espoused the cause of Cilician pirates, as a result of which the Roman general Metellus brought them under the yoke of the Eternal City in 66 B. C.

"When the Roman empire was divided Crete was apportioned to the western rulers and it remained under the Byzantine emperors until 823, when it was captured by piratical Saracens from Andalusia who held sway over the island for 140 years. Then it was redeemed by the Byzantines. During the fourth crusade the island was given to Boniface de Montferrat. He immediately sold it to the Venetians (1204), who ruled it for more than 400 years.

"One of the most prolonged blockades in world history was that conducted by the Turks from 1645 to 1669, when the last port of the island surrendered to Ottoman arms, against whose sway the Cretans were almost constantly in revolt until the final annexation to Greece. The islanders fought shoulder to shoulder with the Greeks in the recent Balkan imbroglios."

New York Senator Declares America Has Declined Under Wilson.

New York, Oct. 6.—America's decline under Wilson—that was the theme under which Elihu Root, former secretary of state, in a speech before a republican mass meeting at Carnegie hall last night, arraigned the record of the present administration.

Of Mr. Wilson's policy in Mexico Mr. Root said:

"He has had his way in Mexico and he has managed it with such a degree of skill that both Villa and Carranza are our enemies; that no man in Mexico dares to call himself our friend."

Of the crisis with Germany Mr. Root declared that "if our government meant what it said when it declared it would protect its citizens it should have had the capacity to make Germany understand that it meant what it said and the Lusitania would never have been sunk."

Eight-Hour Law a "Holdup."

Mr. Root called the submission of the president to the railway unions in the recent controversy a "holdup, pure and simple."

"The legislation," he said, "was passed in submission to a threat. The brotherhoods' 400,000 in number had in their hands the power to injure the community by stopping transportation and the government of the United States submitted to them.

"If the attitude of our government under the compulsion of the railroad brotherhoods is to be the attitude of the American people we hold our lives at the mercy of the public blackmailer. The organization of civil society which regulates the rights and duties of its members toward each other upon the basis of ascertained justice will have failed as it has failed in Mexico."

The Spirit of America.

Of the democratic policy of "peace at any price," Mr. Root said:

"The most precious possession of the American people is not in our cities and palaces, our railroads and factories, our rich mines and fertile farms, for we have all these and lose our own soul. The supreme necessity of our life is the spirit that bore up our fathers in their poverty and struggles; the spirit that inspired them in the great empty spaces of the new world with the conception of a self-governing republic, bound together by the universal devotion of her sons, instinct with the high and unhesitating courage of liberty, honored for justice, leading the world toward the better things of freedom.

"The spirit is not gone. It has been sleeping. It has been overlaid by wealth and prosperity and ease."

Persons Interested in St. Joe Dam Proposition Look Over Ground.

Interested in the proposed improvement of the St. Joe dam William Breuer, Fred Barthold, John E. Lathrope and W. H. Myers, the last two director and assistant respectively of the city planning exhibit, Thursday, visited the various points to be affected by the proposed river dam improvement.

The first stop was at a point north of the city where a lake with boating and bathing facilities will be built according to the plans. Fairview, Horseshoe Bend and Germania park were also visited. The trip was concluded with an inspection of the site for the river dam improvement.

At a meeting held at the Commercial club Thursday night it was decided to hold another meeting next Wednesday night. Edward Miller was added to the list of committeemen.

LENGTH OF CONTRACT IS ONLY DIFFERENCE

New York Deadlock Over Milk Situation Not Yet Broken.

New York, Oct. 6.—A difference only as to the length of the contracts to be given by the New York distributors to the farmers existed today when the state opened its investigation of the deadlock which has kept this city on a short supply of milk for several days. One of the big distributors had offered to pay the farmers the increase of one cent a quart which they demanded but had refused to make this contract for six months, as the dairymen's league insisted. Other leading distributors had not agreed to this concession but some of the smaller dealers had complied with the demands of the league.

Continuance of the deadlock today resulted in a still more serious situation in respect to the milk supply. Morning deliveries were still further diminished and many thousands were unable to procure milk at all.

To prevent a recurrence of yesterday's scenes on the upper east side when hundreds of women stormed milk depots, extra details of police were on duty today. The women again swarmed to the depots, soon exhausting the supplies, but there was no disorder.

Says Gerard Brings Plea to Wilson to Urge Peace

New York, Oct. 6.—The New York Evening Post today publishes a story saying that it has been learned from a trustworthy source that Ambassador James W. Gerard, now on his way back from Germany, will lay before President Wilson a request that the president use his good offices in suing for peace with the allies.

"Germany has definitely decided to apply to President Wilson" the article reads, "to use his good offices in suing for peace with the allies. This was learned today from sources in a position to have absolutely trustworthy information on these matters.

"It is understood that Ambassador James W. Gerard, who is on his way over here, will lay the kaiser's request before President Wilson within a week. * * * It is a fact, however, positively it may have been denied officially, that the possibility of President Wilson acting as mediator has been discussed by German officials with Ambassador Gerard. It is therefore by no means surprising that the reports now take definite shape in connection with Mr. Gerard's trip to this country."

Mr. Gerard is on board the steamer Frederick VIII, due in New York about next Tuesday.

NOT TRUE, SAYS EMBASSY.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Officials of the German embassy today met the New York newspaper's story that Gerard was coming with Emperor William's request to the president to urge peace with the emphatic statement that they knew beyond doubt that it was not true.

SHURTLEFF SPEAKER AT NOONDAY LUNCHEON

Arthur Shurtleff, of Boston, a widely known landscape artist of the country and adviser to the Boston Art commission, spoke at a luncheon given by Lee J. Ninde, president of the Wildwood Builders' company, Friday noon, at the Commercial club, on the development of the Country club boulevard. He took up the arrangement of Swinney park, asserting there was a lack of circulation in the park and showed how the park came to an abrupt end amid car lines and railways. The meeting was thrown open to informal discussion on the boulevard question. Mayor Hosey, members of the park board, board of works and the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange were in attendance. Mr. Shurtleff made a hurried trip over the territory proposed in the Country club boulevard development Friday morning in company of Mr. Ninde.

John E. Lathrope, director of Fort Wayne's city planning exhibit, preceded Mr. Shurtleff in a short address, setting forth the aims of the exhibit and its value to the city, not for the present, but for future years. Mr. Shurtleff complimented highly the exhibit before he started his talk. The exhibit was shown in Boston, where Mr. Shurtleff had the pleasure of seeing it.

Mr. Lathrop Speaks.

John E. Lathrop spoke in part as follows:

"There was a day when the world was instructed by some that the proper dictum was 'Art for Art's Sake.' There must be no element of 'preaching,' so those art critics said. No book which obviously was to bring to pass reforms, they told us, could be written in accepted art forms. No picture could be of standard artistic value which sought to do more than hold up to us a mirror of nature.

"He who promulgated the absurd slogan of 'Art for the People's Sake,' or 'Art that the World May be Better,' or 'Art that Some Good May be Done to Our Common Man,' was out of keeping with the true tenets of art.

"Yet the great artists who had written their names high on the scroll of fame, whose pictures and books and statues and oratorios the world cherishes —who spread their marvelous works on cathedral walls, filled the galleries, loaded the shelves of the libraries and stole into men's hearts with their divine melodies—did labor with their souls aflame in zeal for mankind, and wrought that their efforts might bring sweetness and gladness and correction of evils to the world.

"Those who gave us that art dictum erred. They did no honor to their own cult. They would have dragged down from its lofty heights that which had been lifted to an elevation by true exponents of artistic effort.

"Humanity finally learned that art was not something to be isolated—kept in cloisters, or away from the multitude; that it could be brought into the daily life of the common man. So we entered that which at first some referred to as 'the era of commercialized art.' This was sneered at. It was said that these were not true artists.

"Yet that movement progressed until it took concrete form in many separate respects—music made democratic, other forms of art brought into the homes of the poor. Ultimately we learned that the riches of all art could as well as not be given to all of the people. The most democratic of all art, landscape architecture, is the culmination of the popularizing of the movement. Beauty is given to all—the rich, the poor, the middle class. Hereby a community could express itself in high forms, and in a reflex manner these forms would react on the common mind.

"That which our guest of honor represents — landscape architecture — is therefore something which combines the modern business idea with the ideals of the civic worker. It is a work of social advance and when done by and for real estate sub-dividers, it is the going concern, paying its way, at the same time contributing immensely to the spiritual betterment of a people."

TWO ARRESTS ORDERED.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Arrest of Edward ("Doc") Donahue, alleged member of the so-called $1,000,000 blackmail syndicate, and a man known as "James D. Kirkland" was ordered today in connection with the alleged fleecing of Eugene Massey, a real estate dealer, out of $10,000 in an "electric fly screen" transaction.

Plans for raising the New York Central tracks over Sherman street were laid before Mayor Hosey, Engineer Randall and members of the board of works by E. M. Currier, of Cleveland, engineer of the New York Central railroad, Friday morning.

Building of the Sherman street subway will cost $26,600, according to the plans. The city of Fort Wayne will pay $6,000 of that amount and the railroad $20,600. The railroad company has no objections to the amount and is anxious to have work started as soon as posible, Currier said.

Sherman street connects with Pape avenue and High streets. At present the street is not used across the New York Central tracks because of the steep grade at the crossing. The subway will open the street up and give a direct avenue clear across the city.

City officials ask that slight changes be made in the first plans, which Currier introduced, Friday. The blueprints will be returned to the central offices of the railroad company and some alterations made. It is hoped to have the new plans ratified by both parties within thirty days.

VISIT NINE IOWA CITIES.

Speakers on Prohibition Campaign Train Have a Busy Day.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Oct. 6—The prohibition campaign train is visiting nine Iowa cities today in aiding the election of "dry" tickets this year as well as to gain votes for the national dry ticket. A prohibition amendment already has passed the legislature once but it must pass again before being submitted to the people. Hope is high that a large majority in favor of the proposal will be rolled up this fall. Iowa has had statutory prohibition for many years. Cities on today's schedule include Des Moines and Cedar Rapids.

WILL OMIT SOME ITEMS.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Secretary Redfield in telegrams today to Charles J. Hardy of New York, announced that publication of dye stuff census, about which there has been a controversy between manufacturers and importers, "will immediately proceed omitting such items as would expose details of individual transactions."

WILL EXPRESS ESTEEM FOR STATE TREASURER

Special Car to Bring Admirers of George A. Bittler to Fort Wayne.

Admiration of the ability of George A. Bittler, state treasurer, will be expressed by a number of his Indianapolis friends who will come to Fort Wayne on a special car to pay him homage. The party, led by Otto N. Frenzel, president of the Merchants National Bank of Indianapolis, will arrive in Fort Wayne, Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock and remain until Sunday afternoon.

The men who are "voluntarily boosting Bittler because of his statesmanship," are made up of members of the Maennerchor Fireside club, a branch organization of the largest German club in the state. The men who will come to Fort Wayne in the luxurious interurban car, "Martha," are representative bankers, business men and manufacturers of Indianapolis.

The "Bittler Boosters," as they call themselves, will stay at the Anthony hotel. Mrs. William Bittler, mother of the state treasurer, will entertain the party at dinner, at her home on West Jefferson street, as a token of appreciation for the voluntary demonstration of regard for her son.

Mayor William Hosey, who will officially receive the visitors, has appointed the following reception committee to assist in showing Fort Wayne's welcome: Maurice Niezer, William A. Bayer, Henry E. Banning, W. P. Breen, Otto Fuelber, Charles Steiss, D. N. Foster, Albert Keller, Henry C. Paul, D. C. Stout, William H. Shambaugh, Harry L. Askew, Dr. Gaylord Leslie, Louis Fox, Will Johnson, L. G. Ellingham, Henry C. Berghoff, Herman Mackwitz and William Baade.

The Indianapolis delegations, made up of both republicans and democrats, are: Gustavus A. Pohlman, Henry E. Baals, Christ E. Wilmans, Robert E. Sweeney, William C. Leppert, H. T. Hearsey, Charles J. Kotteman, William Off, George D. Alig, Emil C. Rassman.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—Casualties among the Russian armies during this year's offensive on the eastern front, according to cautious calculations, says the Overseas News Agency, have been at least 1,250,000 officers and men.

According to conservative Danish calculations, the news agency adds, Russia during the first two years of the war lost considerably more than 6,000,000 men. Wounded men who returned to the front are not included in this estimate. Continuing, the Overseas News Agency says:

"The prophesy of David Lloyd George, the British secretary of war, that 'Russia will fight until death' is now about to be realized literally. The Russian losses in Galicia recently reached large figures, which even this populous country cannot bear.

"Russian artillery fires indiscriminately among the troops in order to push them forward and shoots down troops which are retreating. In the battle of Korytnyza, which was victorious for the Germans, Russian columns were driven forward by a curtain of fire and whips. Entire Russian waves of men fell under the German artillery and machine gun fire. Dead bodies formed in mountains. After the losses sustained by the Russian emperor's guards on the Stokhod river and in the sanguinary engagements at Pustomyty and Korytnyza nothing remained of the emperor's guards."

YOUNG PEOPLE ELECT.

Officers Chosen by State Universalist Organization.

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 6.—The annual election of the officers of the Young People's Christian union of the Universalist church of the state were held this morning in connection with the annual session of the Universalists convention of Indiana being held here. The officers were re-elected as follows: President, Mrs. Maude Countryman, of Galveston; vice president, Mrs. Olga Robinson, of Anderson; secretary, Miss Jessie Eubanks, of Adams, and treasurer, Roy Williams, of Anderson.

BEVERIDGE OFF FOR SIOUX FALLS

Former Senator Starts Western Campaign Tour for Hughes.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 6.—Former United States Senator A. J. Beveridge of Indiana, who is making a speaking campaign in behalf of Hughes and Fairbanks, left Chicago for Sioux Falls, S. D., today, where he will deliver an address tomorrow night, answering President Wilson's Omaha speech.

Mr. Beveridge, on his western trip, will visit South Dakota, Minnesota, Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, Colorado, and return by way of Nebraska, Missouri and Kentucky.

NEW YORK MAN WINS.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 6.—William Kyoren, of New York, today won the Brockton fair marathon race of 25 miles. His time was 2:37:17 1-5. Sydney Hatch, of Chicago, was second, three minutes behind.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR'S STAND YET UNSHAKEN

Berlin, Oct. 6.—Efforts to compose the differences between Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and his opponents in the reichstag, which have been in progress since adjournment was taken after the chancellor's speech, apparently have accomplished little. The chancellor's position, however, appears to be unshaken and such information as is obtainable indicates that the campaign for resumption of submarine activity on the old basis has met with no success. After several days of confidential conferences of the chancellor and members of his cabinet, with a committee from the reichstag, discussion of the submarine issue and other problems of foreign policies was resumed today before the ways and means committee.

Notwithstanding the confidential nature of the proceedings in both committees, the following may be taken as a fairly accurate statement of the present situation. The conferences thus far, notwithstanding considerable good will on both sides, have not brought the opposing elements much nearer together. They have shown the chancellor to be in full accord with Field Marshal von Hindenburg, chief of staff, and with the navy department. Both the military and naval representatives have supported the contentions of the chancellor against the inauguration of an unrestrained submarine campaign with the full weight of their expert authority. Dr. Karl Helfferich, vice chancellor, backed the chancellor in a powerful speech on the economic aspects of the question.

Truth Society Head After National Chairman of Democrats.

New York, Oct. 6.—Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the democratic national committee, announced late yesterday that he had been served with a summons in a suit for $50,000, brought against him by Jeremiah A. O'Leary, president of the "American Truth Society." Mr. McCormick said he had not been apprised, however, of the charges upon which the suit was based.

Mr. O'Leary, in a statement issued soon afterward, declared that his purpose in instituting the action was "to find out first whether hyphenism, so-called, is libelous; and, second, whether it is inconsistent with Americanism."

Mr. O'Leary said he resented a statement, attributed to Mr. McCormick, criticising him for sending an "insulting message" to President Wilson. In that message Mr. O'Leary criticised the president for "not enforcing American rights against Great Britain," and informed Mr. Wilson that he would not vote for the re-election of the president. Mr. Wilson replied that he would "feel deeply mortified to have you (Mr. O'Leary) or anybody like you vote for me," adding: "Since you have access to many disloyal Americans and I have not, I will ask you to convey this message to them."

In the statement attributed to Mr. McCormick, appearing October 4, and upon which Mr. O'Leary said he based his suit for libel, the chairman of the democratic national committee was quoted as having commented up on the presence of Charles E. Hughes at the Union League club reception Tuesday night, concluding with the statement that there could be no doubt about Mr. Hughes' position because of his silence on the message sent to the president by Mr. O'Leary.

COUZENS OFFERS BONUS FOR GOOD POLICE WORK

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 6.—James Couzens, Detroit's multi-millionaire police commissioner, today announced the establishment of a bonus system for members of the Detroit police force. The bonus, provided personally by Mr. Couzens, will amount to about $10,000 annually.

It is believed to be the first of its kind established in the United States. Mr. Couzens receives $5,000 from the city for being in charge of the police department. He said today that his entire salary will form part of the bonus which he intends to personally distribute.

This bonus will be paid out at regular intervals probably every three months, Mr. Couzens said. A record of the efficiency of each member of the department will be kept and distribution of the bonus will be based to a great extent upon this record. It was stated by Mr. Couzens that the bonus might enable some policemen to earn more than some of their captains.

Boston, Oct. 6.—Burton Whitman, of the Boston Traveler, was elected official scorer of the world's series games in this city to act with the national commissioner scorer at a meeting of the local chapter of the Base Ball Writers' Association of America today.

Waterford, Ireland, Oct. 6.—In a notable address to his constituents here this afternoon John Redmond, the Irish nationalist leader in parliament, declared that despite the recent rebellion, "with all its inevitable aftermath of brutalities, stupidities and inflamed passions, home rule for Ireland is safe if Ireland remains sane."

Mr. Redmond also declared that conscription could never be forced upon Ireland and added: "I cannot bring myself to that belief that the government will be insane enough to challenge a conflict with Ireland on this subject. Conscription for Ireland, far from helping the army and the war, would be the most fatal thing that could happen. It would be resisted in every village in Ireland. Its attempted enforcement would be a scandal which would ring around the world. It would produce no additional men."

Continuing, the parliamentary leader said: "The mere threat is paralyzing recruiting, which, mark you, is not dead as some people say.

"This demand for conscription is not a genuine military command. It is a base political device put forward by men who want to injure and discredit Ireland's political future."

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 6.—Fort Wayne, Ind., was chosen for the 1917 meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church. The convention in session here completed its work today.

The meeting which adjourned at Kalamazoo, Mich., Friday, and which comes to Fort Wayne next year, is the northwestern branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church and represents four states, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana. There will be twelve hundred delegates and the meeting promises to be one of the largest ever held in this city.

Some time ago officials of the northwestern branch wrote here asking if Fort Wayne was desirous of entertaining the convention next year. A meeting of the five local auxiliaries was immediately called and those in attendance were enthusiastic, realizing, however, that to properly entertain so many visitors it would be necessary for societies of the other denominations to co-operate. As a result another meeting was called, which was attended by a majority of the societies of the other churches. They agreed to assist in the entertainment. Later at a meeting of the district superintendent, the ministers of the five Methodist churches in Fort Wayne and representatives from each of the auxiliaries it was decided to extend an official invitation at the same time explaining that, although there was no convention hall here and no auditorium large enough to adequately take care of such a large gathering, Fort Wayne would be pleased to entertain the convention if the delegates cared to come under these circumstances. About twelve delegates from Fort Wayne were in attendance at the meeting in Kalamazoo.

Clarence Pickering, 18, lives with his grandma at 1802 Hale avenue. Grandma is stayed in her ways and always insists that Clarence be home at 9 o'clock. Sometimes he almost forgot when down town with the boys. On such occasions he just borrowed somebody's Ford car and rode home in a hurry.

The lad admitted to Detective Sergeant Charles Spillner and later in police court that he had taken three machines to affect his Cinderella like return when he had been amid the glare of Calhoun street as the clock struck nine.

Police had found the automobiles in the Rolling mill district after a night of searching, when the cars were reported missing from in front of theaters. Spillner started working on the theory that some boy in the west end was taking the cars for joy rides. He questioned several youths and when he confronted the Pickering boy the lad confessed his guilt.

Pickering has been employed at the Wayne Knitting mills. He has never been in trouble before and declared that he had no evil intentions in borrowing the machines. He was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to thirty days at the state farm.

Put on Style.

George Beane, 17, Swinney Park avenue, and Alexander Betley, 18, 720 Poplar street, thought they would "put on some style" when they attended the carnival on North Clinton street, two weeks ago. They appropriated an automobile, which they found standing in front of the Majestic theater.

The boys drove to the carnival grounds and left the machine standing while they "just looked around." Then they drove the car to the west end of town and left it standing in the street. Police found the machine the next morning.

The automobile belonged to John Landenberger, vice president of the American Road Machine company. He had police to make a thorough investigation. The two youths were taken to the police station, Thursday, where they confessed having taken the car.

Judge Kerr will dispose of the case, Saturday morning. The boys, who have entered pleas of guilty to charges of unlawful possession of a motor vehicle, are held under $200 bond.

Had Accosted Small Girl.

William Borden, 65, of Bryan, O., was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 30 days at the state farm on a loitering charge. It was proven that he tried to induce an eleven year old girl to go to the show with him and that he made unseeming gestures before her.

Borden readily paid the fine but will have to serve the jail sentence.

Other Police Court Cases.

Case against Earl Voss, machinist, charging disorderly conduct, was continued indefinitely.

WILSON DAY WILL BE OBSERVED ON OCT. 28

The democratic national committee has designated Saturday, October 28, as Wilson day. This day will be observed by all the people of the United States as a day upon which they will pay their respects to the president of the United States and show their appreciation of the great public service that he has rendered his country.

On that day the president is to send a message to his countrymen which is to be read in every county, city, town and hamlet in the land. This message is to be a sort of proclamation of the new freedom, and is to be read with all the solemnity of the occasion by some prominent person appointed by the local committee.

GRAND PIANOS

Something You Ought to Know About Quality and Price

A Grand Piano at that price, however, ceases to be an artistic Instrument in appearance. It's the Tone, Action, all the musical values, and character of the Instrument that make it the real Grand Piano.

Makers like Steinway & Sons, A. B. Chase, Kranich & Bach, Krakauer, Sohmer, embody all the Essentials necessary to make a Grand Piano worthy of the Name "Grand." Those Makes are the best the World affords, and anyone having a desire to own a Grand should consider that it is impossible to buy a first-class Grand at a less price than you are obliged to pay for a strictly first-class upright.

Jacobs Music House are Sole Agents for the above named instruments, and a visit to this store will bear out the truth of this statement.

BIG AUDIENCE HEARS GOODRICH AT MAJESTIC

Declaring that the expense of running the state government under democratic rule had been far in excess of what the republicans had spent and criticising the democrats for failing to solve the tax question, James P. Goodrich, republican candidate for governor, spoke before a large audience Thursday night at the Majestic theater, closing his Allen county tour which had included speeches at Huntertown, Harlan, Monroeville, Grabill and the Electric works.

B. Paul Mossman presided at the meeting held at the theater. He introduced Mr. Goodrich, not as a "spellbinder," but as a sound business man who would give the state an honest, economic administration.

Mr. Goodrich denied that the state tax rate had been reduced and said that benevolent institutions of Indiana were inefficient as to management. The speaker said commissions had been created carrying large salaries during the democratic rule adding greatly to the expenditures of the state government. Mr. Goodrich declared the present tax rate was increasing the burden on realty and personal property and that it was driving capital into hiding.

Showed Constructive Program.

The candidate pointed to the constructive program which the republicans were offering. "We submit a constitutional amendment prohibiting the increase of an official's salary while in office," declared the speaker. "A man is not going to put forth special exertion to bring about an increase in his successor's salary. This provision will take care of that question. We submit a constitutional amendment giving the governor power to veto an appropriation and providing for the budget system. We say that we will make scientific examination of the business of the state, removing officials who are inefficient."

"It is the universal judgment of every thinking person that Ralston's administration has been a failure," said the candidate. In concluding Mr. Goodrich said that every promise made by the republicans since 1896 has been written into the law of the land.

AT MILAN CENTER.

James M. Robinson, Former Congressman, Addresses Democratic Meeting.

"They said years ago that the democrats, in power, would pay the rebel debt and this argument was used for many years," declared James M. Robinson, former congressman, speaking Thursday night before a democratic meeting at Milan Center. "They also said that the party would put the colored men back into slavery, a statement no longer believed as thousands of colored men are now supporting the democratic ticket. And most all of those now living in Indiana vote for their firm and steadfast friend, Thomas Taggart.

"The republicans also said that the democrats would stop pensions, but it turned out that democrats were the best friends the soldiers had," asserted the speaker.

AT SCIPIO CENTER SCHOOL.

A democratic rally was held at Scipio Center school Thursday night when Judge John H. Aiken, Louis Dunten, attorney, and Elder Porter were the speakers. Charles Hohnauer presided. The Maysville drum corps headed an auto parade. The young democrats of Scipio Center, it was decided, should affiliate with the Maysville organization. The two places will join in the formation of a Young Men's Democratic league.

TRIBUTE TO WILSON.

Frank A. Emrick Is Speaker at Democratic Meeting at Zulu.

At a democratic meeting held at Zulu Thursday night, Frank A. Emrick, prosecuting attorney; David C. Stout, county clerk, and Robert Shirley were the speakers.

Mr. Emrick paid a tribute to President Wilson and used for his speech the recent visit of the president to Fort Wayne. "I will never forget," said Mr. Emrick, "the spectacle that I saw the other day when President Wilson, who was in Fort Wayne, greeted the crowds. As he leaned over to shake hands I saw extended the hands of youth and old age, the hands of the laborer begrimed with toil and soot, the gloved hands of the ladies and wrinkled hands of the mothers raised as if in benediction to him who had kept their sons from the ravages of war. I said to myself, 'surely the hearts of the people must be with Woodrow Wilson in this campaign.'"

AT CENTER SCHOOL.

Issues of Campaign Discussed at Democratic Meeting.

There was a democratic meeting at Center school Thursday night at which Howard Benninghoff, R. Earl Peters and Avery M. Groves were the speakers. It was one of the largest meetings of its kind held in Jackson township for some time. Congressman Cline, who was billed to speak, could not attend the meeting. He was taken ill two days ago and was forced to return to his home.

A young men's democratic league was formed at the conclusion of the meeting. Grover Grabner was elected president; Bert Jones, secretary, and Bert Lothamer, treasurer. The president will appint his lieutenants and report to democratic headquarters.

The accomplishments of the democratic administration were reviewed by Mr. Benninghoff and he commented on the manner in which the country had been kept out of war by the president.

Speaking in place of Congressman Cline, Mr. Peters said that there were three great principles in which the democrats believed, they being peace with honor, preparedness with militarism and prosperity without favoritism.

BURGLAR WANTED INSURANCE MONEY

Omar Zimmerman, 4002 South Calhoun street, made his round of collections Thursday, as usual, but he stored the fruits of his weekly harvest in the bank Thursday afternoon. The burglar who entered Zimmerman's home through the rear door Thursday evening found but $4 in pennies and dimes in the little box where the insurance money is sometimes kept.

Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman were at the show when Mr. Burglar paid their home a visit between 7 and 10 o'clock and the man had things to his liking. He ransacked the house. A gold watch belonging to Mrs. Zimmerman and valued at $25 and a gold bracelet were taken.

Entrance to the home was gained through the rear door where the thief had removed the glass by use of a wide jimmey. The box in which Zimmerman keeps his insurance fees at times was removed from a dresser drawer and its contents of small change taken. The insurance dues were evidently sought by the thief.

FIREMAN COULDN'T BURN THE WRAPPERS

Instead He Returned Them to Rub-No-More Company for Premiums.

Run on the resources of the premium department of the Rub-No-More Soap company was stopped, Thursday afternoon, when Detective Sergeant Pappert called at a little home at 332 Nussbaum street. There he found the woman who had just about succeeded in cornering all the prize stock of the soap company.

Police were called on the case because the Rub-No-More company managers realized that they were giving out silver table sets, lace curtains, rings and lockets faster than it would be possible for people of one neighborhood to collect soap wrappers, which are redeemed by the company. "Mrs. Gray, 326 Liberty street," was getting most of the valuable gifts.

At least a testimonial as to why she used so much of the soap was in order from the woman, one of the managers of the company thought, and he called on "Mrs. Gray." There was no such person and no such number on Liberty street he found.

Detective Sergeant Pappert questioned workmen at the soap factory. He found that Charles Fry, fireman at the plant, was given the redeemed coupons to destroy. Fry hesitated when asked what he had been doing with the soap wrappers. A visit to his home on Nussbaum street revealed an array of the silver premiums and the lace curtains and even the locket.

Mrs. Fry gave the articles over to police and they were restored to the factory. There will be no prosecution by the company as Fry has a family of five children to support.

CAPT. JACK WILLIAMS, oldest swimming coach afloat. He is 81 years old, and still actively engaged in promoting water sport. Capt. Jack calls himself "God of the Sea," and claims to be as old and as capable as Neptune.

In his day Williams was one of the greatest swimmers that ever bent a springboard. In 1882 he won the world's championship at Montreal, Canada, against a field of picked swimmers from the great nations of the earth. When he was 75 years old he swam from Alton, Ohio, to St. Louis, Mo., a distance of 36 miles, in six hours and 45 minutes.

Capt. Jack also claims to be the first man ever to swim San Francisco bay. He did this in 1890, when he was 55 years old, against a strong rip tide. Williams' one best bet now is swimming with his hands and feet tied.

"My greatest ambition," says Capt. Jack, "is to develop a world's champion open water swimmer. That's what brought me to Catalina Island. The greatest swimmers in the world come here every year, as do the greatest potential swimmers. I hope to pick a sturdy American from amongst these men some day who will beat both Langer and Kahanamoku."

There will be no idle passenger equipment and passenger train and engine crews on the Western division of the Pennsylvania tomorrow, because of the many special trains that will be in service. Two will carry members of the Western Veteran Association of the Fort Wayne road to Valparaiso, where the seventh annual convention will be held. One will start at Fort Wayne at 10:20 in the morning and the other will start from Chicago about 11 o'clock in the morning and each arrive at Valparaiso at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The train from this city will have five cars and the one from Chicago will carry three cars. Other specials will run as the second and third sections of No. 22, due here at 1:55 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The first section will be the regular train, which will be unusually heavy. The second train will carry the western delegates to the annual convention at Washington of the Paint, Oil and Varnish association and the third train will carry the western delegates to the American Electrical Railway association's convention, which will be held in Atlantic city next week. There was a special train, bearing President Wilson and party, through the city as a second section of the Broadway limited, at 3:50 o'clock this afternoon.

LEARNING E-7-S ENGINE'S TRAITS.

Next week when the general manager's inspection of Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg is made, the four trains used will be handled over the entire route by E-7-S locomotives, which belong to the Pennsylvania lines and are practically unknown on the controlled lines. In order that the G. R. & I. engine men will not be embarrassed by the class of engines used, the Pennsylvania this morning turned over to that company a locomotive of the E-7-S type for study and next Wednesday, when the excursion trains are handled over the line from Richmond to Fort Wayne, three more of the same type will be turned over to the G. R. & I. The inspection trains will commence passing through Fort Wayne at 2:15 Wednesday afternoon.

SOME SYSTEM TO THIS CAMPAIGN HANDSHAKE

What is the difference in the systems of hand-shaking of Wilson and Hughes?

There is a system, both men say, and there is a difference, others claim. Fort Wayne ought to know this because hundreds of her citizens have shaken the hands of both President Wilson and Candidate Hughes within the past two weeks.

"Wilson had the firmer handshake," said one of the city police officers, who had the pleasure of greeting both men during their stops here.

For ten minutes President Wilson leaned far out over the rail of the rear platform of his car, Wednesday, and greeted his enthusiastic followers by a warm handshake. He took the hand of 300 people during his brief stay in Fort Wayne, it is estimated.

It was a cosmos of extended hands which reached up towards the president as he walked out upon the rear platform of his car when the train stopped Wednesday afternoon. Just behind the first tier of citizens eager to touch the hands of our nation's leader were waving hats, fluttering handkerchiefs and myriads of small flags rotating above the heads of those who shouted, "We are for you, Woodrow." As the president reached out to take the chubby hand of a schoolboy, whose childish ambition no doubt was being realized when he touched the person of the president, and whose father had proudly lifted the lad up to where he could touch the rear platform, there was wave upon wave of renewed applause.

It was the signal for nearly ten minutes of almost constant handshaking between Fort Wayne and the president.

Greeted All Alike.

President Wilson grasped with equal fervor the horny and massive hands of laboring men, the firm palm of artisans and clerks, the more delicate fingers of women and the small, plump hands of children.

At times he jerked his hand and snapped his fingers to denote that somebody had used most of his strength in expressing his earnest belief in the president. But Wilson always smiled. And the crowd cheered time and again. He did not tire or lose his warmth.

Hughes Some Handshaker.

Hughes, the republican candidate for president, made handshaking the most impressive feature of his visit to Fort Wayne. He made a mild record also while clasping hands here, although he hurried to the retirement of his private car as soon as possible after his remarks from the plank platform at the Pennsylvania station.

"Hughes shook hands like he meant it, alright," one man who gained the attention of the candidate said.

"Wilson acted as though he was not afraid to reach out after my hand," an enthusiastic laborer said after the train had gone Wednesday.

"Hughes' hand felt like a cake of soap," one man who greeted the republican candidate said.

"I could not notice any difference between shaking hands with Wilson and with anybody else," one woman admitted Wednesday.

But there is a difference because Wilson has made a science of handshaking. He has made a study of the exercise with the same thoroughness he has met all his problems, for he realizes that handshaking is a problem which if neglected would mean uncontrollable weariness.

Wilson's Handshake Rule.

Here is the rule Wilson gave out to the reporter who interviewed him on that topic:

"Stand in an easy position, with feet slightly apart, to maintain balance under all conditions

"Allow the arm, from the shoulder to the elbow, to rest along the body, thereby conserving strength.

"Bend the arm upward at the elbow, with the fingers separated slightly, so they cannot be seized.

"Grasp the other fellow's hand first, clasping it firmly but not too hard, at the same time moving the arm outward at the shoulder, gently leading the caller along.

"Avoid saying anything except such pleasantries as "Glad to meet you" and "How do you do?" to limit the possibility of return remarks which might invite the caller to stop and talk, thereby delaying the line."

Hughes' System.

Hughes declined to talk on the subject, but a journalist has written the following definite impressions gained from months of observing the tactics of the former judge:

"There is a carefully calculated method in Mr. Hughes' finger-gripping exercises. He always arranges to have the crowds come from the left toward the right, so the swing of his arm as he grips the hand brings the object of the handshake in front of him, and before he knows it, past him.

"The nominee always grips the other man's hand—for then he is master of the situation and when he releases the grip the owner of the hand has nothing to do but move on.

"He carries his gospel of efficiency even into the atmosphere of receptions, believing that a carelessly accomplished handshake is a lost handshake, which can never be recovered."

All Handshaking Alike.

The handshaking carried out on campaigning tours is no different from that of public receptions or the ballroom. The object in each case is personal contact. The handshake by a presidential candidate is generally considered by students of politics to be a vote secured.

The only difference between ordinary reception handshaking and the campaign brand is the number of hands shaken and the various kinds of grips. There are always hand crushers in the crowd. Men proud of their ability to grab fingers and jamb them together until the bones crackle. The inexperienced man who meets these "squashers" generally casts an anxious glance downward to see if any fingers have fallen off.

The percentage of these "strong men" is just enough to make candidates fear for the preservation of the extremity of their right arm if not protected by a system. Public men say they can generally tell when a "crusher" is coming by the look in his eye. They are always on the lookout for him. And the nugget of their preparedness is—"Always grab the other fellow's hand first."

Most persons do not realize it, or, if they do, say nothing about it, but almost invariably the public man who is greeted does the handshaking. The experienced fingers clasp the hand that is inexperienced.

There are other features of the scientific formula, which is followed by such public men as President Wilson, Mr. Hughes, Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Mr. Bryan, Champ Clark and others. One is to array those who are to be received in a long line and keep that line MOVING.

The handshaker almost always can regulate the speed of the line. Usually he facilitates its forward march with a gentle pull on every hand that comes his way. At the same time the grip is relinquished and the person whose hand has been shaken hurries on without time to think it over.

Keep the Line Moving.

Mr. Wilson, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft under favorable conditions are able to shake hands with from forty-five to sixty persons a minute. On such occasions the line moves at an easy walking gait with no hitches. The person whose hand is shaken goes right along without stopping. He never had a chance to say more than "How d' do?" or maybe only "How——" It's one of the rules of long distance handshakers never to engage in conversation with those who are passing. If a personal friend is in line he can be seen later. But there must be no delay in the general battle front.

Mr. Roosevelt is recognized as one of the most accomplished handshakers in the country. He invariably grins as the line passes, compelling the person being received to look into his face, and not at his hand. This facilitates the handshaking, as the individual pays minimum attention to the clasp. Mr. Roosevelt, the last year he was in the white house, shook hands with nine thousand persons in three hours at a New Year's reception.

Mr. Wilson also is a skilled handshaker. He is wiry and quick to keep a line moving rapidly even under unfavorable conditions. To shake hands with 1,500 persons before starting to work in the white house is a mere incident for Mr. Wilson. Not long ago at Columbus, O., he shook hands with upward of 6,000 persons in two hours.

Mr. Hughes on his campaign trips is shaking hands with several thousand persons a day in addition to making speeches.

Friday Was Dull Day on Fort Wayne Markets—Receipts Light.

There was nothing "doing" in the hog and grain markets Friday, the two markets which have created the greatest commotion in trade centers for the past two weeks. While hog prices took an awful drop, wheat prices kept rising. Friday, however, both were moving over level territory. Indications are, however, that they will both soon resume their former courses. Wheat prices promise to hit the highest spot ever while hogs are going the other way.

Friday was an exceptionally dull day on all the local markets and receipts were very light. Only a few loads of grain appeared on the wholesale street market and elevator men report but light receipts. Flour prices took their advance as predicted today.

Farmers throughout the county are busy husking their corn. A large amount of the corn is being husked from the stalks as it stands in the field. The corn fodder will be very scare and what there is of it is poor. Reports from farmers, however, bear out the statement that the corn crop will be good.

Egg prices remain the same but are very unrestful and it is possible that in a few days they will slip up a few more notches.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Bearish reports from Argentina had a depressing effect on the wheat marke here today. It was said that Argentine weather conditions had become unsettled and that showers were expected, whereas heretofore no sign had been reported of a break up of the drought. Opening prices, which ranged from 1c decline to ½c advance, with December at $1.59¼ to $1.60 and May at $1.58¾ to $1.60, were followed by a material setback all around, but then something of a rally.

The close was weak at ⅞c to 1⅜c under yesterday's finish.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 6.—Several gains, including several new maximums, were scored in the diversified dealings of today's early trading. Central Leather rising over four points to 83¾ and Beet Sugar a point to par. American Zinc was another strong issue, gaining, 3½ points, with one or more for Butte and Superior, Studebaker, Westinghouse, Railway Steel Springs and Linseed preferred. The feature of the railway list, which inclined towards irregularity, was Denver and Rio Grande preferred at a gain of 2½ points on unusually large offerings. Leading rails and other standard issues were at moderate recessions from yesterday's final prices.

The market's remarkable breadth may be judged from the fact that over 250 distinct issues changed hands in the first hour, establishing a record for many years. Among other notably strong features of the forenoon were Hide and Leather preferred, Sloss-Sheffield Steel the Chemical and Fretilizer shares and a large assortment of unclassified stocks. For a brief time rails gave promise of asserting their recent prominence and strength but the movement in that quarter underwent speedy reversal.

United States Steel also denoted renewed pressure. Further irregularity prevailed at noon. Bonds were strong.

DREAMS COME TRUE THROUGH BABY BONDS

Many a young man starts his career with many high aspirations, which are only ruined by spendthrift habits, eventually leading to a hand-to-mouth existence. However, if extravagant habits are checked by a determination to save a fixed sum each week or month and the savings thus effected invested in some sound security such as Baby Bonds, the original goal becomes not only possible but probable.

Baby Bonds come in $10 denominations, are secured by first mortgages on local real estate and bear six per cent. interest. There are also some $500 bonds with the same rate of interest and having the same security. For further information see the Wildwood Sales company, Shoaff building.

ELIZABETH GLENDOWER EVANS.

Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans, of Boston, member of the Massachusetts Commission which was the first in the United States to investigate women's wages, and which recommended a Minimum Wage Law, has declared herself as strongly in favor of the re-election of Woodrow Wilson. Mrs. Evans says he has "made good."

"And those who have a contract with the people for social justice," she declares, "should be the ones above all others to vote him a continued lease of office."

Mrs. Evans, Suffragist, believes that universal Woman Suffrage will be attained more rapidly by the passage of a Federal Amendment than by the so-called "State method." "Of course," says Mrs. Evans, "if the claims that Mr. Hughes' election would secure the passage of the Susan B. Anthony Amendment through Congress could be substantiated, this would weigh heavily with most suffragists. But such a claim is to distort facts; it carries with it no promise of performance.

"The Progressives should see that the Democratic party under President Wilson's masterly leadership has proved a real instrument of the popular will."

WATER SUPPLY SYSTEMS OF AMERICAN CITIES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—A report under the title "General Statistics of Cities, 1915," recently issued by the census bureau, brings out in a striking manner the progress made by many American cities during a little more than a decade in respect to the improvement of their water supply. Of the 204 cities having more than 30,000 inhabitants in the fiscal year 1914-15, 155, or 76 per cent. owned their water supply systems. Seventy-three of these cities were operating purification plants in that year, and of this number 61 had either built or improved and enlarged their plants since 1903.

During this same period there has been throughout the country a remarkable decrease in the death rate due to typhoid fever. Although this decrease has taken place in both urban and rural localities, it is noteworthy that in most of the large cities which have recently built or improved and enlarged their purification plants the decline has been greater—in some cases very much greater—than the average decline elsewhere. For example, in Cleveland the typhoid death rate fell from 111 per 100,000 population in 1903 to 8.1 in 1914; in Philadelphia, from 72.3 to 7.6; in Pittsburg, from 132.7 to 15; in Cincinnati, from 42.2 to 6.2; in Chicago, from 32.5 to 6.6; in St. Louis, from 52.6 to 12; in Washington, D. C., from 48.5 to 11.9; in Minneapolis, from 41.1 to 12.5, and in New York city, from 17.1 to 6.3.

The history of the purification of water for public use dates from 1829, when some filter beds were used in connection with the water supply of London, England; but the discovery that slow sand filteration not only removed inorganic matter, turbidity, color, taste, odor, etc.—acting merely as a strainer—but also removed nearly all the bacteria, was not made until about sixty years later.

The first purification plant constructed in the United States was put in operation in Washington, D. C., in 1873. This was of the "sedimentation" type, which depends upon the force of gravity to carry down and deposit the clay and silt. Similar plants were installed in Louisville, Ky., in 1879; Council Bluffs, Iowa, in 1883; Dallas, Tex., in 1889, and Omaha, Neb., and Oshkosh, Wis., in 1890.

In the Omaha plant sedimentation was combined with coagulation, the latter process consisting in the introduction into the water of some chemical, usually sulphate of alumina, through the action of which the impurities are carried to the bottom. The first plant employing mechanical filteration was installed at Oshkosh, Wis., in 1890. This process, like that of slow sand filtration, depends upon freeing the water from impurities by straining it through sand, but the straining is accelerated by the use of agitating or stirring machinery. From 1892 to 1899, inclusive, purification plants, each involving one or more of these four processes—slow sand filteration, sedimentation, coagulation and mechanical filtration—were installed in ten other cities of more than 30,000 inhabitants.

Chemical Sterilization.

In 1900 a plant for the purification of water by chemical sterilization was built at Mobile, Ala. This process consists in the addition to the water of various chemicals which either kill the bacteria or make it possible to remove them by subsidence or filtration. From 1905 to 1914, inclusive, chemical sterilization plants were built in forty other cities of over 30,000, and at the present time more than half of the municipally owned water supply systems having purification plants are using this method, either exclusively or in combination with one or more of the other processes.

Of the 73 cities employing purification systems, sixty obtain their water supply, wholly or in part, from rivers and other streams, twelve from lakes and one [illegible] Neb.—from wells.

Cost of Water Supply Plants.

The growing solicitude for the purity and adequacy of the water supply is further indicated by the very considerable increase which has taken place during recent years in the amount invested in municipal water supply plants. The total capital invested in these plants in 1903-4, in the 105 cities of over 30,000 which owned, either wholly or in part and operated their water systems, and for which data are available, was, in round numbers, $513,000,000, representing a per capita investment of approximately $29. In the fiscal year 1914-15 the number of such cities owning their plants had increased to 155, the total investment to $1,071,000,000, and the per capita investment to approximately $38. The increase in the per capita investment during the eleven years thus amounted to 31 per cent.

While it is, of course, quite true that an adequate supply of pure water can be provided for one city at a far less per capita cost than for another, by reason of differences in the construction problems involved or in the nature of the sources from which the water is obtained, the fact of prime significance brought out by the report is that an efficient system is now regarded by most cities as an economic necessity and hence is acquired, regardless of the cost.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 6.—The movement to abolish the system of athletic coaching by highly paid experts took definite form here today with the publication of the report of the special committee in charge of Yale athletics. This report signed by Robert M. Corwin, as chairman of the committee, asserts that "unless Yale can, from her own resources, graduate and under graduate, develop her teams without such artificial stimulants so that she can reasonably compete with her rivals, it would be best to eliminate inter-collegiate athletics altogether under the dawn of an era of reasonableness in such things."

The committee declares that the budget for Yale football coaching for one year alone is considerable and this money is expended in the employment of a small number of men for only a few weeks, while the expenses of the coaching of the crew are proportionately large.

"The intensity of this rivalry, if unchecked, may so increase as to make inter-collegiate athletics an unprofitable scramble for the raising of huge sums of money for the payment of the disproportionate salaries demanded by expert coaches," add the committee. "It may be urged that Yale cannot forego such advantages unless he rivals follow her example, but present practices must, it would seem, lead to still greater lengths of extravagance and absurdity."

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 6.—Warrants issued by the state's attorney's office are out today for the alleged perpetrators of a swindle charged to the so-called blackmail syndicate wherein $10,000 was obtained. Samuel P. Parmly, a capitalist, a title and trust company, two lawyers and a real estate dealer, are involved in the transaction, though innocent of its purport.

Agents are looking for a man who claimed to be James Chipman or James D. Kirkland, an inventor of an "electric fly screen," and his wife. According to the state's attorney's office this woman appeared at the office of the attorney and asked him to dispose of a trust deed for $10,000 which she said her husband, the inventor, had received from Parmly for his patent rights to the "electric fly screen," which she claimed would electrocute flies. She said Mrs. Parmly had befriended her husband, who was in financial straits.

In the course of negotiations it is charged "Doc" Donahue, an alleged member of the blackmail syndicate, impersonated Mr. Parmly with the result that the money was paid over by the real estate dealer to the couple and they disappeared. The title and trust company is said to have guaranteed the trust deed supposed to have been made by Mrs. Parmly, accepting the document as genuine. Mr. Parmly denied that he had issued such a deed.

WORKS BOARD PASSES ON NINE SIDEWALKS

Two Proposed Improvements Are Defeated by Remonstrance.

Bids will be let for building nine cement sidewalks, the board of public works decided Thursday night. The walks, to be made of cement, are to be located as follows: On the east side of Jackson street, from Lavina street to the Chipman addition; on the south side of Walnut street, from Fairfield avenue to Oakley street; on the east side of South Wayne avenue, from Organ avenue to Branning street; on the east side of Beaver avenue, from Federal avenue to Rudisill avenue; on the north side of Greenlawn avenue, from Koch street to Hench street; on both sides of Leith street, from Calhoun street to Hoagland avenue; on the south side of Grace street, from Fox avenue to Broadway; on both sides of Grant avenue, from Washington street to Maumee avenue; on the west side of Lantz avenue, from Tennessee avenue to Delaware avenue.

Hancock avenue will not be graded from Maumee avenue to McDonald street, because a remonstrance against the grading was presented to the board, signed by the majority of the property owners along the avenue. All action on building cement sidewalks on both sides of Jones street, from Rockhill street to Nelson street, was rescinded for the same reason.

Assessment rolls were confirmed for walks on the west side of Harrison street, from Main street to Pearl street, and on both sides of Harrison street, from First street to the alley north. Remonstrance against paving the alley south of Creighton avenue, from Fox avenue to Minor street, was overruled.

NEW YORK WOMEN FIGHT POLICE IN CAR STRIKE

New York, Oct. 6.—Spurred on by the exhortations of "Mother" Jones, labor agitator, 300 wives and women relatives of striking street car men battled with the police late yesterday afternoon in the most serious riot since the walkout on the traction lines began a month ago. Nightsticks were swung right and left by the police and many of the women were bruised. Scores of the rioters carried babies in their arms.

A crowd of strikers, who had congregated around the uptown hall where the meeting addressed by "Mother" Jones was held, entered the fray on the side of the women and was driving back the few patrolmen on the scene when an automobile load of blue-coated reinforcements arrived. The reserves plunged into the midst of the struggling mob and wielded their clubs without mercy. When the rioters finally fled they left nine prisoners—six women and three men—in the hands of the police.

The trouble began when the women poured out of the hall where "Mother" Jones had exhorted them to "get the 'scabs' off the cars."

"You are too sentimental," she had cried, "staying at home thinking of dress and trinkets when you ought to be out raising hell."

Trooping into the street, the women hooted and jeered at crosstown cars in Eighty-sixth street. Suddenly a chunk of asphalt was hurled through the window of a car halted by a large automobile truck. This seemed the signal for a general attack on the car, and in less than a minute every window was shattered. A patrolman who was on strike duty escorted the forty or fifty passengers into the street and then charged alone into the crowd of jeering women. He was helpless, however, until assistance arrived.

READY TO FIGHT, BUT CAUSE MUST BE JUST

President is Given Tremendous Ovation by Crowds at Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 6.—President Wilson discussed the European war, peace and American business in three speeches here yesterday.

He declared America is as ready to fight as any nation in the world, but that its cause must be just.

After the war, he said, this nation must join a league of nations to preserve the peace of the world.

Seldom before has the president received such an uproar of cheering as greeted him from the crowds of people packing the Omaha auditorium last night. The applause was ear-splitting. He rose several times and bowed, smiling broadly. Calls of "three cheers for our next president," were heard.

The majority of the crowd were men, but many women were present. A great crowd packed the streets outside. For several minutes there were such calls as "Who kept us out of war?—Wilson." "Who prevented the strike?—Wilson." "Who saved the nation?—Wilson."

Governor Morehead, of Nebraska, introduced the president. Every mention of Mr. Wilson's name evoked applause.

"It would be very difficult to do justice to an occasion of this kind," began the president. He spoke of the importance of the west, mentioning Nebraska particularly, and praised the people who come from Europe to seek freedom. The doors of the United States, he said, were built to be kept open, not to be closed. He paid tribute to the western pioneers.

"It is very important," he said, "that the statesmen of other nations should understand America. We have held off from the conflagration in Europe because we wanted to play a different part."

The causes of the European war, the president said, are not plainly known.

"But Europe should understand us," he said. "We are holding off because when we use the force of this nation we want to know what we are using it for.

"There is as much fight in America as in any nation in the world.

"We want always to hold the force of America to fight for the rights of mankind, not for the rights of property. But in fighting for these things we should know what the touchstone is. We must have absolute allegiance to America. We must be truly American. The rights of humanity are the essence of freedom.

"We want all the world to know that we are ready to use all force to maintain peace among mankind. The starting of wars can never again be the private concern of any one nation. We must use all force, moral and physical, to uphold a league of nations, to uphold the peace of the world."

The president was cheered during the day by big crowds. The size of the crowds and the enthusiasm shown far exceeded anything he has experienced since his inauguration.

Attracted here for the celebration of Nebraska's fiftieth anniversary, thousands of people from nearby cities and states packed Omaha's streets and shouted frantically every time Mr. Wilson appeared. It was an impressive demonstration which greatly pleased the president and his political advisers.

MOORE'S Combination Range

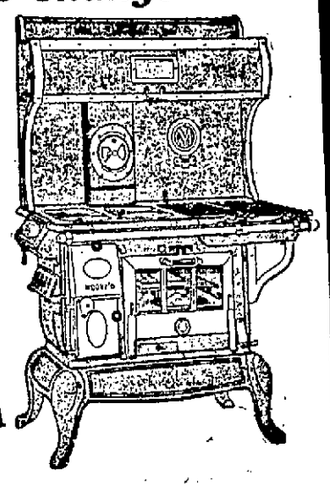
The Benefits of A Coal or Gas



Combination Range like this are apparent these cool mornings. You don't feel like starting the furnace just yet, but the kitchen is too cold to work in. You need a fire of some kind. All right. A few sticks of wood or a shovel of coal will take the chill off in a jiffy. Then when the house gets warm you can switch over to gas. In fact, you can follow this program all winter. Not until you get a Moore's Combination Range in your home will you realize how easy it is to have.

A Cool Kitchen When You Want It-- A Warm Kitchen When You Need It

A Moore's Combination Cast Range takes up only half the room that two stoves would require. (Where will you find a kitchen these days large enough for two stoves?) And it means only half the work to keep it clean. In this age of modern efficiency a Moore's Combination Range is a necessity. Don't overlook the fact that the cost is very little greater for this TWO-IN-ONE Stove than the cost of a Gas Range or Coal Range. Then it's so easy to own one.

TEACH CHILDREN TO PLAY, SAY EXPERTS

They Point Way to Rid the Nation of the Boy Bandit.

(By Honor Fanning.)

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 4.—Teach the youngsters to play "pum pum pull-away" and we will have fewer boy bandits and sickly children in our big cities!

This is the message the International Recreation congress will give parents and teachers of the nation when the congress meets here this week.

"Children have forgotten the old-fashioned, vigorous, body-building games of "pum pum pull-away" and "I spy," which kept youngsters of twenty-five years ago lively and sturdy—kept them out of the dark alleys and away from crap games, kept them bright-eyed and healthy," says Charles F. Weller, of Chicago, a pioneer in the playground movement and associate secretary of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

"The child who has forgotten how to play, and has no place to try to play, is the child that falls victim to disease and crime."

The "back to play" movement is only ten years old, but the playground association has established supervised playgrounds in 432 cities.

Last year more than $4,000,000 was spent for playgrounds. More than 1,000 new playgrounds were opened in the last two years. In many cities and small towns there are playgrounds without formal supervision.

El Paso, Texas, appropriated $10,000 city funds for playgrounds; Athens, Ohio, has a five-acre playground; in Memphis, Minneapolis—in every section of the country teachers, club women and mayors are helping young America regain his lost heritage—the playground.

Games that were played in the pastures and big back yards before the modern flat and tenement robbed children of their playgrounds will be discussed at the congress.

"Not every child of that day was an 'angel child,'" says a playground enthusiast, "but at least there were no 'boy bandits,' no 'baby dope fiends,' fewer delinquent girls and fewer children dying of tuberculosis."

"We are not only helping children to learn what the big cities have taught them to forget, but we are appealing to grown-ups to use their leisure time in some way that goes to the construction of character: we want them to be active and happy, not idle and miserable; to use time rather than waste leisure," says Secretary Weller.

Alonzo Ingalls, of Denmark, Me., is seventy-seven years old, but he had never seen the ocean or a trolley car until he paid a visit to Old Orchard and Saco a few days ago.

Until his recent retirement, Dr. Loomis Pomeroy Haskell, a native of Bangor, Me., age ninety, was the oldest practicing dentist in the United States, having been in practice seventy years.

CHILDREN WITNESSES IN CASE OF FATHER CHARGED WITH KILLING MOTHER.

The grand jury of Buchanan county, Missouri, investigating the case of Oscar McDaniels, county prosecutor, charged with the murder of his wife, has summoned McDaniels' three children as witnesses.

It is said the children were in the McDaniels home at St. Joseph, Mo., the night their father claims he found his wife bruised and dying. Testimony given by the children, if it should help convict their father and result in his sentence to death, will make them orphans.

McDaniels, for several months, aided county officials trying to solve the murder. He said he received threatening letters from men he, as prosecutor, had sent to jail. The authorities charge now McDaniels may have written the letters himself to throw off suspicion.

McDaniels says he will defend his own case and prove his innocence. He asked for a speedy trial as he is a candidate for re-election in November.

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel safe in recommending to the readers of this eye-sight destroying family." Dreier & Meyer Drug Co.'s Sells It.

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

PAUL BEFORE FELIX.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 24.

GOLDEN TEXT—Herein I also exercise myself to have a conscience void of offense toward God and men always.—Acts 24:16.

This is a court scene, and it might be well with certain classes to introduce the lesson by describing such a gathering. The lesson occurred five days after the last lesson, and twelve days after Paul reached Jerusalem, bearing the collection for the poor. The place, Cæsarea, was the Roman capital of Judea.

I. The Prisoner's Examination (vv. 1-9). In addition to the Roman governor, Felix, attired in his gorgeous official regalia, on a platform nearby, were the high priest of the Jews, in his highly colored and jeweled robes, the lawyer, Tertullus, in his Roman toga, and the elders of the Sanhedrin who had come down from Jerusalem to be witnesses against Paul. Of Tertullus it was said that, by his persuasive tongue, he could make white seem black, and could therefore more easily make it appear that Paul was "a danger to the Roman power, and not merely a turbulent and renegade Jew." The judge, Felix, was an exceptionally bad governor, who two years later was recalled by Nero to Rome. The inference of verse two is that Paul was an inciter of rebellion and robberies, but the exact charges were three-fold: (See vv. 5-6) (a) that Paul was a mover of insurrection; (b) that he was a ringleader of a sect of Nazarenes who were causing trouble in the province: and (c) that he had profaned the Jewish temple at Jerusalem. The charge of insurrection would be especially obnoxious to Felix who had just been praised for keeping peace in his dominion. That of being a leader of heresy was not serious, for the Romans had no desire to interfere between one Jewish sect and another, but it led to the last one, viz., profaning the temple. The Romans had legalized the Jewish ritual, and for Paul to profane the holy place would be a serious outrage. The weakness of Tertullus' case was that he produced no evidence to support his charges. The accusers were there, but they had no witnesses.

II. The Prisoner's Defense (vv. 10-21). Paul cheerfully made his defense, for he knew the Jews and their customs, and that Felix had married a Jewess (v. 24). We might consider this defense first negatively and then positively. On the negative side, Paul answers each charge seriatim. In the first place there had not been time for him to cause an insurrection (v. 11). Going back over these days: (1) his arrival in Jerusalem (21:15); (2) his appearance before James (21:18); (3, 4, 5 and 6), the days of his vow (Ch. 21:26, 27); (7) his arrest; (8) his appearance before the Sanhedrin; (9) the conspiracy and his deliverance; (10, 11, 12 and 13) in Cæsarea (See Ch. 24:1). Paul's statement showed that the whole story of his experience was fresh in the memories of both friends and foes. It was the Jews who did the stirring up. Paul answers the second charge by acknowledging (vv. 14-16) that he belonged to the Christian way of salvation, but denied that this was heresy. Paul was a true Jew and a good Pharisee, for (1) he worshiped the same God (v. 14); (2) he believed in the Jewish law and prophets. From them he knew he could prove that Jesus was the Messiah. (3) He agreed with the Pharisees (v. 15) in hope toward God, a resurrection from the dead and immortal life. Paul's life was "void of offense" toward God in heart and worship, and toward men as shown in good deeds. It was for this that he exercised himself. Literally, he worked upon the raw material, disciplining and training it. Paul answers the third charge by a simple denial that it had actually taken place, and calls for witnesses. Positively, Paul explains that he had followed the God of his fathers, that he believed in fulfilled prophecy—literally the resurrection of Jesus from the dead—that he came to Jerusalem with alms for the poor, and, as before the council, he stands upon his integrity.

III. The Judge's Delay (vv. 22-27). Felix had a "more perfect knowledge of that way." We believe he had secured this knowledge from Philip, the evangelist, and from Cornelius, the Roman centurion, both of whom lived in Cæsarea. By deferring his decision, Felix avoided an outrageous injustice to Paul, and at the same time gave serious offense to the troublesome Jews who knew of his evil conduct. From verse twenty-three we see that Paul was given liberty, literally such indulgence in freedom as would be consistent with his safety. Luke, the physician, and Philip, the evangelist, visited him here, bringing food, books and letters. After a time Felix and his wife, Drusilla, sent for Paul to talk with him "concerning the faith in Christ." Drusilla was a daughter of Herod Agrippa I (vv. 12-23), and a sister of Herod II (See Ch. 26). She was a beautiful woman, much younger than Felix who was possibly about sixty years of age. She and her only child perished in the eruption of Vesuvius.

Despondency.

Salts, calomel, pills act on bowels like pepper acts in nostrils.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lush can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.—Advertisement.

NEGRO IS FOUND GUILTY.

Lima, O., Oct. 6.—Charles Daniels, who narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of a mob of Lima citizens, last night was found guilty of having committed a criminal assault on Mrs. Vivian Baber, white, wife of John Baber, Shawnee township. The jury returned its verdict convicting Daniels on the first count of the indictment at 8:50 o'clock after being out but three hours. Three other charges, assault with criminal intent, assault and battery, and plain assault, were dismissed. Daniels accepted the verdict with a show of indifference. He was remanded to jail for three days, when sentence will be imposed unless his attorney files motion for a new trial. Maximum punishment for the crime is three to twenty years imprisonment.

TRADE WITH ICELAND? SMALL CHANCE IS SEEN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—"While considerable interest was manifested in the arrival of an Icelandic vessel in the harbor of New York recently the importance of the event was sentimental rather than commercial," says a bulletin issued by the National Geographic society. "A hearty welcome was extended to the islanders whose home is on the fringe of the Arctic circle, but the cordiality of their reception was due to the fact that their vessel was one of the few to arrive in this country from that land since the days of Leif and Lucky, and not to any high expectations of trade possibilities, for Iceland with its more than 40,000 square miles and a scant population of scarcely more than two persons to the mile, sends most of her meager exports, valued at $1,000,000 a year, to Denmark, and also buys most of her $3,750,000 imports from that mother country.

"The fact that Iceland is so seldom visited by tourists and is almost a 'terra incognito' to American traders has caused a false impression to obtain in this country concerning its sombre but on the whole highly intelligent people. Indeed, it has been estimated that in proportion to its population more books and papers are printed and read in this partly frozen island than in any country of continental Europe.

"When the Scandinavian sea rovers discovered Iceland about the middle of the ninth century they found a small colony of Irish Culdees in possession. During the succeeding century and a half there was a strong wave of immigration to the bleak island, and in addition to the Norse nobles and the vikings there came Queen Aud, widow of Olaf, the White, king of Dublin, and numerous followers. Trade with the island underwent many cycles in succeeding centuries, being confined first to Norway, then with the smuggling merchants of Bristol, England, and later the Hanseatic towns of Germany. Finally, Denmark established a government monopoly which was in force until 1786, when all Danish subjects were permitted to enjoy trade relations. The island was opened to all nationalities in 1854, and twenty years later, when the Danes granted local government to the Icelanders, commercial life received a strong impetus.

"The chief industries of Iceland are cattle breeding and fishing, the latter activity having had a remarkable growth in the last few years. Herring which constituted the sole cargo of the ship which arrived in New York recently, is one of the principal products of the neighboring seas, but cod and train-oil and the salmon fisheries are also considerable. Other exports are live sheep, salt meat, eider down, wool, and hides. Imports include salt, cereals, metal ware, coal and various manufactured articles. Owing to the long winters, which are extremely severe, the islanders find ample time to devote to spinning, weaving and knitting at home and the tweed which they make is the chief material used for clothing. Tourists, however, find oilskins invaluable as the climate is extraordinary damp in the southern half of the island, where the capital and principal city, Reykjavik, is situated (population about 12,000)."

ONCE WERE LUXURIES, NOW ARE FORGOTTEN

Germans Not Starving, But Doing Without Much They Once Enjoyed.

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—One thing after another has disappeared so gradually from German markets since the war began that the very existence of certain luxuries and some things that were once considered necessities, has been forgotten. It was the experience of a correspondent of the Associated Press, who had been in Berlin since the war began, and for many years before, to find, upon his arrival in Stockholm, the butcher shop and grocery windows filled with food-stuffs he had seen scarcely a suggestion of in Germany for many months, and the restaurant bills of fare also served as pleasant reminders of ante-bellum days when the German restaurants, as much as those of any country, were prepared to supply a great variety of foods.

Germany is not starving, and there is no fear there that it will, but the people are doing without far more things than they realize, having become so gradually accustomed to the loss or curtailment of certain edibles. Bacon—which the correspondent had not seen in Germany for months—is plentiful here, of course; butter, lard and olive oil, seen in the grocery shops, offered a really irresistible appeal to one who had scarcely known them for so long. There were different cuts of pork; the correspondent had had a small portion of pork twice in three months. He found many kinds of bread, while the only kinds he recently knew were rye mixed with potatoes and wheat mixed with rye. There was real coffee, which one cannot obtain even in the best hotels or millionaires' homes in Germany.

The taste of French-fried potatoes was almost a new thing, for no German household has enough fat to permit indulgence in this luxury. With baskets of bread on the tables in hotels and restaurants, and no bread card required as a condition precedent to partaking, it seemed almost irregular and even wasteful. An order for macaroni brought a quantity greater than a household of two persons can obtain in Berlin for a whole week. A single order of cold meats contained more than the amount allowed per capita in Germany for a week.

What, then, it may be asked, are the Germans eating? The answer is: Bread, potatoes and other vegetables, one half-pound of meat weekly when it can be obtained, and fish, canned, fresh and smoked. The disappearance of the legumes—lentils, peas and beans—has been especialy felt by the poorer people. A few beans and peas are occasionally to be had, but only a negligible quantity. Lentils, of which the Germans were very fond, disappeared in the first week of the war.

On this food, if it can be obtained, one cannot starve, but the poorer people, who either get nothing but potatoes and bread, or who do not know how to make the most of what they do get, complain of the monotony of the fare and that they are continually hungry. A number of women of this class, some weeks ago, made a small demonstration in front of the city hall of one of the municipalities of Greater Berlin, declaring that they were hungry. "You shall not be allowed to starve (verhungern.)" said the mayor, "but you will have to be hungry (hungern.)"

This is undoubtedly the spirit animating all but an insignificant number of the Germans. They are satisfied that they will not starve, and they are willing to make the sacrifice for the Fatherland implied in the mayor's words. And they are the better able to make this sacrifice because, as has been illustrated, they do not realize just how great it is.

BY GERTRUDE M. PRICE.

In so fashion does lovely Juanita Hansen puncture the popular conception of the rosy-hued job of the fairy-favored "movies-ess."

She'll be remembered in the star part of the "Secret of the Submarine," for which she thinks she did about every "stunt" any human could be called upon to perform.

Let's enumerate some of the little inconveniences which go along with the position that thousands of girls are hoping and praying to be able to annex.

To begin with, there are no regular hours for the girl in the pictures. She may get a 4 a. m. call and be "on the job" until midnight. Or she may get a noon call and get back to the studio at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

A movie girl can't make social engagements unless she includes the proviso "if I'm not working," because routine is an unknown quantity in filmmaking. There's no special beginning or quitting time.

The girl who aspires to play star roles is supposed to have every accomplishment at her finger-tips or "toe-tips," as the case may be. If she can't swim today and there's a part for her to play tomorrow in which swimming is required, she is expected to be in swimming trim by that date.

"One of the most exasperating features of star work of any moving picture player's work," said Miss Hansen, "is the wardrobe. Men are the darlingest creatures living. But somehow or other they grew up without capturing one bit of consideration, it seems.

"Now, for instance, a girl will return about 7 o'clock from a hard day's outdoor scene-taking with a mind set upon a quiet, restful evening and a general recuperation for the next day's duties. She hasn't any more than closed the dressing room door behind her than a message comes from her director, which reads something like this: 'Be ready for early call tomorrow morning. Good part. For wardrobe suggest just neat little suit latest style, one indoor frock and an evening dress. Leave the studio at 8 a. m.'

It's Got to Be Done.

"Of course, all the stores are closed and where in the world do you suppose one is going to get all these clothes? Well, anyway, they must be had. So it's no uncommon thing to see 'Miss Star' and some of her friends sitting up a good share of the night 'rigging up' her next day's wardrobe."

Miss Hansen is noted for her dare-devil stuff.

"It's not the easiest thing in the world," she explained, "to be whisked to an out-of-the-way location for a precipice scene, for instance, take the fall two or three times and then find the machine is out of commission and you must walk to the next location or waste several hours of good sunshine. Probably there is a hurry call on this play and you can't even wait for a bite of lunch. At the end of the day you go back to the studio with visions of a long rest and a late rising hour the next day. But at the doorway you read your name on the bulletin board, beside an early morning call.

Serials Are Awful.

"One of the greatest hardships I know happens to some folks who are playing serials. For instance, at the beginning of the picture the star is quite thin and ethereal-looking and looks her part. But roughing it and outdoor life cause her to put on weight, despite her troubles. And the first thing she knows, she's getting fat and out of character. Nothing for her to do but DIET! Now wouldn't that shock you? As if she didn't have enough trouble without having to curtail her simple menu.

"I think every girl gets enough real pleasure out of her work to make up for the vicissitudes. She can forget almost anything when her pay check comes around. But, sometimes, after having experienced a week or a month of hardships and real danger, she wakes up to the fact that she has been working with a 'bum' company. Collecting her salary is then a little job all its own. But thank goodness such a state of affairs is the exception rather than the rule.

"Still I want to tell you it's a strenuous job to be a movie star!"

New York, Oct. 6.—Brooklyn gave the National league pennant winners a rousing sendoff today for the opening game of the world's series to be played in Boston tomorrow. Thousands of enthusiasts gathered at Ebbetts field long before the hour of departure of the players. In the crowd were many city officials, business men and the Brooklyn boosters, who go to Boston with the club to cheer the players to victory—or to condole them in defeat. A band led the big parade from Ebbetts field to the subway station and a multitude of fans lined up behind. Many houses and stores displayed flags, and the pennant winners were cheered by long lines of well wishers. The players leave the Grand Central station at 1 o'clock.

"We have more applications for tickets to the Brooklyn games than we can fill," said President Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn club." Applications have been pouring in from all parts of the country and as far south as Cuba."

While the players are in Boston fighting for the first two games of the series, carpenters will be busy extending the seating accommodations at the Brooklyn field. Nearly 1,500 extra box seats will be constructed for the first home game and new circus seats to accommodate 1,500 more will be erected in the left field. These will bring the capacity of the ground to about 27,000.

Members of the commission left for Boston this morning to meet this afternoon to clear up any doubtful questions regarding the rules for the games.

Hammond Team Plays Friars Next Sunday

The crushing defeat which the powerful Friar eleven handed the Dayton team last Sunday will not be duplicated this coming Sabbath when the Summit city aggregation clashes with the famous Hammond team, a band of pigskin chasers headed by Blocker, the great Purdue tackle, and choice of Walter Ekersall for a like position on the All-Western team. The strength of the Hammonders can be readily understood when it is known that their line averages 185 pounds, while their backfield tips the beam at 179. Stinchfield and Finn, two other Purdue men, and Galvin, former halfback at Wisconsin, are a trio of classy performers who promise to throw a figurative monkey wrench into the Friar machinery.

Both teams started the season in an auspicious manner, the Friars walloping the Dayton outfit 101 to 0, while Hammond administered a bitter pill to the strong Rockford, Ill., eleven by defeating them 27 to 0.

The Friars will put in a final practice session Saturday when some new plays will be tried and the old ones reconstructed in such a way that they will be effectual against Hammond. Heinie Berger will be in the lineup Sunday, and with Dorias and Pliska will put on a little Notre Dame stuff that will be worth seeing.

Seats in the rooters' section and the Purdue alumni section are selling fast. The Purdue men will appear in a body to watch the old varsity men rip 'em up. Much interest is being taken in this game in the way of rooting and since the Hammond crowd is bringing some rooters, a live time is expected.

ALEX GROWS FAT IN ROLE OF IRON MAN.

Grover Alexander thrives on hard work! He has taken part in fifty games this season and has gained fourteen pounds. Alex came north last spring weighing 176 pounds. As the season advanced, however, the Big Ace took on flesh and he now tips the beam at 190 pounds.

Alexander does not consider it an imposition to be asked to pitch out of his turn. A man close to the Quaker marvel said yesterday:

"Alexander is one of the greatest men in baseball today. If the team begins to wabble and Moran wants a game badly he'll say to Alex: 'I guess you'd better work today, Grover,' and all Alex ever says is 'All right, Pat; any time you say.'

"He's a great man to have on a ball club. He never has broken a training rule and is moderate in his living."

FINN, QUARTERBACK.

The player seen above is Finn, quarterback on last year's Purdue varsity, and holding the same position on the Clabby A. A. eleven of Hammond this year. Finn is built after the short and stocky model, which construction, however, does not hinder him in living up to his reputation of being a gridiron speed demon.

Fort Wayne Being Considered as League Prospect for 1917 Season.

Evidence that the Central league would like to take Fort Wayne into the fold again is beginning to turn up. Plans for next season are being made in the Central earlier than ever before, and there is little doubt that the league officials who have been visiting this city have been here to arrange to get Fort Wayne back on the circuit.

This city is ripe for a league team now, and one year's layoff showed the fans how they could miss it. There should be very little trouble getting a team lined up here for next year, and the question of support would be practically settled. The manner in which the fans turned out for semi-pro and shop league games this season should be an ample guarantee of support, it is contended.

WITH DODGER CHAMPS.

Tapping the wire on a Brooklyn fan—

"Why, Bill, that boid Daubert at toist is a poil. Lookit 'im nip them wings from thoid; no chin music about it, Bud, he's a pink poil"

Casey Stengel is an unconscious comedian. Hold your seats! Don't cheer! He's not in vodeville. He's right fielder for the Flatbush Dodgers in the land of rubber plants.

The guy who published that song "There's plenty of room at the top," is dead wrong. Ask Gran'pap Robinson. He knows!

"Wheat Ris[illegible] a headline that caught our glims. If it's the Wheat we're thing about, Zach Wheat, left fielder of the Dodgers, the only way you can get a rise out of him is to serve him a piece of pit without the cheese.

Jake Daubert, first baseman of the Trolley Boys, is the curbstone tie salesman of the N. L. He can chime more chin gods about nothing than a dozen men in a penny stake pinochle game.

WILL RUTH WIN NICHE IN HALL OF FAME?

(By Harold Johnson.)

Next? Who's in line for a place in the sun and a pedestal in baseball's hall of fame. Who will be the hero of the 1916 world's series?

Another week will bring the answer. I look for Babe Ruth, the burly southpaw of the Boston Red Sox, to grab the laurel wreath and to be the worker of slab miracles who will keep for his comrades the title of monarchs of all they survey on the baseball diamond.

It's a freaky biting—this series hero honor role. You never can tell who will annex the crown. Reviewing the hectic encounters of the past it would appear that the laurel is reserved for the lowly.

John Franklin Baker, now famed as a home run swatter, was generally regarded as the "weak sister" in the Athletics' fighting front until he developed his uncanny habit of "railing" 'em over the walls.

Fickle fame overlooked Hank Gowdy until in the titular combatting of 1914 the gaunt Ohioan ran amuck and set a series batting average, yet recorded, of .545 in four games. George Rohe, a very commonplace substitute infielder, was the big star of the White Sox triumph over the Cubs in 1906. He never amounted to much as a player before or after the classic.

Bullet Joe Bush and Babe Adams were just kid hurlers on their teams, yet their efforts proved vital factors in determining the championship of the world. Fred Clarke called on Adams in three games in the 1909 series with Detroit and three times the young right-hander hurled winners. Connie Mack summoned Bush from the bench in 1913 and the kid baffled the Giants in a brilliant exhibition, though it was his first year in the big show.

Boston managers never rated Olaf Henriksen equal to the task of playing regularly in the outfield, but the pudgy little Dane copped a hero's wreath in 1912 when he unbuckled a timely pinch hit that practically won the title for the Red Sox, who also featured Joe Wood as the man of the hour.

Christy Mathewson turned the master strokes of the world series back in 1905, when he blanked the Athletics three times in succession and, almost unaided, won the world pennant for McGraw's machine. Big Bill Dineen, now umpire in the American league, was the hero of 1903 while pitching for Boston.

Frank Chance, Orval Overall, Mordecai Brown and Harry Steinfeldt, of the Cubs, were the minute men of 1907 and 1908. Jack Coombs beat the Cubs three times in 1910 and the Athletics romped to the world title. Joe Wood was the hero of 1912, Eddie Collins and Frank Baker in 1913, and Duffy Lewis and Harry Hooper in 1915.

BROOKLYN CLOSES THE SEASON WITH WIN

Brooklyn, Oct. 6.—The champion Brooklyns wound up the National league season here yesterday by defeating New York 7 to 5. Manager Robinson gave his regulars a workout in the game, but had his recruits filling nearly every position when it ended. Appleton, who has worked little all season, pitched fine ball throughout, although he was touched for five singles, a triple and a home run in the seventh and eighth. Tesreau and Anderson were hit hard, the latter pitching only part of the seventh. Smith finished the game and did well. The new champions leave on a special train for Boston today at 1 o'clock. They will be accompanied by several hundred fans to be known as the "Royal Brooklyn Rooters." Score: R.H.E.

RIVALS IN CLOSE RACE REQUIRE FIVE HEATS

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6.—Mabel Trask and St. Frisco continued their duel in the twenty-eighth renewal of the Transylvania stake at the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders association meeting here yesterday, Mabel Trask winning in decisive manner, though forced to allow two heats to St. Frisco. In the second heat Mabel Trask was pocketed all around the track and could pull out only in the last sixteenth, finishing third. St Frisco, in the second heat, equaled the stake record of 2:03½, made by Etowah in 1914. All events furnished hard contests, two of them going to five heats, another to four, and the last race, the 2:09 trot, being left unfinished, with Brisac and M. L. J. dividing the first two heats. M'GRAW WILL PILOT GIANTS NEXT SEASON

Has Started Plans for Next Year With President and Has Hopes.

New York, Oct. 6—John J. McGraw will continue to manage the New York National league baseball club next year, despite any reports to the contrary, says John B. Foster, secretary of the club.

"McGraw already has gone over the plans for next year with President Hempstead," said Mr. Foster, "and has high hopes of leading the New York club to a pennant. His contract with the New York club has another year to run and it is not fair to him or the club to have rumors spread that he will not be with New York next year."

Despite the roasting he gave them in the game with Brooklyn Tuesday, the players of the New York club are seeking McGraw to present to him a collection of Shakespeare's works which they had purchased before his flare up. There will be no public presentation ceremonies.

"DUTCH" LEONARD'S THREE AMBITIONS

No other pitcher in the game is more absolutely unhittable than "Dutch" Leonard, of the Red Sox, when he is feeling right. He may not be the most dependable, but he is certainly the most brilliant performer of the renowned Red Sox pitching staff, says the Baseball Magazine.

On the 29th of August Leonard was batted out of the box by the St. Louis Browns. On the 30th he shut them out without a hit. The player often forgets the vicissitudes of today in the expected triumphs of tomorrow, but if there is a swifter, more decisive transition from failure to success than to be driven from the box one day and to pitch a no-hit game the next we have never heard of it.

When "Dutch" Leonard entered the major leagues he had three ambitions. It is true he scarcely hoped to realize them, but he believed in aiming high. And he did aim high. The greatest pitcher in the world might be proud to claim any one of the trophies which Leonard set himself to attain. Now at the age of 24 he has gained them all. His three ambitions are realized, and what he will set himself to win henceforth, we can't even guess.

What were these three ambitions? First, to win a world's series game. Last fall Grover Alexander entered the series as the greatest pitcher of the year. He humbled the Red Sox in their first encounter. He met them again in the third game, a contest whose importance it would be hard to overestimate. And Leonard had his wish. He won a world's series game, not a fluky contest, but against the master pitcher of the year, and by as brilliant a piece of twirling skill as has ever been witnessed. Three hits the Phillies scored, one of them should have been classed as an error by Speaker, and uncertain support marred the first three innings, but as Leonard fairly gripped the game the Phillies had never a chance. The last eighteen men retired in order without the semblance of a hit, and finally the mighty Alexander bowed quite as much to superior pitching as to superior offensive attack and yielded the palm of victory to his invincible opponent. Leonard had his wish, a world's series victory, by as masterly a performance as the game has seen.

Another of Leonard's three secret ambitions was to prove the most effective pitcher of a season. And he did. Incidentally though, he established a record which should stand for years and may never be lowered. In 1914 he allowed but twenty-five earned runs in thirty-five games pitched. Some of these games, of course, were not for a full nine innings, but his grand average for the season was 1.01 earned runs per game.

This is the most nearly perfect average on record. The nearest it has ever been paralleled was by Walter Johnson in 1914 with a grand average of 1.09. There may be pitchers who twirl in but a few contests who could show such effectiveness, but no pitcher who has taken part in a representative number of games has ever approached that mark save Johnson only, and he did not equal it.

The third ambition of "Dutch" Leonard was to pitch a no-hit game; and, smarting by the rough treatment of the day before, he gained that third and last of his ambitions on Aug. 30.

What manner of pitcher is this who can break into a league of stars and annex three such records at the age of 24? Walter Johnson has toiled for years to pitch a no-hit game and so has Alexander, but though they came close to the mark they never could quite reach it. And to go through a season allowing an average of almost exactly one run per game is really almost too good a pitching feat to be true.

Leonard is a dark complexioned, stocky built athlete, some 5 feet 11 inches in weighing 180 pounds. He looks more like a football player than a baseball pitcher, and he is indeed an all around athlete. Twenty-four is young even in baseball. He should have at least ten years ahead, and what may not a pitcher accomplish in ten years who has already done so much at 24?

TRACTION SUFFERS DEFICIT.

Fort Wayne Strike Blamed for Falling Off in Earnings.

Indianapolis, Oct. 6.—A deficit of $32,288.48 was suffered by the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company in the year ending June 30, according to a report submitted to the public service commission. A part of the loss, it was said, was due to the fact that a strike prevailed in Fort Wayne last fall.

BY GILSON GARDNER.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 6.—That Wilson will carry California and enough other states to be elected is the opinion of Representative William Kent, known as the one independent member of the house of representatives. Kent has voluntarily, declined to run for another term; so he has no personal stake in the coming elections.

"I found the California congressman at his home in Kentfield, across the bay from San Francisco, much absorbed in giving several hundred thousand acres of his red-wood forest land to the city for a public park. This gift follows that of the famous Muir woods.

"I have not been taking an active part in the campaign," he explained "but I have made diligent inquiries of those in a position to know, and I am convinced Wilson is gaining ground every day, and if Hughes will go on doing and saying what he has been doing and saying, President Wilson's election will be a foregone conclusion.

"Of California there is no doubt. It will go for Wilson and Johnson.

"A lot of things besides Hughes' speeches are helping Wilson. First, he has labor almost solidly with him. There are more laboring men than bank presidents, and when it is made clear where their interests really lie, the consequences will be notable.

"Second comes the so-called progressive vote, the independent vote of the country. It comes pretty near to swinging the balance of power between the two old parties. The progressives realize that Wilson already has done more to carry out the social justice program than they could expect Hughes to do in eight consecutive years—yes, or aeons. They see that Wilson believes in that kind of thing, while Hughes does not.

"More surprising is the large number of former republicans getting behind a democratic president who has made good.

"Finally a third big element in the campaign is the peace sentiment. Whether one agrees with it or not, there is no blinking the fact the peace feeling is very strong. In the suffrage states a great many women commend the president to the utmost for keeping the country out of war!"

"How about the visit of Justice Hughes to this state?" I asked.

"A terrible frost; everybody conceded that."

"How about the Johnson progressives?"

"I believe most of them at heart are for Wilson. There is no Hughes enthusiasm in the Johnson camp. Whatever lip service may be rendered Hughes, the votes will be lacking at the ballot box."

Discussing general issues, Kent said: "The tariff is deservedly dead. A non-partisan commission, in continuous session, and required to report both to the president and congress, will furnish a basis for treating tariff symptoms as they reappear.

"War conditions have upset the hard and fast theory of a tariff for protection or a tariff for revenue.

"Retention of the duty on sugar was plainly a war measure for the purpose of putting the country on a more self-sustaining basis in case it should be disturbed. The same action by the democrats in the case of dyestuffs shows the president and his party will not allow a worn-out formula to stand in the way of the country's business welfare."

As to the Mexican situation, Kent prefers to trust Wilson's experience and intentions rather than to turn the thing over to Hughes, who is known to be under the influence of certain selfish interests seeking a war of conquest and possibly annexation.

Among the notable achievements of Wilson, Kent named the Alaska railroad, the promise of the president to veto the Shields water power bill, the federal reserve act and the department of agriculture's campaign against foot and mouth disease. Kent concluded:

"To me it will be a sad commentary on our form of government and on the capacity of our people if they fail to recognize the steady strong surge of progress shown in the past four years, and are turned by a foolish party appeal from the evident interest of the country, which will be the best served by the return of President Wilson to office."

Attendance at First Game Will Be Largest in History of Baseball.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 6.—Activities attendant upon the opening here tomorrow of the world series between the Brooklyn champions of the National league and the Boston American league title holders and present world champions, multiplied today. The Red Sox players at Braves field for further and sharper practice, took part in a conference which Manager Carrigan had ordered last night. It was called early for the purpose of apparently working out signals and strategy to be tested in a practice game this afternoon. The Brooklyn team made no effort to hasten its movement onto the scene of the series curtain raising, and did not plan to arrive here until late in the day. Through its series here with the Boston Nationals the team had gained a good working knowledge of conditions at Braves field, which Manager Robinson thought sufficient preparation for the test. The weather man contributed his part to the arrangements with assurance of fine weather tomorrow. While it was warm today, there was a promise of slightly lower temperatures for the game and with no early indications of rain. The attendance at the first game will be the largest in the history of baseball, according to President J. J. Lanin, of the Boston Americans. After working through the night again to facilitate distribution of reserved seat tickets, Lannin said the interest in the series this year, as indicated in many ways, was greater by far than last year, when a record crowd of 42,300 saw the first game played in this city.

The heikht of this interest was shown by early morning crowds at Fenway park, small in number, but eager to obtain preference in the purchase of grandstand seats. The new system by which successful applicants were forced to fall in with a policy of "first come, first served," at the ticket lines instead of having certain tickets held to their order, caused some confusion yesterday and was responsible for the early lines today. Prospective speculators were under surveillance of police officers and plain clothes men who had orders to arrest any persons trading in tickets.

The time for exercising purchase privilegee on reservations expires at 6 o'clock tonight, after which uncalled for tickets will be put together and prepared for a rush line sale tomorrow morning. This will be the only opportunity for persons not successful applicants by mail to obtain such seats except by private transactions at increased prices.

As far as could be learned today disposition of tickets for the game here has as yet developed no incident requiring the attention of the national commission. Members of this board arranged a meeting here late today at which plans for the series as already made were to be approved. The umpires who will act during the series discussed the application of certain rules of each league to the game generally today with discussion as to which shall obtain on each grounds.

Winona Aggies Have Brilliant Prospects

The pigskin chasers of the Winona college of agriculture are fast rounding into shape to meet the huksies of Ohio northern at Ada next Saturday.

Many new plays have been added to the already large list and under the watchful eye of Coach Stroupe the men are getting them down to perfection.

The team which will line up against Ohio northern will be practically the same as that which represented the aggies last Saturday at Earlham when the latter was held to a 6-6 tie, the only probable exceptions being Laist, who suffered a sprained ankle in the Earlham game, and Johnson, who will be out on account of a bad knee.

The men are all in perfect condition and Coach Stroupe is confident that the team will speak for itself against Ohio northern. The aggies have the strongest schedule this year they have ever faced but with such men as Capt. Koops, Mason, Garrett, Brant, Kellogg and Bieler, prospects for the most successful season in the history of the school are exceptionally bright.

With such teams as Rose Poly, Kalamazoo normal, Ohio northern and others on the schedule the Aggies will have their hands full to the end of the season but with the spirit which is prevalent in and around the college as well as on the gridiron there is the greatest confidence that the team will finish a brilliant season.
